Preparation moved up a month '75 budget ready before April vote?

by JOHN MAES
Preparation of the 1975-76 Buffalo Grove budget has been moved ahead by about a month in an effort to complete the budget before the April election, said Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Larson said he has directed his department heads to furnish him with expense projections for the next fiscal year by Dec. 31 and said he hopes the village board can act on the new budget by April 7.

The plan has met with disfavor, however, from Raymond Mahoney, president of the Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove Party, a group likely to put up a slate of candidates for the next election. New village trustees will be responsible for spending budgeted funds, he said, adding, they "should have an opportunity to keep their own house in order."

Tests don't tell what students learn

by JUDY JOBBITT
A news analysis
Confusion reigns in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 over just how much children are learning.

Two sets of contradictory figures show students are "average" and "above average" — and both sets are right.

The scores are determined by student performances on tests that cover material they "should know" in their year and month of school. Dist. 21 students scored at or slightly above their grade levels on the national tests, showing they know what they should — or a little more.

However, another set of figures — percentiles — which compare Dist. 21 student scores to scores throughout the nation, show they are doing better than most of their peers.

Students in the third grade scored 75 per cent; fourth grade scored 59.57 per cent; fifth grade scored 63.85 per cent; sixth grade scored 50.42 per cent; seventh grade scored 54.3 per cent and eighth grade scored 54 per cent.

CONTINUOUS PROBLEMS flowed through the hands of officials during a simulated train wreck disaster Thursday in Mount Prospect. About 100 persons participated in the drill. (See story on page 4)

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 59 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came. "It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 6 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS TO return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

FIREMEN SPENT HOURS spraying Wednesday in Nairobi, Kenya. Fifty-nine persons died in the first crash of a jumbojet, and 98 survived.

MSD won't obey city pollution law

The Metropolitan Sanitary District released an environmental assessment statement Thursday indicating the district will not obey a local anti-pollution ordinance in the design and construction of a huge sewer plant in Des Plaines. The sanitary district called "unlawful and unenforceable" a Des Plaines ordinance setting limits on air pollution that can be emitted from the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. The 175-page statement also disclosed that the district has dropped immediate plans to build a reservoir southwest of the plant site and said that covered sewage reservoirs to meet the requirements of the Des Plaines ordinance could hike the plant cost by more than $30 million. The statement outlines sanitary district plans to build tunnels to carry sewage from Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect to the plant for treatment. The statement — the MSD's official justification for building the O'Hare plant and tunnels in accordance with the sanitary district's designs — will be the subject of a hearing Dec. 19 and 20 in Mount Prospect.

Firm picks up officials' tab

Four Prospect Heights Park District board members were flown to Massachusetts this week courtesy of a pool-gutter firm, one of two companies whose equipment is being considered for purchase by the park board. Airfare for the four was at least $640 and all other expenses were paid by the firm, Whitten Co. of Massachusetts. Board Pres. Max Lyle said Whitten's bid was at least $10,000 under a local firm's and Whitten's equipment is not available for inspection in the Midwest. Others on the trip included commissioners Robert Barut, Joe Leoniak and Bill Kuhns.

120 racing days sought

John F. Loomer, Arlington Park Race Track president, asked the Illinois Racing Board Thursday for 120 days of continuous racing from June 2 to Oct. 18. The 1975 racing schedule is to be announced by the board within the next several days.

Stavros has back ailment

Convicted Wheeling political boss James Stavros was transferred Nov. 2 from the federal prison at Sandstone, Minn., to the Lexington, Ky., federal penitentiary because of a back problem and chronic sinus condition. Also, William Bieber, former Wheeling building director, was denied parole Oct. 1, on the one-year prison term he began serving July 18, it was learned Thursday. He is reported to be "very sick" with a back ailment in the federal prison in Springfield, Mo., but is expected to remain there until he has served nine months of his sentence, officials said. Stavros began serving a four-year term June 25. Both men pleaded guilty to extorting developers in Wheeling.

91,115 jobless in Illinois... consumer prices up again

From Herald news services

The nation's sick economy has pushed up Illinois unemployment rates, and state officials said Thursday they are hard-pressed to cope with the soaring loss of jobs.

During the week ending Nov. 9, a total 91,115 people in Illinois claimed unemployment benefits — 16,274 of them for the first time. The total number of claims was 54 per cent higher than those made during a comparable week last year.

Christopher Nugent, chief of the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security, which runs the unemployment program, Thursday said his department does not have enough staff to do an efficient job of processing the claims, which means long lines for the unemployed and delays in payments of checks.

He said the Ford administration seems to not be aware of the severity of the problems, and he plans to talk with members of Illinois' congressional delegation about the unemployment picture in each of their districts.

Nugent's bureau also runs the state employment service, and he said the number of employers looking for workers has shown "a dramatic decline" recently in almost all occupations except clerical.

"What we see is a decline across the board," he said, "and the failure of employers to replace attritioned employees."

Bob Shackford, director of research for the bureau, said Thursday he thinks the current unemployment rate of 4.7 per cent in Illinois means the state is in a recession, but he does not foresee a 1930s-type depression because the nation now has such safeguards as unemployment benefits, social security and welfare payments.

Nationwide, more auto and supply workers got layoff notices.

General Motors Corp. said Thursday it will idle 30,000 workers at nine assembly plants in December, pushing auto industry joblessness in the weeks before Christmas to more than 150,000 workers.

GM's announcement of temporary one and two-week shutdowns at 9 of its 22 U.S. assembly plants came as Chrysler and Ford confirmed plans to cut white collar workers from their payrolls because of production cutbacks. Predictions were for 3,000 to be idled at Ford and 15,000 at Chrysler.

As thousands more people lost their jobs, prices rose again. A Labor Department report showed consumer prices increased 0.9 per cent in October, largely because of higher prices on cars, housing, cereal and bakery goods.

The increase meant the annual rate continued to rise at 12.2 per cent. The government said the purchasing power of average workers was down 0.3 per cent from September and 4.9 per cent from October, 1973, despite pay increases.

BAKERS IN Hartford, Conn. march at the capitol protesting high sugar prices. The Labor Department Thursday reported prices up again.

The economy at a glance

- Government figures show the annual inflation rate continuing to rise at a 12.2 per cent rate, further eroding consumer buying power.
- Senate Democrats unanimously approved a seven-point economic agenda for the next Congress calling for wage and price controls as a last resort.
- Announcement of additional layoffs in the auto industry pushed the total of idled workers to 150,000. With a record 80-day supply of unsold cars, the industry's outlook for December production was bleaker than November, when car output was down 31 per cent from a year ago.
- The nationwide strike by coal miners is expected to drag well into December as union president Arnold Miller attempted to defend the proposed new contract with members.
- Budget Director Roy Ash told Congress that government regulation is costing the American consumer as much as $16 billion a year in higher prices.
- New orders for durable goods fell in October for the second straight month, although the decline was not so sharp as in September.

The world

President Ford arrives in Seoul

President Ford arrived in the South Korean capital of Seoul last night in an emphatic gesture of continuing United States support for an ally whose soldiers battled side-by-side with American fighting men in two wars. About 1,400 persons, headed by Korean President Park Chung Hee, were on hand when he arrived from Osaka for a 23-hour visit here after a five-day stay in Japan.

U.N. to take up Palestinian issue

The United States urged Thursday that the demands of the Palestinians be taken up in negotiations rather than by dramatic maneuvers in the United Nations. U.N. sources said, however, Arab states could probably muster majorities Friday for historic resolutions giving the Palestinian Liberation Organization observer status in the U.N., and calling for return of Palestinian refugees to what is now Israel or territories occupied by Israel.

Pair skyjack British Airways jet

Two hijackers seized a British Airways jetliner on the ground in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Dubai Thursday. A stewardess was wounded in the takeover struggle. The gunmen then forced the pilot of the Super VC10 airliner to fly to Beirut with 27 passengers aboard. The condition of the stewardess was not serious.

Chicago

Chicago Ridge mayor, trustees indicted

U.S. Attorney James Thompson Thursday announced the indictment of Joseph Coglianese, mayor of suburban Chicago Ridge, all six members of the board of trustees and two former trustees on charges they engaged in a "massive conspiracy" to extort money from businesses and property owners. Thompson said, "It was a shakedown scheme that could be summed up in the sentence: If it moves, tax it, except in this case, any movement required a shakedown payment."

Suit against corrections chief filed

Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey has filed suit against Illinois Department of Corrections Director Allyn Sie-laff, charging that his "gross abuse" of the prisoner-furlough program threatens the safety of witnesses in criminal cases. Carey referred specifically to Robert Hall, who has been charged with murdering his former wife while on unsupervised furlough from the Menard, Ill. correctional center.

Nixon tape stated impeach possibility

President Richard Nixon acknowledged in April of 1973 that he could be impeached if the crumbling Watergate cover-up were not handled "adroitly," according to a tape played at the Watergate cover-up trial Thursday. The prosecutors played their final tapes as they moved toward compelling the case against five former Nixon aides Friday.

Cost of robots on Mars project soars

Total costs of an effort to land two life-searching Viking Robots on Mars in 1976 more than doubled during the past five years to over $1 billion, space agency officials told Congress Thursday. Faulty original cost estimates and nagging technical problems for the most complicated unmanned spacecraft ever built were blamed for the higher estimates.

U. S. proposes Soviet-American meeting

The United States has proposed a Soviet-American meeting to discuss observance of the strategic arms limitation agreements concluded at the 1972 Moscow summit conference, State Department officials said Thursday. The meeting was proposed because U.S. officials need a clarification of a number of Soviet activities being carried out under the agreement.

FDA warns of German heart pacemaker

The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday that doctors have been told to keep a close watch on about 1,500 heart patients who are using a type of German heart pacemaker which may not work properly. In Dallas, meanwhile, a doctor said many patients have been frightened by inappropriate announcements of pacemaker recalls. He said many patients don't know what kind they have, and recalls should be a physician alert with quiet notification to the patients involved.

The market

Weary market closes indecisively

A weary stock market closed indecisively in sluggish trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Attention was drawn to the Justice Department's antitrust suit against AT&T. The Dow Jones average, which lost 63.05 points in the previous seven sessions, lost 1.02 to 608.57. Volume totaled 13,820,000 shares, up slightly from the 11,400,000 traded Wednesday.

Suit could destroy AT&T: deButts

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ford Administration's antitrust suit against American Telephone & Telegraph Corp., if successful, could destroy the company and result in poorer telephone service at a higher cost, AT&T Chairman John deButts said Thursday.

"We'll fight this one to the end," declared deButts.

He said the antitrust suit filed by the Justice Department could hurt consumers as well as stockholders.

"I think the whole thing is a ripoff of the stockholders," deButts said. "They are the ones who are going to lose if (the government) is successful."

AT&T is the world's largest and richest publicly owned corporation and has three million shareholders, the most of any U.S. corporation.

The Justice Department accused AT&T and its 23 operating companies of restraining competition through monopolistic practices in a U.S. district court suit. The government demanded the communications network to divest itself of Western Electric, its manufacturing subsidiary, and Bell Laboratories, its research arm, along with its long-distance telephone operation.

DeButts told a news conference AT&T is one of the most efficient and profitable companies in the world and said he could not understand why the government took the action at a time when President Ford was urging business to become more productive.

"It was in the public interest, Congress ruled, to have a telephone monopoly," deButts said, adding that the principle had been upheld by Congressional committees, regulatory agencies and the Justice Department itself.

DeButts said AT&T would contest the action vigorously in a court battle that could last 10 years and cost an "astronomical amount which will have to be paid by the consumer."

Many of AT&T's three million stockholders engaged in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, buying or selling 871,000 shares in the aftermath of the government's antitrust suit against the company. However, the expected drop in price was a relatively modest $3 from $45.63.

Senate override of two major vetoes by Ford deals President serious blow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday easily overrode vetoes of two major bills, dealing a serious blow to President Ford.

By one-sided margins, the Senate refused to sustain Ford's vetoes of an $851 million vocational rehabilitation program and strengthening of the 1966 Freedom of Information Act.

The Senate voted 65 to 27, three more than the required two-thirds, to override the veto of the Freedom of Information Act amendments and 90 to 1 to reject the veto of the vocational rehabilitation program. Only Sen. William L. Scott, R-Va., stuck with Ford.

The House Wednesday overrode the two vetoes by huge margins.

The legislation making government information more accessible to the public was vetoed before Congress went into a 30-day election-period recess and now becomes law. (See editorial, "A defeat for secrecy," on page 14 of this section.)

mass transit aid bill passed by the Senate Tuesday. It now goes to Ford, who said in a telegram to House leaders that he would sign it.

The 289-109 House vote surpassed the hopes of the bill's sponsors, who had feared a "squeaker" vote because of a jurisdictional dispute between two committees over whose transit aid bill should be considered.

Ed Hanrahan a candidate for mayor of Chicago

by United Press International

Edward V. Hanrahan, a Democrat who lost his bid for the House of Representatives in the Nov. 5 elections, announced Thursday he is a candidate for mayor of Chicago.

Hanrahan, 53, is a former Cook County state's attorney and a popular independent Democrat who beat the party candidate to win nomination for 6th District congressman. He was defeated by Republican Henry J. Hyde by more than 8,000 votes.

"I am a candidate for mayor of Chicago," Hanrahan told a news conference.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved a bill to end the controversial oil depletion allowance and give a small break to low and moderate income taxpayers.

Elimination of tax writeoffs for fuel exploration expenses next Jan. 1 would cost the oil industry an estimated $3.28 billion in 1975 if enacted.

The bill increases the rate for standard income tax deduction from 15 to 16 per cent and raises its maximum dollar amount from $2,000 to $2,300 while increasing the minimum deduction from $1,300 to $1,600 for individuals and $1,900 for couples.

"I am a candidate for mayor of Chicago," Hanrahan told a news conference.

"Not just mayor of downtown Chicago, but the mayor of Pilsen Park, Lawndale, Uptown, South Chicago and mayor of every other part of our city."

Incumbent Richard J. Daley, who has been elected mayor five times, has yet to announce whether he will run for a sixth term in next year's election.

The House Thursday gave final congressional approval to an $11.8 billion

The bill increases the rate for standard income tax deduction from 15 to 16 per cent and raises its maximum dollar amount from $2,000 to $2,300 while increasing the minimum deduction from $1,300 to $1,600 for individuals and $1,900 for couples.

Both were demolished by the blasts, with police reporting many persons believed buried in the rubble of concrete, wood and glass.

It was the highest death toll so far in the wave of bombings that has swept Britain, mostly aimed at pubs frequented by military personnel. Police have said the Irish Republican Army is responsible.

Rachel may marry Michael, provided he behaves himself

• Rachel Fitter, a 77-year-old millionaire spinster and aunt of Happy Rockefeller, said Thursday in a Washington interview she still is considering marriage to Michael Wilson, 29-year-old son of a Welsh coal miner and an ex-room service manager and ex-chauffeur. Some time ago, the lonely heiress said she applied to a Philadelphia dating service but none of their selections — mostly around her own age — pleased her. Then she met Michael through a Rockefeller Foundation benefit. She said she may marry him if he behaves himself.

He also repeated his charge that energy policy has been "favorable to the oil companies."

Ambulance drivers and firemen raced to the scene to find the streets littered with glass and debris and dozens of dazed victims covered in blood.

"At least two of the blokes in the group I was running with were just blown over," said Graham Turner, a shoe store clerk who ran toward the scene after the first explosion. "Scores of injured people began appearing covered in blood with their clothes ripped off."

He is down to 165 pounds and says his newest hobby is getting into the bathtub.

Taxi driver Tim Whelan was among many who offered their vehicles as ambulances. He said, "most of them were too shocked to say anything."

Police said the bombs had been planted in the pubs and not thrown in.

Birmingham General Hospital said it had received 70 injured persons and many of them were in serious condition which necessitated emergency surgery.

A hospital spokesman described the scene as "like a battlefield."

Michael Willis, 18, was in the Tavern when the first explosion hit. He said "I was going to put a record in the juke box when all hell was let loose."

"There was a massive explosion with bodies everywhere. I had to climb over them to get out. The screaming and groaning of the injured was terrible."

"Glass was flying and furniture was thrown all over the place."

'Sunshine' reigns as world champion

by TONI GINETTI

When Diane Klotz decided to buy her husband, Karm, a horse for his birthday in August 1973, she never thought just a year later the couple would own the world's champion Appaloosa.

That's exactly what happened. The Hoffman Estates couple's brown-and-spotted steed, named Sunday Sunshine, took top honors in one of three classes of competition this month at the World Championship Appaloosa Show in Oklahoma City.

Sunshine's triumph after winning 14 first-place honors in approved horse show competitions throughout the nation has made the 2-year-old gelding worth about $7,000, Mrs. Klotz says.

Not a bad return on a $1,500 investment made only 11 months ago. But, says Mrs. Klotz, fame and fortune was not the reason the couple bought the horse.

"I thought he was beautiful," she said. "It was a completely illogical thing to do. He wasn't expected to do well in competitions, although his breeding is good."

THE KLOTZ VENTURE into the equine world began a year ago when Mrs. Klotz decided to get her husband a birthday present and satisfy a childhood love at the same time.

"I've always loved horses, but I'm from New York and you don't see too many out there," she said, smiling. "When it finally became financially able for us, we bought a horse. We started with a grade horse, an unregistered horse."

The purchase, however, was a little one-sided.

"I'm the kind of person who does something and then comes home and says 'look what I bought,'" she said, laughing. "A girlfriend of mine had a horse, and we had been riding hers. It was the kind of thing where I said 'let's spend a day looking at horses for sale,' and I bought one!"

The couple sold their first horse when they purchased Sunshine in January from the Stoneridge Farm stable in Dundee, where they had boarded their first horse.

THE STABLE RAISES and breeds Appaloosas, horses known for their beauty, versatility and endurance. Sunshine was purchased at an auction in Utah by the farm to be sold, she said.

"We didn't buy him to show, but it kind of snowballed. Then we couldn't afford to keep him out of competition."

The couple joined two Appaloosa horse clubs, the Blackhawk and the South Wisconsin clubs, hired Jim Marshall from Stonerights to train the animal and entered the horse show competition circuit in May.

The horse's victories are catalogued in a room of the couple's Winston Knolls subdivision home. Dozens of prize ribbons for general competitions adorn one wall, while trophies from regulation Appaloosa club competitions line the fireplace mantel and shelves.

The trophies include 14 firsts, the Illinois and Missouri state championships, and seven grand championships, awards which are given in each competition to the best of all first place winners.

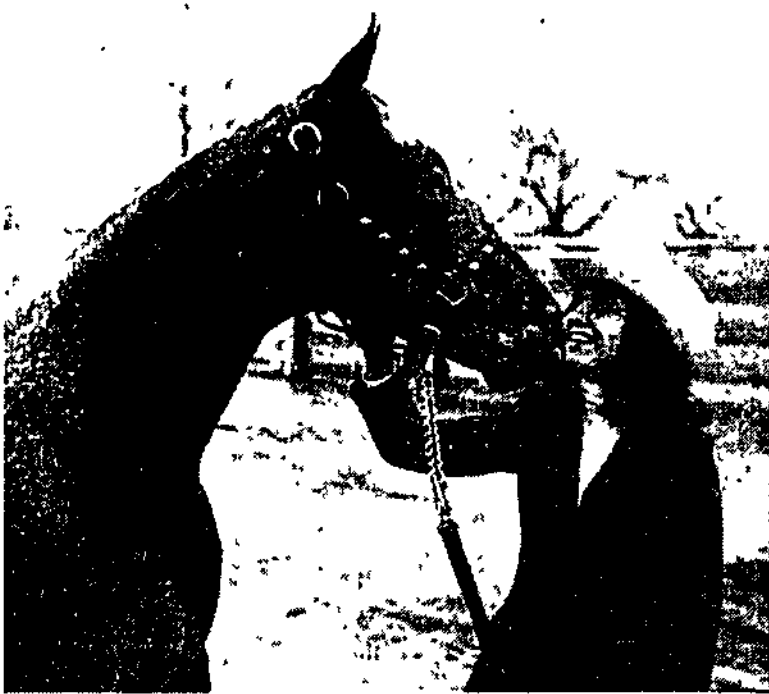

MRS. KLOTZ SAID her horse competes in the halter category, in which the animal is judged by its appearance, breed qualities and movement. Victories in grand-champion competition qualify a horse to go on to the world show.

Winning the international competition, however, was an unexpected victory, she said, so much so that, although the Klotz' had traveled to most of the other shows, they didn't attend the major show.

"I was crying on the phone when they called to tell us we won," Mrs. Klotz said. "We thought it was out of the question."

For veteran horsemen, winning an international competition often never comes, but if their fellow club members are jealous of the Klotz' good luck, they haven't shown it.

"The people in the club are fantastic," she said. "We're novices and they've

AN ADMIRING glance from Diane Klotz goes to her winner, Sunday Sunshine. The Appaloosa recently won international honors for his breed and this year also was chosen helped us a lot. It's very much a family type thing."

ODDLY ENOUGH, her "hobby" is not a moneymaking one for her husband, who works for Centex Homes Corp. The world champion medallion award, for example, carried with it only about $180 in prize money, she said, about enough to pay for one month's boarding fee.

Sunshine's board at the stable is $115 per month. Marshall's fee for a training period of one to three months is another $200. The couple also has two other horses, one is a riding horse and the other a yearling, also boarded at the stable.

"It's an expensive hobby, but when you have a horse like him, you can't not do it. It definitely takes money from your income."

There is a great deal of time involved in caring for the animal as well, and Illinois and Missouri state champion. The Klotz' who reside in Hoffman Estates, have been horse owners for only a year.

Mrs. Klotz said she and her two small sons spend at least four nights a week at the stable in addition to weekends.

But the time requirement would never be too much to make her give up the horses, Mrs. Klotz says firmly.

"I'd make time for it. I go to school part-time, I'm kind of a free lance photographer, and I have two children, too. But I would still make time for the horse."

Woman, 40, raped on Dundee Road after car trouble

Sheriff's police said Thursday a 40-year-old Wheeling woman allegedly was raped Monday on Dundee Road by a man who stopped to help her with her car.

Police said the incident occurred at about 12:30 p.m. after the woman's car broke down on Dundee Road between Wolf and Rand roads. The woman's attacker threatened her with a knife, police said.

Police said the woman told them she was having problems with her car and apparently had it fixed at a gas station at Wolf and Dundee roads in Wheeling. However, after the woman drove west on Dundee Road for a short time, her car stopped again.

Police said it was at this point the alleged offender stopped behind her car and offered his assistance. She accepted his help, but the man pulled the knife and then raped her after he entered the car, police said.

After the rape, the woman went to a business at the intersection of Dundee and Rand roads and called police, police said. The offender is described as white, 30 to 32 with olive complexion, black hair, clean-shaven and well-dressed.

The victim was treated at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

A similar incident occurred in the same area along Dundee Road Dec. 8, 1973.

A Schaumburg woman was raped by a man who offered to give the woman a ride to a hospital after she had been involved in an accident on Dundee Road near Saxton Place, Buffalo Grove police said. The man, who never was apprehended, then dumped the woman several blocks from Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Trustees to meet before roundtable

Despite a scheduled President's Roundtable, the Buffalo Grove Village Board will meet in an abbreviated 30-minute session Monday night to take care of business before adjourning to the informal discussion.

Board meetings are not normally convened on roundtable nights, but Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said Thursday village officials want to avoid delay in enacting the new water rate ordinance and sealing agreements for the Buffalo Grove Golf Course and acquisition of land for a public works garage.

The village board session will start at 7:30 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. The roundtable will follow at 8 p.m.

Simulated disaster

Mount Prospect gears for worst

by STEVE FORSYTH

It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and Northwest Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems planned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m.p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village plans for a new library.

Blizzard conditions were reported and police were constantly receiving routine calls for accidents, holdups and assorted major crimes. The situation worsened as hospitals began to run short on emergency treatment equipment and oxygen, and at the peak of the crisis, a man was admitted for a head injury from a golf ball at a nearby golf course.

The disaster became detailed as a hospital employee reported a copying machine was broken.

In two hours the disaster crew simulated 24 hours of emergency activity. ISU officials said the exercise was most significant in teaching agencies what they could do with existing equipment and facilities, and how a real procedure might work.

EACH PARTICIPATING agency will be thoroughly critiqued in a few weeks, Dunlap said, and will be able to evaluate its own programs and efficiency. The program is funded under a Civil Defense preparedness grant. The university has a contract to provide staff and a number of disaster preparedness programs throughout the state this year.

Mount Prospect was selected as a simulation test site because of its central location in the area served by the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources, said Mount Prospect Paramedic David Gold, local project coordinator.

DETAILS of a mock train wreck and ensuing emergency "action" in Mount Prospect are logged on a chalkboard so observers can follow progress of the test. The exercise Thursday was the largest simulated disaster in the state.

Tests show contradictory results

How much are students learning?

Students scored in the 80-90 percentile. Irving, Longfellow, Turkington, Frost and Alcott elementary schools showed scores between 60-80 per cent.

Low test scores were recorded in Field, Hawthorne and Twain elementary schools, with Field and Twain scoring in the 40th percentile.

Iowa Basic standardized tests measure achievement in vocabulary, reading comprehension, language skills, work-study skills and mathematics skills.

THE REASON WHY some schools showed lower test results is because the district includes scores from all students, including those with learning difficulties and bilingual students, said Supt. Kenneth Gill. Those students are more heavily concentrated at some schools than at others.

He said the district also has an influx of bilingual students in the spring when migrant workers move back into the district. The standardized tests are given shortly after most of these students arrive.

Intensive efforts by the district to raise low scores have been effective in the past, Gill said. When an area needs improvement, he said, two things must be accomplished. First, low-scoring students must be given help, and second, the district must change the curriculum at the lower grade levels to improve future scores.

DIST. 21 STUDENTS showed above-average achievement in vocabulary and work-study skills in all grades.

Reading scores were one month behind average in grades 5-7, language skills were one month behind in fourth grade and two months behind in sixth grade, and math skills were low in grades 4-6.

Gill said the district noticed low scores in computation before last year. This year the district is piloting a math series to introduce a math curriculum that emphasizes computation skills without losing the conceptual skills presented in the "new" math. He said it takes about two years to show results of a different curriculum designed to improve a skill area.

Village hopes to complete budget before April vote

tion of budgetary items will make it possible for the current board to get the budget passed before the elections early next April. Otherwise, he said, adoption of a budget to carry the village through April 30, 1976 might be delayed and the process would have to wait for new board members to be seated.

Officials did not begin preparing the current budget until late January which received final village approval in July.

Budget approval was delayed this year because of revisions and cutbacks that had to be made to offset shortages in the general fund and to accommodate pay raises for village employees.

THE TERMS OF Village Pres. Gary Armstrong and trustee James Shirley, Randall Rathjoh, and Edward Omon expire next year. So far, all refuse comment on their plans for reelection.

Of the plans to move procedures ahead this year Shirley said, "That is something the board ought to commit itself to doing before election time."

He said that during the 1970 elections, budget adoption was delayed to almost September because of what he termed a "learning process" faced by new board members.

He said, "We (current trustees) enter

Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling-Buffer Grove Dist. 21 has challenged the right of the district's General Caucus to form a committee to study student test scores.

Gill turned down a request from the caucus committee that he and Richard Wynn, special education director, meet with the committee to discuss the scores.

"This seems like a very strange request coming from a group that was formed for the purpose of selecting qualified school board candidates," Gill stated in his letter to Sally Benoit, committee member. "I question your authority to branch out into other areas of endeavor under the caucus banner."

PARENTS ASKED the school board last week about the district having average scores in a community with above-average education background, income and educational resources. The caucus

THE DISTRICT HAS SET up a task force to investigate the low-skill areas. But the staff has been cautioned not to "wreck the whole program to teach just basic skills," Gill said.

Gill said he is concerned with teachers' reactions to recent criticism about test scores. Many teachers felt they must concentrate solely on basic skills to the exclusion of other academic areas, he said. This type of overreaction could damage the district's over-all curriculum, he said.

The standardized tests do not check on areas such as art, music, social studies or science, he said. "What else is taught and not tested needs to be maintained and improved, too," he added.

Field School is applying for a federally established the study committee Monday to investigate the reasons for the average scores.

Mary Ellen Feldman, caucus chairman, said she is allowed to set up special committees. In this instance, however the membership voted to establish the group looking into test scores, she said.

GILL ALSO SENT a notice to the PTO and PTA organizations stating he would meet with either group to discuss test results.

He acknowledged Mrs. Benoit's request to meet with the caucus committee in the PTA-PTO letters stating, "We are refusing this invitation on the basis that such activities on the part of the caucus usurps the purpose for which the caucus was convened."

"It is my understanding that the single purpose of the caucus is to select qualified school board candidates to run in the upcoming election. It is also my contention that they should stick to this purpose until they have been authorized by you to move out into other areas of endeavor in your name."

funded program to improve basic skills.

Field scored in the 40th percentile or below in all skills except work-study.

The district also is bringing in two consultants from Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, to analyze the test scores. Wesley Many, assistant dean of the college of education, and Harold Collins, a specialist in statistics, have done similar studies in other school districts.

The district received notice of their services Thursday.

HECTOR, A FORMER Volkswagen lately. The car is the project of elec- trics teacher Ken Jauch. drawing attention at Harper College

Watch out! Here comes Hector the electric car...

By sometime next spring, students, teachers and visitors at Harper College are going to have to watch out for electronics teacher Ken Jauch and his car Hector.

Right now, Hector is just a shell and a chassis drawing notice from people who walk past Jauch's electronics lab at the college. But by spring, Jauch hopes to have the Volkswagen converted to run on electricity.

"It's a personal project that I've always wanted to do," Jauch says. "Last spring I found an old Volkswagen on a friend's farm and one thing led to another."

Jauch is making Hector out of scrounged-up and leftover parts he has on hand or has bought at surplus stores. The electric motor to be attached to the drive shaft was donated to the school about a year ago.

Jauch says he has collected batteries for the car from the college maintenance shop and from old cars. So far he has six batteries. "I would be nice to have ten-12-volt batteries because that would get about two horsepower and might get me 30 miles an hour," he says.

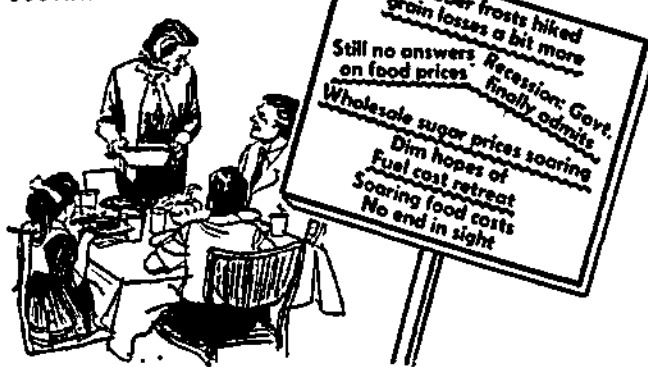

RIGHT NOW, JAUCH isn't using the electric car as a project for his classes because he teaches freshmen and "they don't know enough to help me design it," he says. Next semester he hopes to get a more advanced class involved in the project.

The car got its name from one of his students. Hector stands for "Help Everyone Conserve Today's Oil Resources" and replaced an earlier, unofficial name of "Herbie."

Once Jauch gets the car running, he says he plans to use it for experiments, to run around the campus and to help students understand some principles of electric power. "The prime thing I'm looking for is something simple," he says. "This isn't going to be any great new breakthrough in electric power."

Jauch also gets a gleam in his eye when he thinks about outfitting his car to run on the highway. "I live just five miles from here, so maybe I'll be able to use it to commute to work eventually," he says. "Can you imagine the problems the state would have trying to figure out what kind of license to give me?"

Schools

3 high schoolers off to Washington

High School Dist. 214

Three High School Dist. 214 students have been selected to participate in the 1975 Washington Workshops Congressional Seminar in Washington, D.C.

The three are Frank Grzesik, 215 Mulberry Ln., Elk Grove Village, junior, Elk Grove High School; Tricia Bowden, 620 S. Kaspar, Arlington Heights, sophomore, Rolling Meadows High School; and Kathleen McDonald, 1310 N. Dryden, Arlington Heights, senior, Arlington High School.

The three will attend one of 10 one-week seminars next year, held in cooperation with Mount Vernon College.

Participants travel daily to Capitol Hill where they will confer with members of Congress, Supreme Court Justices, Cabinet members and other officials.

The students also spend time observing the workings of the national government, attending sessions of the House, Senate and committees, and meeting individually with their own congressmen and senators.

The seminars are conducted by the Washington Workshops Foundation, a nonprofit, nonpartisan association founded in 1967.

Several Elk Grove High School students took honors over the weekend in the High School Dist. 214 Individual Events Speech Tournament, cohosted by Wheeling and Buffalo Grove high schools.

Larry Nepodahl and Nancy Loprieno tied for first in humorous duet acting. The pair also tied for second place in original comedy.

Liz Livesay won first in dramatic interpretation and second in verse reading. Ron Cohen took first place in original comedy. Sue Fritz and Donna Baumgarten took second in humorous duet acting. Terry Jacobsen and Theresa Healy took third in humorous duet acting.

High School Dist. 211

High School Dist. 211's annual college night will be at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Students from Palatine, Fremd, Hoffman Estates, Conant and Schaumburg high schools will have the chance to visit with representatives from 102 colleges and universities nationwide. The evening will be divided into four one-half hour sessions. Students can participate in any or all sessions.

College night is open to all sophomore, junior and senior students in Dist. 211 and their parents. Information on college programs and tuition will be given by the representatives.

The Conant High School Cougars' marching band will hold its first annual indoor concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the auditorium of Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The program will feature songs played by the band during the football season. Tickets for the concert will be available at the door and will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Two Schaumburg High School teachers will lead a group of students on a nine-day tour of Europe next spring.

Jill Hague, foreign language teacher, and Nancy Arner, English teacher, will accompany area students to London, Brussels, Amsterdam and Paris on a tour sponsored by The American Leadership Study Group. The program includes sightseeing, plays, concerts, museums, beaches, discotheques and plenty of time for shopping.

Students interested in joining the group next spring should contact the teachers at the school, 682-6200.

St. Viator High School

"Those Were the Days: The 1930s" is the topic of a production today at St. Viator High School.

The multi-media presentation, featuring many types of electronic equipment, will be made by members of Rick Trow Productions of Philadelphia.

The production will be at 1:45 p.m. and will include scenes and descriptions of politics, art, literature, music and sports popular during the 1930s so students may obtain an over-all glimpse of life during that decade.

Winterim—time for extra credit

Students will be able to pick up a semester's credit in some courses during the two-week "winterim" Jan. 6-18 at Harper College.

The "winterim" is made possible by a new college schedule that will end the first semester Dec. 21. Winterim will include courses from all academic areas and continuing education.

In addition, the student activities office is sponsoring a trip to Paris Jan. 2-10. Persons may take the trip if they take the travel-abroad course offered by Harper Continuing Education or an independent study course, Paris travel special.

Other courses to be offered include independent study in humanities and fine arts, mathematics and some business courses. Community services workshops will include creative dramatics, communication in the classroom, children's rights and executive mobility and family stress.

The Community Leadership Training Center will offer workshops in ferreting out corruption and grantsmanship. Continuing education courses will include transactional analysis and baking pies and pastries.

Municipal group seeks Daley as dinner speaker

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley is being sought as the speaker for the Jan. 15 annual dinner meeting of the Northwest Municipal Conference.

The dinner committee told the conference Wednesday that Daley may be available, depending on what his doctors say. A possible alternative would be the chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority, if one is appointed before January. The dinner will be at the Lancer Steak House, Schaumburg.

New officers for the conference will be Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zetke, president; Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis, secretary; and Streamwood Village Pres. Frank Schumacher, vice president.

The conference also approved a resolution supporting the North-eastern Illinois Planning Commission as official planning agency for water quality in the Chicago region. New federal regulations for water quality management allow local agents to be designated by the governor or by the municipalities of each area. Gov. Daniel Walker will schedule a public hearing on the water quality management agency selection before an agent is approved.

NIPC asked each of the 15 Northwest suburban municipalities in the conference to approve a supportive resolution. Similar requests are being made throughout the six-county metropolitan area.

The water quality planning is designed to meet federal goals of safe water for recreation, fish and wildlife by 1983 and elimination of all pollution in navigable waters by 1985.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Colitis cause unknown

I'm 37. For about six years I've had a severe case of ulcerative colitis. Seldom do I see any articles about it, and I find most people don't know what it is or anything about it.

A few weeks ago when I was released from the hospital, my doctor, the leading internist in this area, suggested an operation. This involves all of my colon and part of my small intestine.

My former doctor cautioned me continually about cancer. Some of my latest spells have been more emotional and I've had vomiting. Others have suggested I try having either allergy tests made or admitting myself to the state mental hospital for help before I go through the operation. What would you suggest?

I wish there were a good answer. The cause of ulcerative colitis is not known. And, we know just about as much about its treatment.

As you know the most common features of the disease are diarrhea, often with blood and mucus, and lower abdominal crampy pain. The symptoms are variable. Some people even have changes in the rectum or lower colon and have few, if any, noticeable symptoms. Others have severe diarrhea, hemorrhage and complications such as perforation of the colon.

It can be, and no doubt in your case is, a difficult disease. It can become chronic with recurring attacks of severe diarrhea and bleeding. Weight loss is common with it.

MILK AND MILK products seem to cause attacks in some patients. At one time it was believed that an allergic reaction to milk might be the cause. In any case I believe any one with this problem should avoid milk and milk products and goods made with lots of milk, like milk gravy and sauces.

Some cases seem to be started off with a diarrhea infectious illness. In some ways the disease acts like the immune mechanism of the body has gone haywire and the body is trying to reject the lining of the colon as foreign tissue. The disease, incidentally, can involve the rectum, colon, and terminal part of the small intestine.

I can't judge what you should do about surgery, but I can suggest that your fine internist has a good basis for his recommendation. Six years of trouble with involvement of the colon and terminal ileum tells me you have a severe case. Many patients do surprisingly well after surgery.

Cancer of the colon is much more common in patients with ulcerative colitis. And, less than 30 per cent of them survive five years if a cancer occurs. That is why your first doctor was concerned.

Don't waste your time on allergy tests. They won't help solve your problem. And, forget about the emotional problems, they often go along with the disease, and you may find out that your problems in this area are markedly improved when you have improved physically. Now, not everyone needs surgery for ulcerative colitis, but in selected cases that have not gone into remission and have not done well with good medical treatment, then it is often a good choice.

Scott backs Walker veto of bill to restrain pollution cleanup

Existing Illinois law is written to prevent pollution regulations from "destroying the economy," said Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott Wednesday. He urged state legislators not to override Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of a bill designed to determine the economic impact of cleanup regulations.

Scott said, the bill, Senate Bill 589, would hamstring state pollution control enforcement programs and could cost Illinois $250 million a year in federal funds for improved sewage treatment. The bill's provision for detailed studies of existing and proposed pollution control regulations "could be interpreted by the courts as requiring suspension of enforcement until the studies are done," he said.

If this happens, Scott said, the federal government might cut off the 75 per cent funding of sewage treatment plant construction in Illinois municipalities. Existing state law requires the Illinois Pollution Control Board to consider the economic impact of proposed environmental controls, he said.

Sims' superstition succeeds

The late P. Hal Sims was asked if he had a superstitious feeling about some particular card. He thought a while and replied: "The ace of spades is lucky for me."

Today's hand, illustrates another of Hal's superstitions. He believed firmly that if you did not want a certain opponent to get the lead, you should play him for holding a singleton king and refuse to finesse against his partner.

Playing at three notrump, Hal carefully won the heart lead with the king not the ace. He had to attack diamonds. If East got in with the king, East would read the ace as a falsecard from ace-king. He would not know if the king were a forced play; a falsecard from king-queen or a normal play from ace-king.

In any event Hal saw that his contract was safe unless East got in with the king of diamonds; shifted to a spade honor and found West with Hal's lucky ace of spades.

So at trick two Hal led the jack of diamonds; went right up with dummy's ace; plucked East's singleton king and came home with the bacon.

Heart patients 'need good examples'

Doctors also must curb smoking, heavy eating

DALLAS (UPI) — A heart specialist says doctors cannot expect their patients to give up smoking and watch their diets unless the physicians set a good example by doing it too.

Dr. John S. Schroeder of the Stanford University Medical School said it is important for persons who have had one heart attack to quit smoking, lose weight, eat a low cholesterol diet and exercise.

"I think we must be a model to our patients, though," Schroeder said Wednesday at the American Heart Assn. conference. "I think that's evident at these national meetings. Fewer physicians are smoking."

Signs at the conference say no smoking in the meeting rooms and no ashtrays are provided there.

DR. HENRY Blackburn of the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis said there are a number of ways to get patients to follow guidelines necessary to preventing subsequent heart attacks.

He said during an examination he will look at the patient's throat and ask him how much he smokes and then listen to his chest and ask him what brand.

"The least the doctor can do is to be authoritarian, put on his white coat and say 'This is what I believe for this reason,'" Blackburn said.

"We find if people commit themselves to a date to quit smoking they tend to stick to it better than if they just say 'Yes, doctor, I'll quit.' You let the patient decide how to do it — cold turkey or slowly."

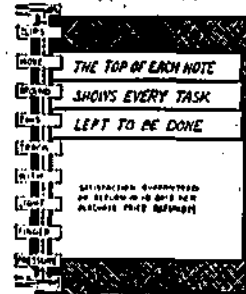

Blackburn said no matter how they quit, it's important they do it and not just cut down.

"We find that at about half a pack a day they just have to bite the bullet and quit," he said. "They can't just stay at that level. They tend to go back up."

Need for 'new faces' why Glass is supporting Fawell

A need for "new faces" in the Republican legislative leadership led state senators Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, and Terrell Clarke, R-Western Springs, to ally themselves behind State Sen. Harris Fawell for minority Senate leader, said Glass.

Glass said he and Clarke, who both sought election as minority leader, agreed in a meeting Tuesday night that neither could garner enough support to defeat State Sen. William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, present president of the Senate who is seeking reelection as GOP leader. Clarke opposed Harris for the position of president in 1973.

Sidestepping any criticism of Harris, Glass said he believed "things can be improved upon in the Senate."

"We want to restore fiscal responsibility and expand Republicanism in the legislature," Glass said. "It's just a matter of letting some new people come in (to the leadership)."

GLASS SAID HE remains interested in a position in the GOP Senate leadership, but has had no commitment from Fawell.

Acknowledging Fawell's reputation as

be necessary to elect the minority leader at the Republican Senate caucus Dec. 4. Fawell has served in the Senate since 1963, when he won the "Best Freshman" award of the Illinois Political Reporter. He has been cited twice by the Independent Voters of Illinois as "best legislator."

Group tabs Harper's Vaisvil as president

Fred Vaisvil, director of placement and student aids at Harper College, has been elected president of the Placement Assn. of Community Colleges and Employers of Illinois.

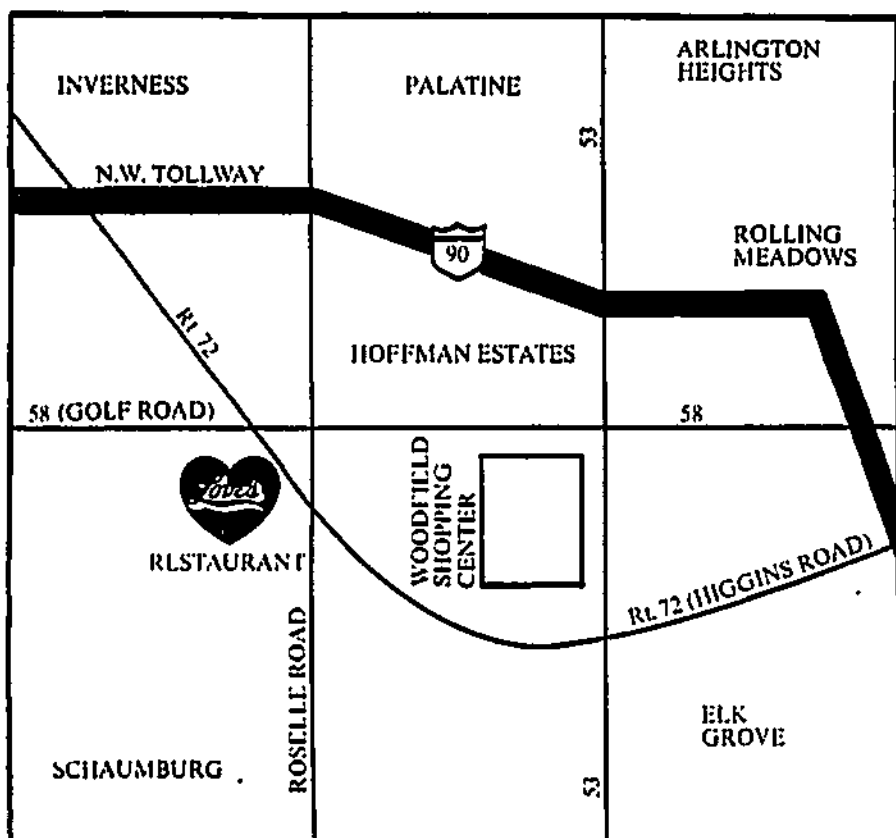

Vaisvil was a member of the steering committee that formed PAACE, an association that aims for effective placement and recruitment of graduates.

Vaisvil also has been named to the special employment committee of the Chicago Governmental College Relations Council.

a liberal Republican, Glass said of himself and Clarke, "We may not be in accord with his philosophies, but we know he has the experience, and he is a man of integrity."

Glass said he was confident that Fawell would articulate party positions "when that is appropriate" that reflect the views of the consensus of the Republican minority in the Senate.

Glass estimated that 10 of the 25 members of the GOP Senate contingent were committed to Fawell. Only 13 votes will

True Love's is hard to find. Without a map.

Why did we put Love's Restaurant where we did? Don't ask! The fact is, it's too late to move it. So. It takes a little effort to find Love's—but it's worth it. Because...

- Love's is:
- An absolutely unique dinner experience.
  - Hickory specialties (ribs, chicken, steaks and much more).
  - Generous cocktails.
  - Lovely prices.

For example: for $5.75! Chicken and Ribs! Tantalizing, succulent Pork Ribs and Barbecued Chicken basted with Love's original sauces. Including—choice of soup, dinner salad or Love's cole slaw—and—Love's barbecued beans, corn-on-the-cob, baked potato and hot biscuits.

True Love's may be a little hard to find... without a map. But now you have one. Besides. Where Golf and Higgins Roads cross, a triangle is formed—"Love's Triangle"—and that's always easy to find.

Love's opens every day at 3:00PM for our "Bolla Grande" Happy Hour. Dinner service begins at 4:00PM.

Herald opinion

A defeat for secrecy

By overwhelming votes, Congress this week overrode President Ford's veto of a bill which amended the federal Freedom of Information Act to guarantee broader public access to government information and documents.

The House vote Wednesday was 371-31; both Rep. Philip W. Crane, R-12th, and Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, voted to override. In the 65-17 Senate vote Thursday, both Illinois Sens. Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson supported the override.

The lopsided vote reflected the growing concern among all citizens as well as news media over government by secrecy and the public's inaccessibility to public records.

In vetoing the House-Senate measure, the President surrendered to the fear of an open society that increasingly seems endemic to Washington — even in the wake of Watergate.

The federal bureaucracy is rife with officials who want their actions reported and interpreted in the most favorable light; who say and do things which they find convenient to keep in a locked drawer under the guise of undefined "national security" interests; who feel they know best what the public should — and should not — know about the public's business.

The original Freedom of Information Act was passed in 1966, but government bureaucrats found loopholes to make it relatively ineffective. These amendments strengthen the law by speeding up the informational process, shortening the time for government to respond to requests for information, providing disciplinary action for officials who attempt to thwart the law and providing judicial review of contested cases.

To justify his veto of the proposed revisions, President Ford expressed fears — a fear that "confidentiality would not be maintained if . . . investigatory law enforcement files would be subject to compulsory disclosure," a fear that diplomatic and military secrets "might" be endangered. Such concerns are specious.

The great names of American history were not those who were fearful or imposed censorship and secrecy. They were those who dug the foundation of our freedoms and fought to preserve and protect them because they recognized that without knowledge there can be no free society.

These freedoms — to know, to inquire, to criticize, to dissent — are now more than 180 years old in this nation. It is a sobering fact that each generation has had to review those freedoms and to validate them. And so it is today.

The Freedom of Information amendments represent a major — and essential — step to opening the federal bureaucracy to the people.

We commend the Congress for their votes. Their action reinforces the words of one of the country's most revered of jurists, the great Learned Hand: "The First Amendment presupposes that right conclusions are more likely to be gathered out of a multitude of tongues, than through any kind of authoritative selection. To many this is, and always will be, folly, but we have staked upon it our all."

School files now open

Previously closed school records are now open for parental inspection, under a new federal law which we encourage parents to use in a responsible manner.

On Wednesday, the law went into effect and permitted parents, and students older than 18 years of age, to inspect school records and request a hearing to challenge the contents of those records. (In Illinois, a guideline without the force of law has permitted such inspections for several years.)

Some school officials are concerned that the federal law may make counselors and psychologists reluctant to be candid in written reports on students. Critics argue that schools will merely keep counseling records in the principal's office, thus keeping them out of the hands of parents.

It must be remembered, however, that erroneous information unchecked by parents has been permitted to remain in some students' files, thus dogging students through school and perhaps into adulthood. The best kind of corrective to such abuses is openness, and we believe the new federal law will encourage much more accuracy in school record keeping.

Parents, however, must be responsible in examining records and must understand that much information on file is subjective. Many local school districts have a counselor on hand to explain school records to parents; in this way, misunderstandings about a student's records can be avoided.

This dual school-parent responsibility means that the education of children can become increasingly a two-way process, in which parents and school personnel participate. That's the way education should operate.

Presidency no hardship to 'enthusiastic' Ford

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, it appears, cannot understand why his predecessors bemoaned their awesome burden and viewed the presidency as a hardship.

Ford has stated unequivocally that he will definitely run for the presidency in 1976, because he "enjoys" being president.

Those may or may not be the words of a president in his infancy. He has yet to suffer a major crisis, although his quick pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon cost him support and upset many of his followers.

He naturally wants to win his own place in the White House and to carve out a place in history. Two years, any president would agree, is too short a time.

But now Ford has cleared the air. He has told other Republican hopefuls that it is too late for them. He also is trying to assure other world leaders that he has continuity in leadership and is making commitments that will hold up in the future.

But confident and secure as he is, Ford plans to run as an underdog. He says he must run with the feeling that he is going to lose — the way he has always run — and won.

Two years is not too long to have a hat in the ring. And from the White House podium, Ford knows he carries commanding prestige.

He can grab headlines every day by making news. If he whips inflation and recession, political analyst Richard Scammon says, he will be impossible to beat.

Ford is not going to be stampeded into bold dramatic actions, even to enhance his standing.

In fact, he appears wedded to some of the philosophical ideas he had in Congress, with no opportunity to hold sway. But there is the crack going around Washington that says: "I wish he would start running the presidency and stop acting like a congressman."

Ford would be the first to reject the idea that his is a "caretaker" government. Come January, he believes his programs will come more into focus.

But most of his own supporters are hard put to say where the United States stands on many leading is-

ues. His administration in many ways is still on a shakedown cruise. Some of his critics believe he cannot get a grip on the executive branch to guide its future over the next several months.

By January, Ford was expected to drop many members of the Nixon holdover Cabinet, though many are resisting. When asked whether Nixon appointees should not leave, Labor Secretary Peter Brennan told an interviewer with a smile: "Ford is a Nixon appointee."

Ford is open to new ideas and has a campaign underway to solicit the views of outsiders. He is not afraid to change his mind, although he indicates a show-me attitude.

As the next campaign rolls around, he may broaden his base and keep his door open to the reflections of others, even the opposition which is something his predecessor never did.

Ford apparently can take it as well as dish it out. When he learned that Sen. Sam Ervin of Watergate fame had twitted him for not being "so smart" in a TV broadcast, Ford wanted to hear the tape.

More and more he puts himself in Harry S. Truman's shape and he always remembers how scrappy Truman was when the going got rough.

Like Truman he may take his case to the people if Congress remains stubbornly opposed. And like Truman, he may win in 1976.

The main obstacle to his running appeared to be his wife Betty who recently underwent cancer surgery, but now she says his decision to get a new lease on the White House is "great."

County line

Panic time for taxpayers

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

The post-tax homeowners' panic begins in suburbia when the Cook County treasurer's roster of delinquent taxpayers is published in local newspapers.

I. M. Broke, of Poverty Lane, is one of 7,069 Northwest suburban persons from five townships listed this month on Treasurer Bernard Korzen's "who's who" among non-taxpayers. The local total of unpaid real estate taxes tops $11.5 million.

Broke prepared for eviction this week. His house was number 03-99-107-000 on the Korzen list that warned in small print of imminent sale for overdue taxes. "They're coming to get me, all for $13," Broke sobbed.

Broke's story began in August when Korzen sent a tax bill that was outrageously high. A total of 14 telephone calls and three wasted days later, Broke was in Assessor P. J. Cullerton's branch office in Arlington Heights to protest the overassessment that caused the tax bill.

The Cullerton officials promised a decision on the protest within weeks. Broke paid part of his taxes and waited for an assessment ruling.

Broke waited and waited. Early August turned into the Sept. 15 tax payment deadline. September turned into October and Korzen's cash register began adding interest to the due taxes. Then, in November, Broke became number 03-99-107-000 on Korzen's delinquent list.

Homeless, furniture in the street and rejected by his neighbors, Broke feared that the worst was coming when county tax sales begin in December.

However, through another round of telephone calls, Broke learned that the county planned to sell the amount of taxes due to a friendly collection firm which could bid semi-annual interest of 12 per cent for the right to send collection notices, place legal ads and seek court title to the property two years later.

Homeowners like Broke "are the people who should be concerned," a spokesman for County Assessor P. J. Cullerton said. "If they haven't paid their taxes and are waiting for results, they should give us the number of the complaint and we will process it immediately."

As Broke knows, Cullerton's phone number is 443-5300. Cullerton's real estate division is at 443-5308.

"Should I pay the $13?" Broke was asking.

Cullerton and Korzen aides say, "Yes . . . pay now and wait for a tax rebate." Broke predicted that chances of a sunrise in the west are better than possibilities of a tax rebate by the county.

In another suburb, Broke's cousin also was sputtering about county tax procedures. Two weeks ago, the cousin, a homeowner in the New Town area of Mount Prospect, received a bill for back taxes from 1970, 1971 and 1972. Within days, Korzen's delinquent list was published and cousin Broke was listed with his neighbors for about $1,000.

"This makes me look like a criminal," said cousin Broke who was not taxed for three years, due to a county error. "I know I owe the money, but they could have given me time to pay before putting me on that list."

The back taxes technically are not due until early December because Korzen must allow 30 days for payment after mailing before penalty interest begins.

Other homeowners who actually paid their taxes or who obtained Homestead Exemptions also were named by Korzen. The property owners who won certificates of error or exemptions were listed in front of an asterisk because county tax books show a balance due. "These people have nothing to fear and are protected," the Cullerton spokesman said.

Broke's fear, like that of other taxpayers, is the interest and costs that are tacked to the back taxes as the days pass. The system, in the short run, says that winning is impossible. If the homeowner's loss is not in money, it's the time and frustration of bouncing from the assessor, to the county clerk and to the treasurer in the county's mis-meshed tax machine gears.

Broke now knows that the county's tax system cries for improvement.

Not too open!

'No vote fraud here'

Your article concerning a voting machine not working in Precinct 19, Wheeling Township, was false. It was also irresponsible reporting to include this falsehood under the headline, "Vote Fraud Complaints Flood Area."

The election judges in this precinct are conscientious and dedicated people who did an excellent job as usual. They are Shirley McDougall, Jack Guilfoyl Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Davis and Arnette Bloome.

There was a line of voters after 5 p.m. (also at many other precincts). In fact, there were two lines, one for each machine. At 6 p.m. one line was shorter than the other line. Due to the physical location of the machines, the people in the long line then moved faster and possibly created the impression that one machine was not working.

I think your article was unfair to the judges and a printed apology in order.

School coverage hit

I am a student at Wheeling High School and I would like to comment on the fact that Wheeling never gets recognized in The Herald while many other schools do.

For example, Buffalo Grove got their homecoming queen and some of their sports events published and Wheeling's homecoming queen was not even mentioned, not alone published.

Another example of this is when Wheeling won their only football game this year, the day after this was not even mentioned, while when Hersey lost to Schaumburg, there was a front page picture mentioning that Hersey had lost and more details were in Sports. I do realize that the Hersey-Schaumburg game was or more importance, but I see no reason that Wheeling does not get very much or none at all, recognition while other high schools do.

JFK just a textbook name to today's schoolchildren

by LINDA PUNCH

Most Americans remember Jack Kennedy the man — husband, father, touch football player.

But school children of the Northwest suburbs see another person — John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 1961-63, 35th President of the United States.

Eleven years after his death, Kennedy has taken his place in the gallery of former Presidents. His life is condensed into short paragraphs, sandwiched between equally dry biographies of Dwight D. Eisenhower and Lyndon B. Johnson:

"John F. Kennedy, Democrat from Massachusetts . . . Navy PT boat commander . . . representative and senator . . . Irish Catholic from Boston . . . first Catholic President . . . youngest man elected president . . . assassinated Nov. 22, 1963."

IN MOST TEXTBOOKS, Kennedy's years in office are summed up in boldface chapter headings — The Election of 1960, The Peace Corps,

The Cuban Missile Crisis, The Civil Rights Act of 1964, President Kennedy is Shot. Kennedy the human being is secondary to Kennedy the historical figure.

One eighth grade textbook describes Kennedy as "a man of grace and wit, (he) had an appeal that affected young people especially. His followers saw him as a new model of a democratic leader."

A high school textbook speaks of Kennedy's "attractive public image . . . the more glamorous of the two (presidential) candidates . . . the boyishly handsome young President and his beautiful wife . . . setting a new note in style and verve."

But most history books describe Kennedy only in terms of his presidential actions: "President Kennedy warned the Soviet government to destroy the Soviet bases in Cuba . . . refused to give up Berlin . . . tried to get better housing for Negroes."

TEXTBOOK PUBLISHERS say the dehumanization of Kennedy is a normal process of history.

"Textbook writers can't make value judgments. We try to avoid them," said Daniel Ryan, editorial director for Harper and Row Publishers Inc.

Rayan notes that "after a certain amount of time has passed, we're able to put things in perspective."

"We don't romanticize anybody — we just try to present them in such a fashion that people can make their own judgments," he said.

ONE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL textbook reflects in a passage on Kennedy's death:

" . . . Millions of Americans gathered around television sets to watch the dramatic events which ended with the burial of the President in Arlington National Cemetery. In sorrow, they could take strength from the courage which the President's widow displayed, but the style and the wit of the man were no longer with them."

International pet show comes to Arlington

Arlington Park will be the scene of the International Pet Show Saturday and Sunday, featuring exhibits and entertainment.

The show, from noon to 10 p.m. both days, will feature exhibits by manufacturers and dealers, a petting zoo, livestock exhibits, animal performances, and question-and-answer booths for pet owners.

The pet show, open to owners of any pet, requires a $5 entry fee. Entrants may call 348-3181 to register their animal. Trophies will be awarded to winning entries.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children under 10 years of age. Visitors should enter at Gate 5 off Euclid Avenue, where tickets will be available.

Sacrifices' function: breach opponent's king

The most dramatic function of some sacrifices is the breach of the opponent's king position. If all goes well, the aggressor's pieces swarm into and through the broken position and over the exposed king.

Obviously, the increased activity given to the attacking pieces is the key element. Thus, a sacrifice only achieves what all less flamboyant moves aspire to achieve — piece activation and irresistible force.

Despite the relative scarcity of pieces, substantial sacrifices may occur in the endgame, though here the marauding elements will be more modest: an advanced pawn and an active king, for instance.

WE HAVE SEEN in our previous column how the centralization of the king may confer a winning advantage in the endgame. No better example may be seen than in the game shown in Diagram 1. But in this instance it will be the sacrifice of a rook for bishop, which will unleash the powers of the king.

White's 1. RxB loses a fury on the black position. After the recapture 1... PxB, the king decisively enters with 2. K-Q4! The queen pawn must fall. And the white bishop, king, and pawns are (Diagram 3), we can immediately recognize there is no black defense to white's threatened B-K5 check, which will furnish the last fillip for the advanced queen knight's pawn.

brutal and perhaps too easy, it is a model of piece activation.

Irresistible against the less active black pieces.

The scenario is crude and effective. One of the doubled white pawns will be exchanged for black's last queenside pawn (white's only serious obstacle). The connected, passed pawns will make white's task child's play.

The first stage of white's winning procedure is achieved quickly with 2. K-Q4, K-K2; 3. KxP, K-Q2; 4. P-N4, R-K1; 5. P-B6 check, K-B1; 6. P-QB4, R-K4 check; 7. K-Q4, PxP; 8. K xP... (Diagram 2).

NOW THE BLACK KING is in defensive position, and the rook is more active. But these gains have come to the defender too late. The two advanced pawns, effectively bolstered by the white king and bishop simply are unstoppable.

After 8... R-K7; 9. P-N5, R-B7 check; 10. K-Q3, R-R7; 11. B-B3, R-P; 12. P-N6, R-KB7; 13. P-N7 check, K-N1; 14. BxP

IT'S A GREAT FEELING TO DRIVE AN OLDSMOBILE

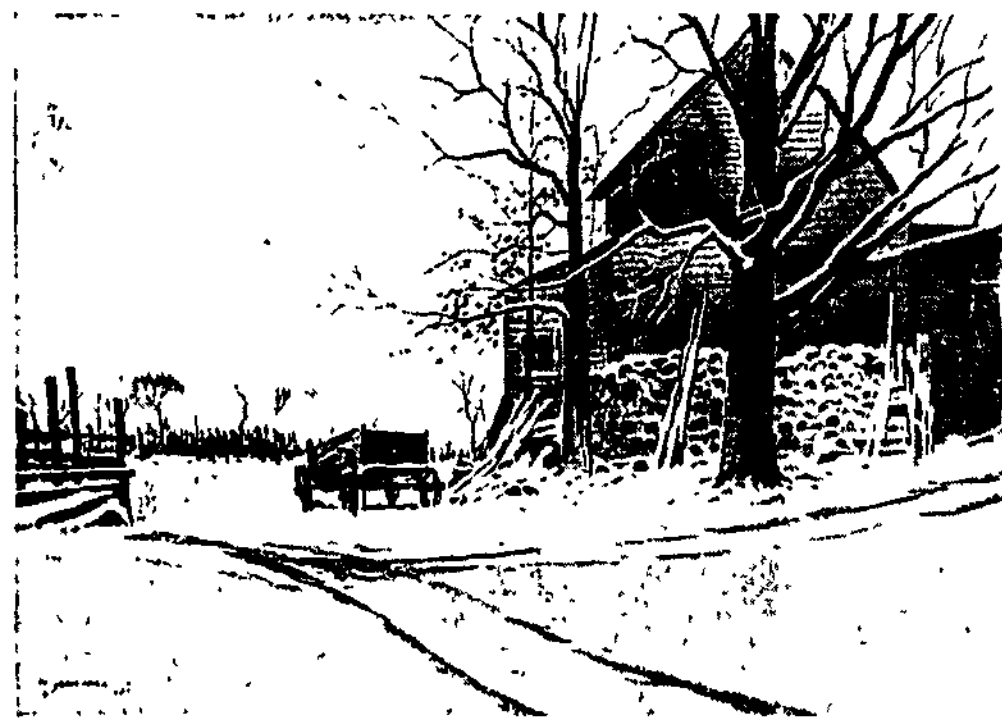

THIS WATERCOLOR was suggested by an old home in Palatine. But Barkman improved on it, adding a front porch. The artist enjoys walking around Palatine because many old residences remind him of his home.

MICHAEL BARKMAN completes a watercolor, entitled "Dickens' Place," since reprinted as one of a series of four Christmas cards. Barkman remembers this scene well because it was the home of his uncle.

ANOTHER SCENE that Barkman vividly recalls is entitled "Kinzer's Farm." The Christmas cards are just now available to stationery stores.

Artist captures past on Christmas cards

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Michael Barkman is native to a small farming community in the mountainous region of Bedford County, Penn.

He's never tried to forget the rural, neighborly scenes of his youth because few places like that are left to experience. For that reason Barkman often recalls and records how he used to live.

The Palatine artist paints hometown scenes as he remembers them, instilling a respect for the past intrinsic to his small town heritage.

He's not one to put down the suburbs, having moved here with his family, though he does lament certain architectural losses attributable to modernization. Like wide front porches for instance, Barkman misses them. They are what he remembers most of all.

"WHERE I LIVED, the front porch signified homeliness, an open invitation for anyone to come up and sit down. Of course, I did grow up in an area where almost everyone was related to everyone else."

Having now joined the transient American society himself, the watercolorist knows his recollections are old-fashioned. But he also feels it's what people desire to see . . . particularly around holiday time.

It seems only natural that he publicize his warm feeling and genuine yearning for the rural setting at a time of year when everyone appears a bit more compassionate and mindful of "the good old days."

Barkman has had four of his favorite scenes reproduced on Christmas cards. All but one are of Pennsylvania . . . his uncle's farm with a winter's supply of wood stacked neatly up against a shed . . . two youngsters heading home at dusk, making their way through open fields of snow with sleds in tow.

BUT ONE OF THE four was suggested by an older home in Palatine. Barkman twinged when he first saw the house. It reminded him of his own former home. Except the front porch. The Palatine house has none.

"In renovation it most likely was removed," he said. The painter remedied the situation by adding one to his liking.

Barkman's career in business has moved him and his family first to upper state New York and later to California, a place where his painting starved for lack of tradition and country heritage.

Having settled in Palatine two years ago, Barkman now enjoys seeing many of the old white clapboard homes intact, akin to those in the farming community in which he grew up. Inspired he again began exploring his memory, using watercolors to express on paper his recollections.

HE PREFERS THAT medium because "watercolors are a very spontaneous thing. Either you're right the first time or you start all over again. It's an immediate thing."

About the series of Christmas cards he's entitled "The Evening Before," Barkman comments, "They nostalgically reminded me of my home and those of my friends. I cannot look into a lighted window of a frame house at this time of year without hearing that familiar call from the porch to come in for dinner."

Inflation crisis

Wolf's at the door of British theater

by GREGORY JENSEN

That gurgling sound you hear is the British theater going under.

"The British theater faces bankruptcy," said Trevor Nunn, artistic director of the Royal Shakespeare Company and a man not given to mincing words.

"Costs have risen astronomically just at the time when audiences can least afford to pay economic prices," Nunn said. "Inflation has hit everyone in this country, but it has devastated the theater."

Legitimate theater in both London and New York suffers economic crises as regularly as summer follows spring. But this time British theater men are crying "wolf" because the wolf actually is at the door. Prices in London are rising more than 17 per cent a year. Some theater costs are skyrocketing much faster than that — heating, cloth for costumes, paper for programs, wood for sets.

This year, too, the number of American tourists has dropped 20 per cent, and Americans are staunch patrons of Britain's stage. A tax on tickets is another millstone weighing down a drowning theater, although legitimate theater in London is a lot cheaper than on Broadway. For these reasons all theater has gone off the deep end, not just the heavily subsidized giants.

"A substantial number" of out-of-London theaters "will be in deficit at the end of the year to such an extent that it will not be possible for the Arts Council to bail them out," said Sir Hugh Willatt, general secretary of the subsidy-giving Arts Council.

ON THE COMMERCIAL stage, a London version of the Broadway musical "A Little Night Music" due to open this month, was scrapped because no one would gamble its $350,000 cost. "It would have been madness to proceed in this economic climate," producer Richard Philpott said. Other plans for lavish musicals are in doubt.

"Successful shows are doing very well," said John Gale, president of the Society of West End Theater Managers. "But the middle shows are struggling. Ticket prices aren't up all that much, but the cost of an evening out — the whole package — is up astronomically."

Peter Hall's topflight National Theater, another of the giants, is bewildered and reeling from an unalloyed disaster. "We're back to square one," a spokesman said.

Hall expected a massive deficit this year, hoping to make it up next year when the National moved from the small Old Vic to its multimillion dollar, three auditorium building next April. Now the opening of the new building has been delayed. No one knows when it will be ready.

"We've had to cancel commitments with about 120 very disappointed actors," the spokesman said. "And if course, the delay is very expensive. At the moment nobody can say what our deficit will be. Everything's back in the melting pot."

NUNN'S ROYAL Shakespeare company will be $460,000 in the red this year, an official said. And that's just the tip of the iceberg. To raise cash, Nunn is sending productions to Broadway wholesale — two there now, with another touring the United States and more to come. He has launched a new theater membership scheme and plans a public appeal for donations.

"We have to hope that it will bring in something around 750,000 pounds ($1.7 million), which is the sort of figure we need," he said.

"Many smaller theaters are faced with closure," said Sir George Farmer, chairman of the Royal Shakespeare's governors. Major companies like his own face a drastic cut in output.

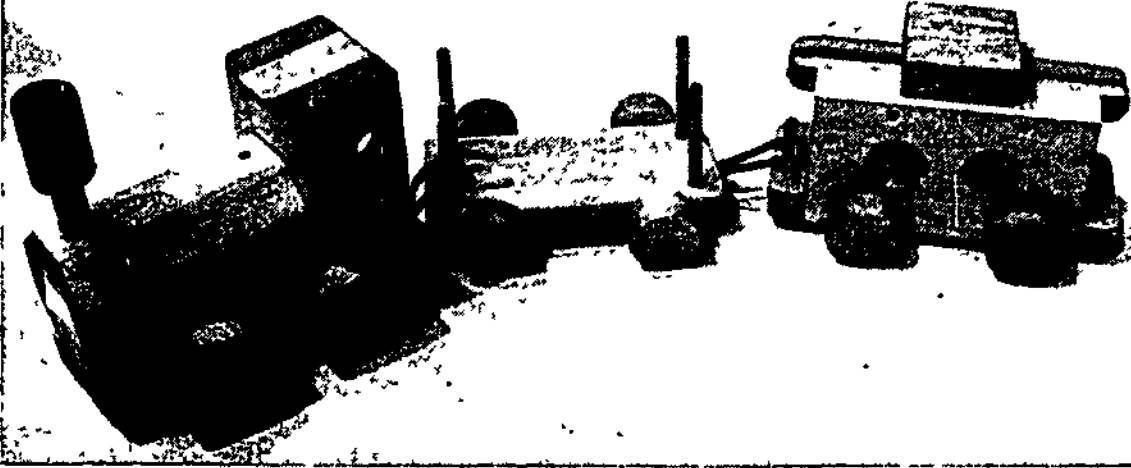

"This could have a shattering effect on confidence in the arts that could last for more than a generation," Farmer said. "Internationally that would be seen as a very sad day for Britain."

Designer's market

everyone

IT'S THAT TIME of year again. The Designer-Craftsman Market at Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights is in full swing. And what a selection — pottery, enamels, fibers and jewelry that exhibit the finest in craftsmanship. Though most of it is all for show, there are functional items, too, like leather purses and earthenware. A special "members only" display focusing on dolls, toys, decorative mirrors and ornaments, is set up in the back room. The items may not carry as much prestige, but prices are much easier to handle.

'Cuckoo's Nest' returning for two extra performances

A return engagement of The Guild Players' fall production "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" will be presented Friday and Saturday, Dec. 6 and 7, at Vogelstein Barn, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The Dale Wasserman stage adaptation of the Ken Kesey novel met with such critical and popular acclaim for the four performances in October that arrangements have been negotiated for two additional performances featuring the same

Little exciting in latest Helen Reddy

Helen Reddy's new album, "Free and Easy" (Capitol Records), is very uneventful with one exception.

With this her sixth album, Miss Reddy has settled in a kind of middle-of-the-road groove. The results, as on this album, are often pleasant even if they do lack excitement.

The most unusual song — and not coincidentally the album's best — is "Angie Baby," which is her new single. It is a well produced gothic song about this possibly crazy girl who can materialize lovers out of air and music or dematerialize the boy next door.

For the rest of the album, it is much what one would expect. There is the expected Paul Williams song ("Loneliness") which he has just released on his own "A Little Bit of Love" album and songs by Don McLean, Mark James and Jeff Barry. The Pointer Sisters lend their voices to "Showbiz," the album's final song.

TWO OTHER SONGS of interest are "Free and Easy" and "I'll Be Your Audience." Both songs typify what Reddy and other established song interpreters are most valuable for other than the entertainment their own performances bring. It is the using of material by young or unknown songwriters, who through the experience of having a "star" record their material start to receive the recognition they deserve.

"Free and Easy" was written by California Tom Jans, who includes it on his first solo album, called "Tom Jans" (A&M records). Jans is best known for his performances and writing with Mimi Fariña. However, he has written "Loving Arms" (again included in his own album) which both Dobie Gray and the duo of Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge recorded. Jans also has had his material recorded by Frank Sinatra, Elvis Presley, Paul Williams and Tammy Wy-ette, to mention just a few. Jans' album is mostly ballads and soft rockers with an occasional country touch. In addition to the two songs mentioned, the other highlights are "Margaret" and "Blue Sky Writer." He wrote eight of the 10 songs, reaching to Jackie DeShannon and Troy Seals for the other two.

"I'll Be Your Audience," sung by Miss Reddy, was written by newcomer Becky Hobbs and her guitarist Lewis Anderson. Her debut album is "Becky Hobbs" (MCA records).

Miss Hobbs is a young southern blues singer, alternating the harsh and soft sound such as Janis Joplin, whose voice she slightly resembles, made famous. Born in Oklahoma, traces of the twang can be heard in Miss Hobbs' voice. All the album's songs are written by either her or Anderson.

I prefer the original version of "I'll Be Your Audience" which is found here. Miss Hobbs gets more emotion into the song. More lyrical, but as fine or better, are two ballads, "I Don't Know Why" and "Sorry To Bring Your New World Down." Another good shout is "Can't Stop Being Your Fool."

Of the three albums — Reddy, Jans or Hobbs — I like the Hobbs album the best. She could become a big star very soon and then this album will be picked up on by all those who overlooked it the first time. (The song probably was picked for the Reddy album because Miss Reddy's husband, Jeff Wald, owns the company that manages both singers.)

MIKE MCGEAR is Paul McCartney's younger brother and a member of the successful British trio Scaffold who perform songs, poetry and satire. McGear changed his name so as not to cash in on his brother's success, but happily McGear turned to his brother, whose group Wings had just broken up, for his first solo album.

by Tom Von Malder

"McGear" (Warner Bros. records) is the bright, engaging result. McGear sings leads and wrote most of the lyrics, but McCartney wrote most of the music, produced the album and performs along with wife Linda and Wings guitarist Denny Laine.

There is the McCartney stamp all over the album and it is all for the good. McGear by himself proves not to be a bad singer, either. The best songs are a version of Brian Ferry's "Sea Breezes," McCartney's "What Do We Really Know?" (which opens with a brief snatch of "Taxman") and a brief snatch of McCartney's rocker "Givin' Grease a Ride" and the epic, slightly scary "The Man Who Found God On the Moon."

The album is a must for McCartney fans.

THE FOURTH Harry Chapin album is "Verities & Balderdash" (Elektra records) and like the previous albums it has both strengths and weaknesses.

This time, Chapin has played down the song epics he has become famous/infamous for (it depends whether you liked "Taxi" or "Sniper"). The only one is "What Made America Famous?", which is pretty ridiculous in its contention that "short-haired" firemen would not go to rescue some kids from a burning building because they had "dropped out" and wore long hair.

Chapin does better this time on the songs that deal with the emotions of one person, such as the man on "Halfway To Heaven" who is tempted after 15 years of marriage by a secretary, the father's lament about lack of communication between generations in "Cat's In the Cradle" and the love story of "Shooting Star."

Chapin treads a thin line between empathy and pomposity and his failures still remain too numerous. But when he succeeds, he makes all the effort worthwhile.

Paul Hawkins wins Hammy

Paul Hawkins of Schaumburg received the Guild Players' Hammy Award for his performance in the role of Randall P. MacMurphy in Dale Wasserman's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

The traveling Hammy, a wooden piglet that is patterned off the movie industry's Oscar, is presented to the best performer in each of the Guild's productions.

Guild Players is celebrating its 17th year as a community theater group. Though based in Hoffman Estates, membership is open to all area residents interested in community theater.

The next play produced by the Guild will be Agatha Christie's "Mousetrap" to be staged in February. Auditions for the mystery thriller will be held early in the new year. Further information concerning the community group is available through 882-7498.

Kathryn Kucera, Mount Prospect artist, is one of three women whose work will be featured at Artemisia Gallery next Tuesday through Dec. 21.

The gallery, located at 226 E. Ontario St. in Chicago, is a women's coop, formed to increase the coverage and appreciation of work by female artists.

cast under the direction of Vic Simone, Hoffman Estates. Curtain time is 8:30 both nights.

This is the first time in the 16-year history of The Guild Players that a production has been extended beyond its original dates. As not more than 325 people can be accommodated for these two performances and since there has been a heavy demand for tickets, The Players suggest early reservations. Readers may get ticket information by calling 885-3897, 882-7498 or 829-9262.

Jazz bands at Meadows High

Music Boosters of Rolling Meadows High School will present a series of concerts by world renowned jazz bands. First in the series is Stan Kenton and his orchestra, scheduled to perform in the Meadows High auditorium, 2901 Central Rd., Monday, Dec. 2.

Maynard Ferguson and his orchestra will make their third appearance at Rolling Meadows High School in the second of the jazz series Tuesday, Jan. 23. The third concert Monday, Feb. 24, will feature Woody Herman and his orchestra.

Season tickets are on sale now for $10. Individual tickets cost $4 so the season ticket saves $2. Group orders of 10 or more tickets are available at a 10 per cent discount and complimentary tickets will be given group directors. Such orders must be paid by next Wednesday, Nov. 27.

Further information about the jazz concert series may be obtained by calling 259-9640 or 255-7065.

Chef moves up

The new manager of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel is Eugene R. Scanlan, who has set some precedents on the way to this post, which finds him to be the first chef anywhere to attain such a position in a major hotel. Before, he was the first native American to be executive chef of a prominent hotel, followed by another first as director of food and beverage and a director of the hotel corporation. He came to the Waldorf in 1942 as a kitchen apprentice under the legendary Cereas

'Marriage-Go-Round' opening next weekend

"The Marriage-Go-Round," Village Theatre's first presentation of its 25th anniversary year, will open at Prospect High School Thanksgiving weekend. First performance is Friday, Nov. 29, with others set for Nov. 30 and again Dec. 6 and 7.

Hank Vandenboom of Wheeling is directing this comedy about the ordeals of a happily married pair of professors whose life is disrupted by the arrival of a beautiful Swedish girl determined to seduce the husband.

Tickets are $3 for Friday and $3.50 for Saturday with a $1.50 student rate for Friday only. Tickets may be reserved by calling 259-3200.

James Darren forsakes Gidget for nightclubs

by GENIE CAMPBELL

It seems a shame a first-rate entertainer needs to find a gimmick first to gain recognition.

Take JAMES DARREN, for instance. He'd never have had opportunity to hit the nightclub circuit if it weren't for his prior role of Moondoggie in "Gidget." But some people must have liked watching him and Sandra Dee cavort about because there was more . . . "Gidget Goes Hawaiian" and "Gidget Goes to Rome."

But forget all that. A very poised, white-suited James Darren is on stage in the BLUE MAX without Gidget and though many of his songs seem repetitions in arrangement, his show is easy to listen to and includes tunes that demonstrate his ability to sing.

His country medley of "Husbands and Wives" is a favorite of the evening and "The Last Blues Song" puts real sparkle into the show. Darren's musical conductor is Eric Knight. The Blue Max show at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare is further enhanced by a 13-piece orchestra, but comedian JOHN REGIS, who proceeds Darren, should be run out of town.

This year turkey is cheaper by the pound, but if Thanksgiving to you means relaxing and dining out, plenty of restaurants in the area are prepared to accommodate that whim. Prices for most special Thanksgiving menus are quite reasonable.

THE GREENHOUSE in Countryside Shopping Mall, Palatine, is offering not only Turkey with all the trimmings at $3.50 for adults, $3.50 for children, but also sirloin steak at twice that price and broiled Lake Superior whitefish at a figure right in between.

The same $3.50 for a turkey dinner holds at CARSON INN NORDIC HILLS in the Scandinavian Club and INDIAN LAKES COUNTRY CLUB. An interesting side dish at Nordic Hills is beef goulash. That's in case you don't like turkey.

HUGO'S at THE HYATT REGENCY O'HARE is featuring turkey and nut dressing at $6.60 per person, $4.25 for children, though more informal dining with no reservations necessary is available in THE GARDEN TERRACE.

Thanksgiving buffet dinners where you can literally stuff yourself, and return for still more, are being offered at ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS at $7.95 for adults, $4.95 for children and at the CHICAGO MARRIOTT MOTOR HOTEL at $7.75 for adults, $4 for children.

PICKWICK HOUSE in Palatine is serving Thanksgiving dinner family style at $4 per person for a minimum party of six and $3.75 per person for 10 persons or more. The restaurant is also offering a continental champagne brunch between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. next Thursday.

New openings include MAMIE VAN DOREN now entertaining in the TOP OF THE TOWERS through Dec. 7 and SERGIO MENDES & BRAZIL '77 with THE MIRACLES beginning Tuesday at GOLF MILL and continuing through next Sunday, Dec. 1.

The new DRURY LANE EAST THEATRE in McCormick Place will officially open Dec. 4 with GINGER ROGERS in "FORTY CARATS."

The new theater, housed in a refurbished meeting room located in the southwest end of the lakefront complex, will offer both general admission as well as a dinner/theater combination.

Dinner made available two hours before curtain time will be served in McCormick Place's President's Walk Restaurant or the Lindheimer Room.

If you have a good crepe recipe, take it over to THE MAGIC PAN in Woodfield Shopping Center and you might win a dinner for four.

Magic Pan is sponsoring a "Favorite Crepe Recipe Contest" until Thanksgiving after which the competing recipes will be tested in the kitchen. The winning one will be featured as an entree on the menu until Christmas.

The recipes may be for dinner or dessert crepes and will be judged on originality, flavor and appearance.

TOM THUMB Players open their 29th season Friday, Nov. 29, with the Rogers and Hammerstein musical "Cinderella." Andrea Rukower, Arlington Heights, and Ralph Bartuch, Des Plaines, have roles in the musical classic. All performances are at 2:30 p.m. at Tom Thumb Theatre, 2323 W. Devon, Chicago. Nine Saturday and Sunday matinees will be given Dec. 1-Jan. 5.

Mini shops for artisans

Craftsmen are always looking for a place to exhibit their work. That's what Jim Connors and his partner, Jim Thompson, are counting on.

In their new venture, The French Quarter, officially opening Dec. 1 at Countryside Shopping Mall in Palatine, there will be nine individual "mini shops" where artisans may buy space by the month to show their work.

Connors, who for three years traveled around the world, has himself stockpiled a collection of artwork that he wishes to sell. For two years he searched for just the right store. Now he feels he has found it at Countryside Mall, though the floor space available was more than enough for his own needs.

That's when Connors came up with the idea to share the room and the overhead by partitioning off small cubicles and allowing other craftsmen and artists from the area to rent exhibiting space.

THE $350 FEE is steep enough to rule out part-time hobbyists though Connors places no real stipulations on his potential renters. Except to say, "If I like it, it will go in."

In addition to saving space for his own office and small import shop that will feature wood carvings, silk and rice prints, gold and silver jewelry, batik and some paintings, items priced from $10 to $400, Connors plans to open a French pastry and coffee shop. It's in keeping with his international theme.

Utilizing a cosmopolitan approach in the decorating scheme, the row of small cubicles resembles a street of European shops.

Connors feels there are enough craftsmen in the area who, though not interested in opening shops of their own, would enjoy a place to exhibit periodically.

Further information concerning the "mini shops" in The French Quarter is available through Connors, 358-5595.

Caroling scheduled at Countryside Mall

Countryside Mall at Northwest Highway (Rt. 14) & Baldwin road, Palatine, is inviting church choirs and school choral groups to perform at the Mall during Christmas season.

Children's groups are being scheduled for afternoon performances and adult groups for evening. Among those already on the program are the Camerata Singers of Harper College, Winston Churchill Grade School Chorus, the United Methodist Church Choir, First Baptist Youth Choir, Christ Lutheran Church Children's Choir and the Choristers from Immanuel Lutheran School.

Dates are Dec. 11 through Dec. 24. Those interested in joining the holiday festivities may reserve a date and time by contacting Judy Dotson, 358-9046.

Antique toy, doll display at Randhurst Center Dec. 1

"Dolls and Toys of Yesteryear," a toy fair featuring an extensive collection of antique toys and dolls, will be held Sunday, Dec. 1, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Town Hall on the lower level, of Randhurst Shopping Center.

A benefit for the Christmas Seal agency, the doll and toy show will have exhibits provided by various private collectors. Chairman of the event is Mrs. Shirley Bertrand, a Wheeling doll collector who is also the Christmas Seal chairman for Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

Dolls to be shown range from small figurines once used on wedding cakes to rare imports as well as the familiar classic dolls used by children for many generations.

A wide variety of doll costumes and miniature furniture in doll house settings will also be on exhibit.

A SPECIAL SECTION will be set apart for boys and their fathers who like model trains and other mechanical toys.

A century-old Pennsylvania Dutch "Christmas Yard" originally built for C. Russell Small of Winnetka by his father will be featured at the doll show for the first time. It consists of a barn, mill and other buildings along with miniature animals and people needed.

The Rolling Meadows Christmas Seal queen, Mary Mazzenga of Mount Prospect, will serve as "Santa's helpers."

Admission is 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children 12 and under.

Children's play at library

A talking cat, an evil magician, a crazy gypsy, a beautiful princess and Santa Claus will take up residence at Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Lane, when The Players of Schaumburg present their December Christmas extravaganza, "Puss in Boots" and "A Visit From Santa."

Adapted by Madge Miller and directed by Sonja Lernas of Schaumburg, "Puss in Boots" dramatizes the story of the cat Minette's attempts to make her master, the woodcutter Christophe, a rich and famous marquis so that he may marry the Princess Angellique. Standing in the cat's way, however, is a wicked Enchanter who also desires to marry the Princess so that he may steal her five-leaved clover for a magic brew that will enable him to live forever.

MINETTE ENLISTS the help of King Claude and the gypsy Lise to help her complete her plans while The Enchanter uses magic, which includes transforming himself into a lion, to impress the Princess. In an exciting finale, Minette triumphs and leads the kingdom's residents in a celebration that includes the appearance of Santa Claus. Santa then joins the audience for the singing of traditional Christmas songs and the distribution of a special gift for each child present at the various performances.

Original songs and dances for The Players' "Puss in Boots" were created by Lynda Sears of Mount Prospect, who also performs the role of Minette. Miss Sears is resident choreographer for The Players.

"Puss" performances Dec. 1, 8 and 15 will be at 1 and 4 p.m. Tickets are $1 for children under 10 and $1.50 for all others. Group rates for parties of 10 or more are also available. Due to the limited seating capacity of the library theatre room, reservations are recommended and may be made now by calling 359-9476 or 685-2360.

HOLLYWOOD glamour of the '30s

For Christian Women's Club

Show stresses inner beauty, too

by MARIANNE SCOTT
"As ye sew, so shall ye rip" was an instructor's comment to designer Ruth Peachy who, Tuesday, told an audience of nearly 600 women of her early struggles in sewing classes.

Owner of her own shop in Buffalo, N.Y., Miss Peachy presented an animated and entertaining commentary during a showing of designer fashions which she later followed with an inspirational talk on women's need for God in their lives.

Speaking at Allgauer's Fireside at a joint gathering of Northwest Suburban and Northshore Christian Women's Clubs, Miss Peachy said that women have needs greater than clothing. A woman can be beautiful on the outside, but on the inside it's often "a totally different story."

You could hear a pin drop as she outlined a six-point plan to put God into one's life. "Be obedient to what the Bible has to say," she advised.

HER LIVELY commentary during luncheon was laced with amusing remarks such as "How do YOU look over the morning toaster?" and "The hemline will always be where it's always been — at the bottom of the hem!"

Hemlines in the designer showing were mostly at the floor for the collection was loaded with beautiful holiday fashions. Diane Von Furstenberg, Oscar de la Renta, Halston, Yves St. Laurent, Bill Blass, Mollie Parnis, Donald Brooks and mountain artisans were all represented in the collection of flowing chiffons, glittery sequins, satins, matle jerseys and velvets. There were floor-length capes, floor-length cashmere sweater knit gowns, patchworks, ruffles and feather boas.

And for fun there was a white fur-collared peignoir and a washable gold apron. Another "cooking outfit" boasted its own pot holders decorating the ends of long panels.

A long bias gown with hemstitched seams was reminiscent of Hollywood glamour in the '30s. A gown of Lycra Spandex wasn't even suggestive of a girdle. A few gowns were the new "intermission" length, which is above the ankle but below the calf. Just below-the-knee outfits included a "paper bag" skirt in UltraSuede. Featuring a high waistline, the skirt is drawn in at the waist with a belt, leaving the upper fabric fluted to the bust.

ALSO IN ULTRASUEDE was a fur-collared coat worn over a paisley pant suit. Another outfit featured velvet pants with point d'esprit blouse.

O, yes; there was also a skimp, Halston's revival of the mini skirt of the '60s. "It's for those under 30 and then only those with good legs," cautioned Miss Peachy, who thoroughly enjoys the constant changes in the fashion field.

Models for the show were members of the Christian women's clubs. Members also furnished the centerpieces — a variety of layer cakes on tall pedestals.

Christian Women's Club members are from all age groups and represent all Christian faiths. A worldwide organization, it has more than 1,000 chapters in the United States.

Did boudoir diplomacy win freedom?

NEW YORK—After watching CBS' "The Ambassadors" Thursday night, you may begin to wonder if the fate of the American Revolution really hinged on boudoir diplomacy, eavesdropping and keyhole-peeping.

Although you admire Ben Franklin's wheeling and dealing in the decadent court of Louis XVI to gain support for the United States in its battle against Britain, this reviewer was left incredulous at the art of 18th-century diplomacy.

Ben Franklin, as played by Eddie Albert in this first mini-series on the Revolutionary hero, wenches his way across France for the American cause. Admittedly, Franklin's noble savage act in the crumbling atmosphere of Versailles was well received by the ladies, but one doubts how much of the Revolution was won in the boudoir.

Then, too, Franklin's clever cultivation of French and English spies is a bit unbelievable as they pop in and out of his home. And finally, one doubts just how much of a fool the Count de Vergennes was as Franklin outwits him in every joust.

Certainly, much of this may have happened, here are certain histories to back it up, but if it was all true, then what machinations were used to settle the Vietnam War and the Middle East battles.

THE PROBLEM with this 90-minute production, although entertaining, is that it was based on Franklin's autobiography and a work by Carl Van Doren. They are the American view of the era.

Otherwise, "The Ambassadors" is a splendid production filled with beautiful women, elegant costumes and a juicy plot. And above all it ranks favorably with many British imports on PBS.

Eddie Albert, at first, is a bit too youthful as Franklin the septuagenarian, but once you get used to that, he is very comfortable to watch.

Equally pleasant is Gig Young as Vergennes. And Frank Langella is superb as Vergennes' assistant. Langella could be the best cinematic cad since the late George Sanders and Lawrence Harvey curled their lips.

Ten schools (115-2 record) battle for state crowns

Ten schools with a combined record of 115-2 — including eight unbeaten teams — will converge on Hancock Stadium on the campus of Illinois State University this weekend for the first-ever title games in five classes in the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Football Playoff Series.

All five championship games will be telecast live throughout Chicago and in downstate communities with cable stations on the WGN system, while nearly 20 radio stations throughout the state will carry the games on the Big 1 Radio Football Playoff Network sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Illinois. The hookup includes WGNM-FM of Arlington Heights (92.7).

Champions will be crowned in three classes — the smallest three — Friday, beginning at 9:30 a.m. The remaining two champions will be crowned Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m.

Pairings for the title games are:

Friday, Nov. 22

9:30 a.m. — Class 1A — Flanagan (11-0) vs. Concord (Triola) (11-0)
Noon — Class 2A — Alexis (11-1) vs. Decatur (St. Teresa) (12-0)

2:30 p.m. — Class 3A — West Chicago (12-0) vs. Mt. Carmel (11-1)

Saturday, Nov. 23

11 a.m. — Class 4A — Rockford (East) (12-0) vs. Normal (Community) (12-0)
1:30 p.m. — Class 5A — Northbrook (Glenbrook North) (11-0) vs. East St. Louis (Sr.) (12-0)

The dramatic impact of "November Nonsense," a kissing cousin to the "March Madness" of the annual basketball tournaments, is expected to lure capacity crowds to Hancock Stadium both days.

Should single-session tickets (which allow the bearer the opportunity to see all games scheduled that day) be available, they will go on sale at the Hancock Stadium Ticket Windows at 8 a.m. Friday and at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

All but one of the finalists earned their berths in the playoffs by claiming their conference championship. Concord (Triola) emerged from one of the three "At Large" berths per class, which were filled from the ranks of independent schools, conference co-champions selected by their league or conference runners-up. Triola is an independent. Schools were classified on the basis of average conference enrollment. A total of 65 conferences were divided evenly among the five classes.

The Class 1A title game will pit Flanagan's powerful offense, led by high-scoring fullback Greg Gundy, against a Triola defense that has produced four straight shutouts and has allowed only 28 points in 11 games this season. Flanagan, the Mid-State Conference champion with an enrollment of 171, is coached by Roger Zehr, who is in his second season. The Falcons belted previously unbeaten Genoa-Kingston, 37-7, in their semifinal game. Triola, coached by Don Kemp, who is in his 22nd year, blanked Villa Grove, 14-0, in the semifinals.

Decatur (St. Teresa), with a winning streak of 32 games, will wear the favorite's cap against Little Six co-champion Alexis, in the Class 2A title tilt, but Coach John Elder's Cardinals, even with a defensive unit that averages 160 pounds, have been scored upon by only two foes in 12 games. St. Teresa, under the direction of first-year Coach Ed Boehm, is the Big Okaw Valley Conference champion, and the Bulldogs blitzed highly-regarded Watseka, 20-8, in their semifinal confrontation. Although Alexis is a 2A school, its enrollment is the second-smallest of the 10 finalists at 194. Elder also is the school's principal.

North Egypt champion Mt. Carmel will be the underdog in the Class 3A game against Little Seven champion West Chicago. West Chicago, coached by Paul Unruh, has an enrollment of 1,623 and is scheduled to leave the Little Seven next season to join the Glen Ellyn and Wheel-ton schools in a new league. The Wildcats nipped Geneseo, 3-0, in the quarterfinals and then blasted Elmhurst (Immaculate Conception), 20-0, in the semifinals. Coach Larry Davis' Mt. Carmel Aces have won two cliff-hangers en route to the finals, nipping Mt. Zion, 14-13, in the first game and then Quincy (Catholic Boys), 3-0 in overtime, in the semifinals.

Rated as one of the greatest teams the city of Rockford has produced, Rockford (East) will turn its balanced, high-powered offense loose against Capitol Conference champion Normal (Community) in the Class 4A game Saturday morning. Coach Bob Pellant's E-Rabs have been awesome offensively all season and have been held under 27 points only once — a 7-2 win over Downers Grove (North) on Oct. 4. Rockford (East) brings a 22-game win streak into the affair. Normal (Community) is led by fullback-turned-quarterback Kurt Swearingen and sprinter-turned halfback Dave Short, both of whom have gained over 1,800 yards rushing this season.

The finale features the "Afterburner Army" of East St. Louis against the defense-oriented Spartans of Northbrook (Glenbrook North) for the Class 5A title. Southwestern Conference champion East St. Louis, which returned 40 lettermen from last year's team, is led by quarterback Maurice Tolson and halfback Stanley Bragg, both of whom were members of the Flyers' state champion relay teams last spring. The Flyers have destroyed three foes thus far in the playoffs, including a 46-0 blitzing of Chicago Catholic League champion Gordon Tech in the semifinals. Glenbrook North, the Central Suburban North champion, after nipping powerful Evanston, 7-6, in the playoff opener, has gained momentum each game and trounced highly regarded Villa Park (Willowbrook), 26-7, in the semifinals.

Area puts footballs away; basketball begins tonight

A Herald Staff Report

Follow the bouncing ball.

Yes, it's that time again.

Basketball replaces football — at least in the Herald area — in the sports spotlight tonight as the wraps officially come off the 1974-75 high school season.

While statewide attention is directed at Illinois State University for the state football tournament, area interest is focused on the sport that annually bounces into the picture in November and bounces out again in March.

Fourteen area high schools will tip off their basketball seasons this weekend with 10 games tonight: Palatine at Maine East, Cary Grove at Buffalo Grove, Stevenson at Rolling Meadows, Barrington at Wheeling, Hersey at Crystal Lake, Proviso West at Arlington, Hoffman Estates vs. Elk Grove at Addison Trail, Deert at St. Viator, and Oak Park at Maine West.

In Saturday play Prospect's highly regarded Knights will face a touted Evanston team in Evanston, Buffalo Grove travels to Stevenson, and Glenbrook North to Palatine. In the Addison Trail tournament Elk Grove will meet Lake Park at 7:00 and Hoffman will play Addison Trail at 8:30.

Five area teams were previewed in the Thursday Herald. Here's the way the rest of the openers stack up:

PROSPECT

For a team that has been in the Mid-Suburban League playoffs three of the last four years, annexed two overall titles, tied for the championship on two previous occasions and won more games than anybody else in the 11-year existence of the conference, Prospect doesn't appear very ready to sit back and rest on its laurels.

The Bill Slayton-led Knights jump into action Saturday at Evanston and come back next week against two more traditional area powerhouses. With nearly a complete starting lineup back in the fold, Prospect is expected to hold its own in these early tests and continue on through another serious run for the loop throne.

A good many MSL coaches, in fact, have already labeled Prospect as the bunch to beat around here.

Slayton isn't buying any of it, of course... yet. "It's a bit premature and not necessarily welcomed," he said. "There are too many strong teams and too many rivalries within the league to pick a winner at this early stage... and I don't exactly relish the added pressure."

The veteran coach did not deny, however, that his club has the talent to take the top prize. "It's been won with less material than we have this season, but other clubs could probably make the same statement. There are too many factors involved to equate any certainties in sports and our objective right now is simply to show an improvement over last season."

Just what do the Knights have? For openers there are Paul Wilthey, No. 3 rebounder in the league in '73-74 and owner of a 14.5 scoring tempo, and Al Black, the No. 5 scorer in the circuit with a 17.2 average. Wilthey is at 6-8 and Black is up to 6-3.

There is also 6-8 Doug Bonthron, among the top 10 most accurate from the field last season and a scoring and rebounding threat in his own right this year, along with 5-11 Mike Quade. All Quade did in the previous campaign was notch 84 assists (to rank third in the circuit), average over eight points a game and finish among the MSL leaders in free throw accuracy.

The fifth starting berth is open right now, but the coach is strongly considering four possibilities. One is 6-7 Ted Reynolds, another is 6-2½ Chris Etter, a third is 6-3 Dave Mann and finally there is 5-10 Mike Finley.

All are seniors except Etter, who is coming off a solid sophomore year. Rounding out the squad are 5-8 Mark Longrie, also a junior, and 6-7 Duff Valente.

Even a .500 mark would better last year's 9-14 overall slate, but much better things can be expected of Prospect. They finished strong a season ago following a sluggish start that had them dropping their first six contests, and in two late

Friel responds to pressure

There is a tendency by those close to the University of Illinois scene to over-react to any Illini football victories.

The reason is obvious. There haven't been that many wins of any significance in recent years.

That's why it wasn't surprising when one Champagn-Urbana sportswriter labeled the winning touchdown pass to Hersey High School product Marty Friel Saturday in Minnesota "the play that may be recalled years from now as the one that put Illinois football over the hump..."

Friel, a sophomore tight end, came off the bench to haul down a 25-yard scoring pass with 45 seconds remaining as Illinois tipped Minnesota, 17-14, in Minneapolis.

That writer may be stretching things a bit with his cheerleading of the moment, but there still might be some substance to the observation. It merits examination because of Friel's involvement.

First of all, there can be no question that beating Minnesota in football these days hardly merits front-page attention. Everybody seems to be beating the Gophers, one of the most puzzling football stories in the Big 10.

However, it still was a victory the Illinois program needed badly because it assured the school of at least a .500 season, something they haven't had in football since 1963. OK, all you Ohio State and Michigan fans, you can laugh at that, but there are some schools that view a .500 season as an "accomplishment."

Believe it or not, Illinois could have an honest-to-goodness winning year with a victory Saturday in the season finale against Northwestern. That's a mind-boggler in a program that has had such snappy records as 1-5, 0-10, 3-7, and 3-8 in recent years.

Every school tries to develop a winning posture, but a series of sub-.500 seasons chips away at any positive attitude. And it makes for a difficult selling job to the blue-chippers, kids who want to be part of a winner.

That's why the writer attached so much significance to the catch by Friel and the victory over Minnesota Saturday, assuring Illinois of at least a .500 season and possibly a year with six victories.

For the record, Friel, who was an All-Stater at Hersey in 1972, has pulled down only three passes this season at Illinois. Marty was in the game Saturday because the regular tight end Joe Smalzer was exhausted, but he didn't blow his chance in a pressure-cooker situation.

"Jeff (quarterback Jeff Hollenbach) threw it perfect," said Friel. "I saw the safety coming for me, but I never did see anyone else. All I could think was 'I hope I catch it.'"

Marty Friel

Friel came into the game with Illinois on the Gopher 25 with a first down and 51 seconds left. Smalzer, who needed a breather after catching 10 for the day and running nine pass routes in a row, probably would have gone back in on the next play.

Friel carried in the game-winning play from the bench.

"Marty came in and told me to call 'Sprint, back choice,'" explained Hollenbach. "He's the primary receiver on the play and he ran the route just the way he's supposed to. I almost was hit before I could get the ball away. In fact, I never did see Marty catch it. I was flat on my back. When I looked up he was running in the end zone."

Smalzer, the regular tight end, celebrated on the sidelines after watching Hollenbach and Friel click for the game-winning score.

"I'm happy for Marty," Smalzer said. "He's a very good tight end... and don't forget he's just a sophomore. I can remember how it was for me as a sophomore. I had trouble just walking out on the field."

"He showed a lot of poise in a pressure situation. He's in a lot on goal-line situations for blocking purposes and there's a lot of pressure then, too."

How did Friel react?

"Out of sight," said the happy Hersey product. "I don't know what to say. I haven't caught that many passes here."

Positive reaction under pressure is a plus for any athlete, and Friel responded with class Saturday that should lead to more playing time. He's backing up a fine receiver, but Smalzer is a senior.

From obscurity to a hero... with one scoring strike.

"Friel, go in for Smalzer," came the call from the coaches.

One play later, Friel had a touchdown and Illinois had a victory.

THIS MAY NOT be the most graceful way to block out for a rebound but Harper's Steve Schmidt (42) has the right idea as he moves in against Wright's Oscar Towne (34). Harper last but will try to regroup tonight at Elgin.

Fan's forum

Reaction from St. Viator fan

Dear Sirs:

I am writing this letter in response to the ridiculous letter you received from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thornton (Fans Forum, Nov. 15). For starters, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, let's take this scene from a different perspective — the students. After talking to fellow St. Viator students I think I can speak for the majority.

As far as rights go, consider the students. Who are you? To determine the way we show our loyalty? From your letter I gather you were not as loyal fans as those students who were standing Saturday. Those students have followed our team the entire season. Again I question your thinking that you have as much, if not more, right as these faithful students.

In reference to your third paragraph — from my past experiences at games, I know people tend to stand along the fence because the bleachers are overcrowded or for a better view, not because somebody refuses to stand up. It has always been that the students reside in the middle section of the bleachers, standing most of the time. So next time you come to a St. Viator game, try sitting on either side of the student section where many people have seen and enjoyed many games while sitting.

Your attack is unjust — I'm referring to the one on the patrolmen. There was no disturbance to be taken care of. As for our priests and brothers, they were watching the game and obviously saw no reason or cause to "control" — as you put it — the standing fans.

Have you ever considered the fact that you were infringing on the students' rights, instead of them on yours? If you were that interested in the game, I'm sure you could have relocated yourselves to a better spot.

And lastly, in no way do St. Viator and Sacred Heart teach their students to be inconsiderate of others. How can you judge any school negatively because they won't sit down when showing great pride and spirit?

Craig Ameel

St. Viator student

MORE LITTLE LEAGUE COMMENT

Dear Sirs:

It seems Williamsport Little League people have the all-time strange logic. If they were running the Olympics and the Russians happened to beat us out for the team title by winning more gold medals, they'd probably rule that the next Olympics would be a private affair in the United States. They'd also probably rule that only those countries — such as Monaco, Portugal, Sweden, Scotland and other biggies — would receive invitations.

The Little League officials should all be fired for disallowing other nations from competing with the U.S. in the annual affair known as the World Series. From now on, according to these so-called officials, the rest of the world won't be invited.

BRING BARRINGTON HERE

Dear Fans Forum,

In response to a letter in Fans Forum, I would like to say that Barrington High School indeed is too big for its little brothers in the North Suburban Conference. It would be a good idea to bring the Broncos into the Mid-Suburban

Three 211 teams open cage action

A Herald staff report

Three Dist. 211 varsity basketball teams open their seasons this weekend — all away games.

Hoffman Estates, playing its first varsity competition ever, will be at the Addison Trail Holiday Tournament, starting tonight.

Also going tonight is Palatine, being entertained by Maine East.

Saturday will find Schaumburg at Maine North.

Frederick will open the season on Wednesday night at the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament.

Two days later, Conant will get its campaign underway when it hosts New Trier West.

Here are the reports from the Schaumburg, Palatine and Hoffman Estates camps:

HOFFMAN ESTATES AT ADDISON TRAIL

Hoffman Estates will be fielding what its head coach calls a "medium quick" basketball team when it opens up varsity play for the first time this weekend in the Addison Trail tourney.

"We're not very big," says Coach Jerry Segebrecht, but he's hoping that the Hawks' quickness will help them through their varsity and junior varsity schedule.

The Hawks will test Elk Grove tonight at 7:00 with Addison Trail furnishing the opposition on Saturday, starting at 8:30 p.m. The round robin tourney will wind up on Wednesday night when Hoffman faces Lake Park at 7:30.

"We wanted to play a varsity non-conference schedule to give the kids some insight as to what it's like to play varsity competition," explains Segebrecht.

Hoffman's 15-man team doesn't have a senior on it. All are juniors. As sophomores last year, this group had a respectable 9-11 record.

Figuring to start in this inaugural varsity contest are Tom Cannon (5-9) and Joe Gajewski (5-10) at the guard spots, Steve Currier (6-1) and Jim Villers (6-0) at the forwards and Gene Foster (6-2) at center.

Also on the team are Pat Flahive, Paul Harshbarger, Rick Karpel, Kent Karr, Randy Krizmanich, Chuck Squires, Mike Strawn, Paul Lutz, Jim Moore and Steve East.

Segebrecht says he expects his boys to "hustle a lot, play good defense and control the ball on offense. They tangle with a handful of varsity teams along with the Mid-Suburban League Jaycee schedule before the state tournament.

PALATINE AT MAINE EAST

Winning may be only secondary for the Palatine basketball squad tonight at Maine East. If coach Ron Finfrock coaxes a victory from his boys in the season opener, it will be a pleasant bonus.

The coach's primary purpose tonight will be exploratory. Finfrock plans to do some experimenting in an effort to come up with the proper team combination.

For the first time in years, Palatine has no outstanding team leader. There is no playmaker who can compare with former Pirates Jim Arden or Rick McCormick.

"That will definitely be our one sore spot this year," said Finfrock. "Who will run our ball club? So far we have no floor leader."

The coach hopes to rectify that situation under game conditions tonight. His leading candidates are a trio of seniors — Chris Burrus, Al Iorio and Jim Herbst.

Compounding Palatine's problem is the fact that only two varsity players are left from last season's 9-11 team. Both are starters — Jim Maycan, the 6-foot-3 center, and 6-5 forward Mark Mara.

The Pirates will get help this year from 6-5 sophomore Kevin McKenna and Bill Stevenson, also 6-5. Both are untested at the varsity level.

"We'll take a wait-and-see attitude this year until we find out what we can do," Finfrock said. "The guard problem is important. Another key to our club is to try to get Mara to go to the boards more. Mark jumps very well but we have to get him to play at both ends of the court."

Palatine will be trying to forge their first winning season in more than 10 years.

"We have more size this year," the coach added, "but we don't have as much quickness. We'll know more about the team after the first game. Then we may have to modify a few things, but we'll do a lot of substitution against Maine East."

SCHAUMBURG AT MAINE NORTH

The new spirit at Schaumburg High School is only partly due to the recent success of the football team. There is a feeling around school that the basketball team is on the verge of its most promising campaign, too.

"We'll be fielding perhaps the best team since we've opened the doors here," said head coach Joe Breault. "We're shooting for a 500 season and I think we can do it. It's not impossible."

The Saxons, winners of just five games last season, sport a new look this year with a pair of transfers in the starting lineup. The only returning starter from last year's squad is junior forward Jon McElraith, who was top scorer with a 15.7-point average in 1973-74.

"Looking at the total picture," said Breault, "we've got a supporting cast this year to take some of the pressure off Jon. This might be the year that McElraith shows what kind of ballplayer he is."

When the Saxons open Saturday evening at Maine North, seniors Ron Geels and Bob Viviano will be in the backcourt and juniors Marty Golub and Ed Chmiel will join 6-2½ McElraith in the front line.

Jeff Fahrenwald, a 6-4 forward, and guard Tom Garrison will serve in reserve roles.

Viviano, a six-footer who can jump and Golub are the key transfers.

"Viviano is from Detroit," Breault noted. "And last year he played on a very disciplined team with a strong man-to-man defense. He's a good passer — very conscious of continuing the flow of the ball. He doesn't shoot much, but when he shoots it goes in."

"Golub is a good jumper," said Breault of his 6-3 transfer from Crete-Monee. "and he's a very aggressive ballplayer."

"We've got the speed to run a lot," the coach said. "We've got nice size — not really big — to play both ends of the court. On defense, we'll try to put on as much pressure as we can."

Grid tourney info

WGN's Jim West, Floyd Brown and Len Johnson will handle the on-the-air reporting of the IHSA's first annual football championships which will be telecast live by WGN Channel 9 from the Hancock Stadium on the campus of Illinois State University, today and tomorrow.

The contests begin today with the 1A Class at 9:30 a.m., followed at noon with the 2A game and the 3A meeting at 2:30 p.m.

On Saturday, Class 4A's game will be telecast beginning at 11 a.m. with the 5A contest following at 1:30 p.m.

Norman Geske, of Wheeling, one of 20 officials with a total of 362 years experience, will put his 28 years of work to use this weekend as he referees the state tournament games.

Geske is an elementary school principal.

Radio station WWMF-FM in Arlington Heights will broadcast the tournament games.

Raiders need coaches

The Buffalo Grove Raiders boys football program needs coaches. The Raiders play in the George Halas League and include boys nine to 13 years old. If you have previous coaching experience and would like to help, please call Stan Stabner at 541-7827.

Dome schedules ice lessons

The second session of ice skating lessons will be held at the Polar Dome Ice Arena starting the week of Nov. 25. The classes will be held after school during the week and will range from beginners through advanced skaters. The classes will follow the guidelines set up by the Ice Skating Institute of America.

A Power Hockey Skating class will also be offered this season by Robert Sherman of the Polar Dome. The main emphasis of this class, besides teaching hockey, will be a wide variety of skating techniques.

Registration for all classes will be held at the Polar Dome Arena, Rts. 25 and 72 in Dundee, on Nov. 18-Nov. 24, from 4-6 p.m. in the sport shop.

All lessons are six week sessions. For further information please call 426-6751.

International pet show

Arlington Park goes to the dogs, cats, snakes, guinea pigs, birds, and other family pets when the second annual International Pet Show takes over Arlington Park Race Track, Arlington Heights, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 23 and 24.

Pet owners are invited to enter their pets for a $5 entry fee. Every entrant will receive a prize, even if they do not receive a championship title.

Featured attractions include Bobby Clark and his puppets, elephant and pony rides, a zoo where children can pet various animals and a variety of animal acts featuring monkeys, pigs, dogs and ponies.

Hours of the show are noon to 10 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday. For advance information and entry application forms, pet owners should call 348-3181.

From campuses nationwide

Making a strong bid for a varsity football letter at Carthage College this fall is 5-9, 225-pound defensive tackle Randy Divito of Arlington Heights. The former Prospect High School griddier started all four of the Redmen's junior varsity games this fall as they finished with a 1-2-1 record.

Divito has also seen considerable action with the Carthage varsity, which is 5-3 for the season.

Divito is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Divito of 324 S. Dale in Arlington Heights.

Jessie Laffey, of Palatine, received a varsity letter in tennis competition this fall at Knox College. The Knox team finished with a 5-2 dual meet record.

Day Myszka, from Maline West, and Ken Slepicka, from Wheeling, chipped in their efforts for North Park College in a losing effort as their team fell to Carroll College 49-6. Tallback Myszka had a good day running the ball, going 90 yards on 23 carries. Slepicka played at quarterback and worked some razzle-dazzle for North Park's only score when he pitched out to a running back then streaking downfield to catch the touchdown pass.

The following week Slepicka had a hand in turning the tables for North Park as they upset Wheaton College, 15-14. Slepicka was a starter in the last three games and won two of them. His passing set up two touchdowns in the win over Wheaton.

Area athletes are sparkling for Indiana State where Bob Radziz, from Elk Grove, was given a football Hatchet Award for inflicting damage on the opponent; Bob Mellin of Palatine, John Golbeck of Arlington Heights and Ed Paul of Mount Prospect are all scheduled to compete for the Sycamores' gymnastics team in the Indiana Collegiate Invitational.

Craig Combs of Arlington Heights is also on the squad.

Mark Wilkins, from Buffalo Grove, a junior at Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Ia., was one of 44 letter winners for the 8-1 Kohawks.

Rich Valentino, from Prospect High School, Dave Sakata, from Elk Grove, and Jim Wilcox of Prospect, are all being counted on heavily by the Eastern Illinois University gymnastics squad.

Aslo Klemma, from Schaumburg, is a freshman at Eastern and considered to be the best all-around prospect in several years.

The Eastern Illinois swimming team is boosted by the presence of two area athletes. Dave Toler of Elk Grove was named an All-American in the relay last year while John Fisher of Buffalo Grove won a letter for his diving.

Craig Dahlquist, 1010 W. Noyes in Arlington Heights, is being considered for a varsity letter by the Faculty Athletic Committee at Monmouth College.

MIKE MILLNER (30), from Elk Grove, looks past Wright defender Clement Naughton for somebody to pass to during Harper's opening loss to the Rams. Millner averaged 17 points a game for the Hawks last year and threw in 14 points in the

It's no longer 'Harper High'; Hawks grow in stature

The myth that Harper football, and all of junior college football for that matter, is a purgatory between high school and the four year colleges no longer applies. It is as dead as the joke about "Harper High" that was so popular among area high school students back when the college first opened its doors.

Because, regardless of the packed stands at high school games and the rows of empty seats watching Harper play, the best football, the most exciting football in the area, is being played at Harper.

The Hawks are through for this year, finishing 6-4 for their second consecutive winning season. But while the season is over some late returns are still arriving.

The latest news is that six Harper players, four on offense and two on defense, have been chosen to the All-State junior college team.

That's roughly one-fifth the entire squad. More than a third of the offensive team made it. It is also impressive in that only Ervin Kimbrough had made the All-State team in the last three years while half a dozen make it in one season. It makes you wonder why nobody came to see them play.

Joining Kimbrough on the offensive team are Frank Bavaro, Gary Mueller and John Kern. Bill Nash and Dugan McLaughlin made the team on defense.

Ironically, Harper coach John Eliasik kind of prefers the idea of a junior college as, if not a purgatory, at least a training camp of sorts.

"Only Kimbrough and Mueller," Eliasik said, "had any sort of buildup when they came out of high school. I think this shows how much a year or two of development can help a player."

"Many of the football players in this area," Eliasik continued, "feel they have to go right to a four year school. There is pressure from their parents and the standards set by their friends. Nobody wants to go to a two-year school because it has a reputation that doesn't really apply anymore."

"And, if a player doesn't receive a scholarship because the major colleges don't think he is ready then more often than not the kid's parents will pay for his education instead. And then the player may go out for a team and sit on the bench for two years or longer."

Eliasik sees junior college, and Harper in particular, as an attractive alternative to this.

"First of all," he said, "the education you can receive at Harper is reason enough to attend. People have the idea that a junior college is a place where athletes who aren't bright enough to cut it in a four year school go to pad their grade averages."

Charlie Dickinson
Staff Sportswriter

"Players around here should realize, too, that they can't always go right from high school to college. Bill Nash is a good example of this kind of player."

"When Nash was at Dundee," Eliasik said, "he didn't play in either his junior or senior year of high school. He's small for his position (5-8, 160-pound nose man) but he has great quickness and he impressed enough people to be voted All-State."

"I don't think there is any question that he has developed at Harper much farther than he would have at a four year school."

"Kids of this age often aren't through maturing physically when they get out of high school. There is the chance they'll run into players of superior physical talent at a larger school and become so discouraged they'll quit and never really develop into the type of football players they are capable of becoming."

Kimbrough, Bavaro and Kern will cut the All-Staters on the team in half next year when they graduate this spring.

Kimbrough, who in addition to making the team was picked as the second best offensive player in Illinois behind Joliet's Rick Stanford (who rushed for 128 yards against Harper and over 1300 for the once beaten Wolves), was a second team All-America last year and when the team is chosen early next month Eliasik thinks he could be on the first team.

"I think Ervin has a great chance to make the first team," Eliasik said. "That would be very rare. I think only two or three players from Illinois have made the first-team in the last ten years."

In two years at Harper Kimbrough, with 63 catches for 1132 yards and 88 points, has demonstrated his ability to play at just about any level he would choose. Eliasik recently proclaimed Kimbrough capable of landing somewhere in the pros, particularly the World Football League should it survive.

Bavaro has been less spectacular but more consistent, catching his passes in crowds or wide open, healthy or injured.

With three of the All-Staters returning Eliasik realizes the importance of recruiting the talent to fill out his squad. Harper didn't play a single team this year that had fewer players on the roster.

A comment from Joliet coach Jerry Yost is an indication of where Eliasik will be searching.

"If Harper could get the good players from their area," Yost said, "they would be, from year to year, the best football team in this area and possibly the state."

Harper's backyard is crawling with talent. Much of it not quite ready to make the big step up to a four year school.

Eliasik is counting on talking some of them into taking that half step into the purgatory of junior college football.

Newcomer placed second, 1:57.8. Nitch also emerged with a 20-second victory in 500 freestyle, swimming 5:00.5. Viator won the meet, 89-80.

River Trails Park District offers boys 3 winter sports

The River Trails Park District will offer three winter sports for boys — basketball, wrestling and ice hockey.

Basketball age groups are high school, seventh and eighth graders and fifth and sixth graders. Deadline for registration is Friday, Dec. 6.

The high school players will play at Parkview School each Tuesday, beginning Dec. 19 and running through Feb. 11. Games will be held at 7:00, 8:00 and 9:00. The fee is $3.

Seventh and eighth graders will play at Feehanville School on Fridays, Dec. 6 and Feb. 7. They'll play at the same hours as the high schoolers with a similar fee.

Fifth and sixth graders will be in league play at either Feehanville or Robert Frost schools on Saturdays, beginning Dec. 7 and running until Feb. 8. They play between 1:00 and 3:00 with emphasis placed on instruction and development in basic basketball fundamentals. The fee is $2.

Wrestlers from the fourth through eighth grades will have a program at River Trails Junior High's cafeteria. They'll meet, starting on Monday, Dec.

9, between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. and also on Saturdays between 9:00 and noon.

The wrestling fee is $5. The minimum weight is 55 pounds. Knee pads and wrestling head gear are required. Gym shoes are allowed, but wrestling shoes are strongly recommended.

Ice hockey will be offered to boys from fifth grade through high school. Four leagues will be organized.

The fifth and sixth grades will have an instructional league where basic hockey techniques and drills will be taught along with regular scheduled games. An organizational meeting for fifth through eighth graders will be held on Saturday, Dec. 7 at 10 a.m. at the park community building, 1313 Burning Bush Lane, Mount Prospect.

Leagues will also be set up for seventh and eighth graders, ninth and 10th graders and 11 and 12th graders.

The fee for all boys is $5. Games will be played on the rink behind the pool.

An organizational meeting for high schoolers will be held on Dec. 7 at 11 a.m. It will also be at the community building. Call 298-4445 for further information.

Basketball tips

by WALT FRAZIER &
IRA BERKOW
(Last in a series)

You have to have control of the ball. If I don't have a good strong grip before I pass it, my ball will normally be intercepted or I'll throw the ball into the hands of the guy selling popcorn.

The great passers throw soft but firm passes. Soft enough for the receiver to handle, quick enough for it to get there.

You should always make certain that the guy you're passing to is ready. If the ball is stolen it's always the passer's fault. Even if I hit a guy in the back, it's still the passer's fault, because he threw the ball. If a guy's not looking, even though he should be looking it's still your fault.

You should be in control and not throw the ball if it's not going to lead to something good. Just because the receiver is always supposed to be watching the ball doesn't mean he is.

Leading a man on a pass is not easy. It's all in judgment. If you can judge how far away a guy is you can pass to him. You want to throw it so that he can catch the ball without breaking stride.

You can practice passing to a certain extent. You can practice being a quarterback. You can improve, but you might never be great at it. It's just a talent that some guys have. Everybody can't be a pitcher, no matter how long or hard they practice.

I think there's a knack involved that is instinct and is unexplainable. But you can practice against a wall. You throw to different spots. And you can practice passing with teammates. Always trying to develop a good rhythm, a good feel.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

THOSE TWO ARMS stretching to either side of Jesus Alvarez (3), belong to Harpers' Steve Schmidt. The Hawks lost to Wright and will try to get into the win column tonight when they travel to Elgin for a 7:30 game.

At Beverly Lanes.

Herr continues to lead the Parkway Men's League at Beverly Lanes by 416 points. Wagner paced the league leaders with a 550 series and 200 game. Gutwein moved into second place by blanking Blotag. T-O with Gutwein contributing 617-236. Helmann hitting 203 and Donahue rolling 211 and picking up the 5-7 split twice. J. Herr of Meland hit 675-204. Schuessler had 550-224 and Meyer 540-213. Juretschke recorded 629 off 211 and 225 while taking four points from Quade even with Glenn Quade's 571-200 and Schmidt's 201.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the Mixed Nuts League Jim Nelson bowled a 614 with games of 236-235-153 to top the league. He was followed by Vance Olson at 187-204-206-196. Deck Hildebrandt 200-184-165 for a 554. Dolores DeBartoli led the women with a 548 on games of 200-187-152. Other high games were by Ardell Bleatman 181 and Kathy Fountain 181.

League, if possible, since their enrollment is more similar to schools like Hersey and Forest View.

I am a long-time fan of high school sports in this area and I yearn for the old days when Arlington and Palatine journeyed up to Barrington regularly for games in football and basketball. These towns have a natural rivalry and they should be exploited as much as possible, not just in occasional nonconference matches. Barrington deserves competition from larger schools and the people in this area have a right to see outstanding athletes like Frank Shellenback, Rob Simond, and Gary Hallberg.

ANOTHER PRO TEAM?

Fans Forum:

If the Chicago Sting expects to get this city's fans excited about soccer, they've got another think coming. There's no way another pro sports team can survive in this town, not when there are five others that are floundering. One time before, the promoters thought they could sell us pro soccer, but they were wrong. This country (and this city) will never accept soccer.

HAIKERS SAY THANKS

Dear Editor:

Just a note to thank you on behalf of the 1974 Fremd cross country team for the outstanding coverage we received during the past season. We wish to thank Mr. Art Mugalian, in particular, for his accuracy and his obvious interest in reporting our successful season. It is this type of excellence that makes Paddock Publications a pleasure to work with and helps to reward the athlete for his dedication to athletics.

season encounters with state semifinalist Hersey, the Knights were edged by narrow one-and-three-point spans.

ELK GROVE

Bill Parmentier, the head basketball coach at Elk Grove, remembers Ken Pollitz like a man who has lost his first love. The Greens' leading scorer from last year is now a freshman at the University of Missouri and Parmentier is faced with opening the season tonight against Hoffman Estates in the Addison Trail tournament at 7 p.m. without him.

"I wish you could have seen that kid," Parmentier said. "He would do anything to win. I'd work him into the ground and get all over him and he would respond like the true champion he was."

Working kids hard has stood Parmentier in good stead since coming to Elk Grove from Lockport West five years ago. He has long since abandoned the finesse style of basketball he was brought up on in southern Illinois for the physically aggressive, and intimidating, manner he demands of his Greenaders.

"I don't know if you've ever played basketball," Parmentier said, "but coaches have kids run the floor. Going from the baseline to the free throw and back then to the center court and back. Well, we have 'em dive at the floor here. If there is a loose ball I want three shirts the color of Elk Grove on top of it right away."

Parmentier's coaching methods will undergo a severe test this year. His team is small and only slightly quick in some positions. But like all Elk Grove teams before them which played under Parmentier, the starting five of Greg Kelley and Joe Parmentier at guards, Jeff Smith at center, Bill Prince and Steve Carson at forwards will all play defense. Or else.

"It's been my philosophy since I've been here," Parmentier said, "that no matter how good a player is offensively, I'll put the five best defensive players out on the floor."

"Prince can't do much on offense," Parmentier said, "but he's an excellent defensive player. Kelley is the same way. He was a starter last year. I'm expecting a lot from Carson because he started for us last year."

"I'm going to play a lot of kids this year. Everybody is at about the same level in ability. We've been winners here for three years in a row and I'd like to see it continue. This group could do it but it'll take a lot of work."

ARLINGTON

Two-time North Division champion Arlington will be sporting somewhat of a different look this season, but you'd better not blink if you want to see it.

"We've got better quickness than we've had in a while," veteran coach George Zigman said. "We'll be speeding up our game a little bit to make up for a lack of size and muscle."

Crouching in the blocks for tonight's season opener are backcourt speedsters 6-foot Jerry DeSimone (a two-time letter winner) and 5-9 John Yeazel.

Frontliners should include forwards 6-4 Dennis Gaare and 6-0 Mike Fogel while the chore of handling the pivot goes to 6-6 Terry Donehue.

"We have to have him in the lineup to win," Zigman said of his 200-pound center. "He's more agile and a little stronger than he was last year."

The competitive nature of the Cardinals will stress defense, but Zigman admits that he's got some shooters on the team and a bench that he won't hesitate to call on.

"Jim Grandt (6-1 forward) and Greg Klobner (6-2 center) will see a lot of action at the beginning of the schedule," Zigman said.

"We're going to have to hustle to win with this team," added. "The North Division appears too balanced this year. An off night against any of those teams could be disastrous."

"Our main concern will be boarding with some of these other teams. We're going to have to learn to get physical in a hurry."

ST. VIATOR

The folk who endured St. Viator varsity basketball last winter, a 2-20 season, might remember Bill Foreman as that skinny, almost unathletic kid who played one forward. He didn't seem to belong physically and was constantly overpowered.

But dashing, young Viator coach Steve Antrim saw two qualities he admired in Foreman: Pride and hidden ability. So Antrim went with Foreman all season.

And now the Lions' coach says you'll see a different Foreman this season, starting tonight when Viator hosts one-game winner Benet Academy in the opener of six consecutive home dates.

"I'm big on brother acts," said Antrim. Foreman has been preceded through Viator's basketball program by brothers Eddie and Denny.

"And you could see Bill had the skills. He just wasn't strong enough," Antrim said. So Foreman lifted weights and worked his body to new limits during off-season. He's up one inch to 6-foot-4 and added 20 pounds, now a solid 175.

"He's the biggest of the brothers and from the people who've seen them all, Bill clearly works the hardest," Antrim said. "He'll be our money player."

It wasn't a bundle of fun last season at Viator. Antrim took over as head coach after two 19-11 seasons at Mendel. He inherited a bunch of kids with little experience. The only senior starter was Terry Keenan, eventual East Suburban Catholic scoring champion.

Now the cast has experience. And, insists Antrim, they're eager to prove Viator is no basketball lollipop. Starting with six home games surely helps.

Four frontliners return plus one young man who played reserve forward and lettered. Largest of them is 6-3 junior center Glen Girard. He's been sidelined two weeks with bruised leg muscles but will start tonight.

"Glen's so much better than last year that it's really unbelievable," said Antrim. Freshman Paul Wiloff, 6-6 and 180, will spell Girard and start preliminary contests during early season games.

There's strength at both guards in 6-0 senior Paul Kaster, an intelligent athlete who knows the game, plus 5-9 junior letterman Ralph Casolare.

Only newcomer upfront is forward Bill Heffernan, a 6-3, 185-pound senior. He lettered last season after brief appearances and contributes strength.

Returning Viator basketball to a competitive level can't be done in a single season. Antrim knew that last year so he stuck with kids. Now they're one year older and the Lions should be well ahead of their previous 2-20 pace.

MAINE WEST

The kids all grew and that's got Maine West head basketball coach Gaston Freeman quite pleased. With important lettermen at two positions, it's an early season experiment to decide who'll get the call at three spots when Central Suburban League games begin on Friday, Dec. 6.

Locked in are guard Glen Heiden and forward Steve Zuccarini, seniors on a squad that numbers just one junior, forward Bill Finnis.

Spectators who've watched Heiden know he could emerge as a truly fine pure shooter. He averaged one dozen points on last year's club which won nine and lost 15.

But that was as a skinny six-footer. Now, Heiden's grown to 6-foot-3 and nearly 170 pounds. He's never been beat-should provide the Warriors with many points.

Zuccarini ranked 12th in CSL scoring as a junior, averaging 13.3 to gain honorable mention All-Conference honors. He's down about 15 pounds from his football playing weight of 228 and returns to one forward.

Everything else is a battle. John Clark and Mike Aulert, each at least 6-5, are contending at center. Clark could start tonight in the Warriors' home opener with Oak Park. Aulert's been sidelined with a severe ankle sprain.

The forward spot next to Zuccarini lists Paul Dick and Bill Makuch. Dick was used primarily in junior-varsity games last year. Makuch played a strong second half to average 9.9 points.

Dick is an exceptional jumper and might have any early edge since Makuch must recondition his football aches and pains.

Heiden has seldom been employed as West's playmaker. If that pattern holds true, either Norm Plozaj, Norm Hillner or Jim Andrews will run the offense out front.

More than anything, the Warriors need to develop a team that can cope with quickness. An increasing number of high school coaches have adopted the quick running offense.

They're a smaller team this year at certain positions, especially center where 6-9 Doug Myers was all-conference last year. But the Warriors have the potential to field better total size.

Most of all, they'll need everyone healthy since there's just Finnis for junior depth. And they need Heiden dropping his rainbow shot through the bucket.

Camp Duncan swimming

The Camp Duncan YMCA swim team opened its second season on Saturday with a boys' meet at Volo. It was the first time the new Kynoscope was used in competition. This electric timing device was donated to Camp Duncan by the Parents' Association at the close of the season last year. Many new faces have joined the team, but the competitive spirit of the group remains the same.

After losing to the girls last year in a similar meet, the boys went into the water with great determination — only to fall victims to the once again victorious girls with a final score of 200-100.

At Ziebart Rustproofing we've got everything we need to protect every rust-prone inch of your car's body.

Nine patented spray tools. A unique sealant that's attracted to metal and actually creeps into welded seams. Trained technicians who know the inside of your car like the backs of their hands.

Our process is so thorough that we can give you a money-back guarantee against rust-through on your new car for 5 years or 50,000 miles.

But there's one catch. To get your guarantee, we must rustproof your car within 3 months or 3000 miles of the date you pick it up. Because rust starts in a hurry.

MERCURY MONARCH

The new precision size luxury car for 1975

This strikingly handsome coupe may remind you of a special version of Lincoln-Mercury's most expensive car, the Continental Mark IV.

Like the silver Mark, its subtle silver exterior gives way to a near-lavish red interior. Like the silver Mark, this coupe has a classic grille, opera windows, and steel-belted radials, all standard. But unlike the silver Mark, the Silver & Red Monarch comes to Chicagoland priced within reach of most new-car buyers. Especially when currently high trade-in allowances are considered. Today, it's often possible to trade on a new '75 Mercury and pay less than others would have last summer on a comparably equipped '74 using a similarly aged trade-in.

The Silver & Red Mercury Monarch is classic, yet very much a car for these times. Precisely sized to seat five adults comfortably and give excellent gas mileage... precisely priced for today's astute buyer.

CHRIS MIELKE, (44) a sophomore at Harper from Maine West, looks up the floor while fronting Wright's Jesus Alvarez (32). The Rams handed the Hawks their first loss of the season Tuesday, 79-60, and left them to try and pick up the pieces at Elgin Community College tonight at 7:30.

Harper can expect pressure from Elgin

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Elgin head coach Dick Durrant thinks he may have found the Achilles heel of Harper's D-1 Hawks. Durrant was on hand Tuesday night at St. Vitor when the Hawks ran afoul of the Wright Rams and dropped a 79-60 meeting that was close through the first half.

Durrant wasn't impressed with Harper's guards but then again he liked what he saw.

"I'm not sure just what kind of guards they've got," Durrant said. Then he made a remark that shouldn't sit well with Harper coach Roger Bechhold.

"Wright didn't really pressure them as much as usual. They don't ordinarily play that man to man and when they are in their trap zone they are much tougher."

"Harper didn't seem able to play their game against the pressure and I think that will help us."

If all this sounds like Elgin is getting ready to put some pressure of their own on Harper then that is okay with Durrant because that is exactly what he intends to do.

"We plan to find out right away just what their guards can do," Durrant said. "Wright didn't really force them to go to their weak hand dribbling and we plan to do more of that. Mike Millner looked capable of using both hands but Mike Miller always seemed to want to go to his strong hand whenever he could."

"Doug Doppke looked vulnerable, too. He dribbles awfully high and I was surprised Wright wasn't able to steal the ball off him. He also looked erratic passing under pressure."

Harper will face a situation they may become used to before the season is out. Elgin will be the bigger team. Wright was smaller but jumped better. Durrant thinks Elgin has jumpers equal to the Hawks but none as springy as Tim Holland.

"Holland is just an incredible leaper," Durrant said. "We don't have anybody who can stay up with him but we've been working a lot on position and such and I think we'll be able to stay on the glass with them."

Rich Bingaman, at 6-2 and an honorable mention all-conference player last year, will share the forward spots with 6-6 Jeff Howard. Another 6-5 player, Dan Bonac, will open in the middle. Durrant will settle on the two guards among three players each at six foot or better. They are Dennis Butzow, Bill Stoll and Larry Strohmeler.

"We're expecting a lot out of Howard," Durrant said. "He's a fine offensive player. I'm also expecting a lot out of Butzow. He should develop into our floor leader and quarterback."

"Our outside shooting will be tested by Harper's zone if they play it as tough as they did against Wright. It was hurting Wright until they started finding the open man."

"I think Harper has a lot of talent. They'll win their share of games this year when they get the links worked out. Overall, I think we're pretty evenly matched teams. We both have pretty good quickness and jumping although we may be a little bigger."

"It should be a close game, perhaps being decided by something unforeseen." Perhaps that would be how well Harper handles Elgin's pressure tonight.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Moral norm changes affect U.S. ethic

Seven years ago, sociologist Robert N. Bellah, sent shock waves through the religious and academic circles with the publication in Daedalus magazine of his article "Civil Religion in America."

It wasn't so much that Bellah had come up with a startling new insight as that his phrase — "civil religion," — and his somewhat approving assessment of the phenomenon excited the response of both the academic and theological communities.

Since the publication of Bellah's original essay, countless books, magazine articles, scholarly and lay symposia have all struggled with the question of the relationship between nation and religion noted by Bellah.

One of the best of these, including Bellah's original essay and a recently written reassessment of the debate, including an answer to his critics, has just been published under the title "American Civil Religion," edited by Russell E. Richey and Donald G. Jones (Harper).

IN HIS ORIGINAL essay, Bellah argued that, "There actually exists alongside of and rather clearly differentiated from the churches an elaborate and well-institutionalized civil religion in America."

What Bellah calls "civil religion," critics have also labeled "the religion of the Republic," and the generalized "religion of the American way of life."

Bellah saw the civil religion as it emerged in America having several parallels or analogies with Biblical religion — the use of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution as sacred documents, the founding of the nation as the exodus event, and, in Presidents like Lincoln and Kennedy, a tradition of saintly martyrs.

Critics who dislike the idea of a civil religion usually make two kinds of arguments against it — that it bowdlerizes Biblical religion and that it results in national self-worship, the transcendence of the nation-state over all else.

In his reassessment of the civil religion concept, Bellah continues to argue for its usefulness for the nation.

AT THE SAME TIME, however, he acknowledges that the late 1960s and early 1970s had a major impact on the national self-understanding and the civil religion.

"A profound undermining of authority, of respect for our inherited values and beliefs, has taken place that will not be easily reversed, even though what has been offered instead is often shoddy and distasteful," Bellah noted.

He suggests that the twin crises of Watergate and Vietnam that have so shaken the nation mean there is a need to reexamine American traditions and broaden our understanding of the American ethic.

AS JUST ONE example, he cites the way in which American individualism has come to be a major component of the American civil religion. But in looking at history, he sees in John Winthrop's famous sermon — preached to the colonists before they left the ship that had brought them to Massachusetts Bay in 1630 — "In the very beginning and core of the Protestant tradition in this country so vivid an expression of a communal ethic."

Bellah's reassessment is not the last word in the debate over civil religion. The arguments over the relations and various influences of religion, morality and politics on each other and on the national life will go on.

"At its best," Bellah says, "civil religion would be realized in situations where politics operates within a set of moral norms, and both politics and morality are open to transcendent judgment."

Is church press free?

BOSTON—"Deep differences of opinion on what news is fit to print" is the only official explanation offered as to why the editor of S.J. News was fired.

S.J. (Society of Jesus) News is the monthly newspaper of the Jesuit Province of New England, which has in recent months been perhaps the most newsworthy of all the Jesuit provinces in the world.

The fired editor, the Rev. James G. Hietter, has, quite conscientiously, tried to live up to the S.J. News title — by reporting the actual news, whether good or bad.

This apparently won him the enmity — although, to be sure the interest — of both conservatives and liberals.

THE LIBERALS were incensed when Father Hietter raised the perfectly legitimate question as to whether U.S. Rep. the Rev. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., still has the required ecclesiastical permission to serve in Congress.

Drinan does have permission, from New England's Jesuit Provincial (superior) the Rev. Richard Cleary.

But editor Hietter quotes Boston's Archbishop Humberto Cardinal Maderios as saying, "I have made it very clear that I don't approve of priests in political office."

And while Maderios' famed predecessor, the late Richard Cardinal Cushing, had given Father Drinan his enthusiastic consent to run, editor Hietter cited Canon 130, in which the bishop's permission is required for a priest to run for political office.

THE ISSUE IS further clouded by Drinan's congressional district including parts of both the Boston Archdiocese as well as the Diocese of Worcester — whose bishop, Bernard Flanagan, has no objection to Drinan in Congress.

Priest-editor Hietter infuriated the conservatives as well as the liberals by breaking the story that Provincial Cleary ordered the Rev. John McLaughlin to leave his White House post. Shortly after reporting this news in the S.J. News, Father Hietter was fired by Provincial Cleary.

"Father Cleary has the authority to fire me," acknowledged Hietter during a telephone interview with this reporter, "although it may be that he should explain precisely what are these deep differences regarding what news is fit to print. Since both Drinan and McLaughlin originally were given permission to serve in Washington, I felt the people had a right to know all about these newsworthy priests."

Then the fired editor concluded: "You can't have a free press, or an interesting press, that is controlled."

ONE REASON WHY so many local, regional, or national religion house organs are either so deadly dull or basically untrustworthy (at least when they deal with the denominational power structure) is in failing to realize or implement the truth of this statement.

One significant document which seems to bear out Father Hietter's conclusion was published in 1971, a 20,000-word pastoral instruction entitled "The Media, Public Opinion and Human Progress." Among the conclusions of this Vatican document, approved by Pope Paul VI, was: "The safety of newsmen should be assured because of the service they render to man's right to know what is happening."

But priest-editor Hietter, who tried so hard to implement "man's right to know what is happening," remains at this writing fired, with no other job offered him by the Society of Jesus.

Interestingly, the Jesuit magazine America reported from the recent Synod in Rome the following statement by Father Pedro Arrupe, general of the Society of Jesus:

"The church can offer positive help to those involved in the mass media in several ways: by sincerity and open-mindedness in giving exact and complete information, by promptness in furnishing information; by accepting criticism with humility and loyalty; by understanding the conditions under which newsmen must work, exposed as they are to the tyranny of deadlines; of popular moods and of the need to break stories."

Father Hietter no doubt will be happy to hear this.

IASB to consider changing collective-bargaining position

The Illinois Assn. of School Boards will consider changing its position opposing a law on collective bargaining for teachers at its annual convention this weekend in Chicago.

The IASB delegate assembly Saturday will consider adopting a position which will allow the association's lobbyists to work for collective bargaining legislation favorable to school boards.

The IASB is a statewide organization of school boards that in the past has been unalterably opposed to any law giving teachers the right to collective bargain with school boards. The IASB will be meeting at the Palmer House in Chicago.

The resolution will be presented to the delegate assembly by six Cook County school districts, including districts from Morton Grove, Tinley Park and Harvey.

The resolution reaffirms the IASB position that "efforts exerted by public employ organizations and their members seeking enactment of such (collective bargaining) laws are detrimental to public education," but recognizes that collective bargaining legislation may soon be enacted.

Other resolutions to be considered this weekend by the IASB include proposals from several local school districts. A resolution by Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 asks that double celebrations of certain holidays, such as Memorial Day, be eliminated.

AFFORDABLE LUXURY

One of the most reasonably priced units at luxurious Cambridge on the Lake can be yours with an assumable mortgage. You owe it to yourself to see in person the gorgeous setting, heated garage, superb carpeting and self cleaning oven, just a few of the many deluxe features not found in other complexes. A WISE buy!

7% ASSUMABLE

Just move in! This delightful home is fully appointed, carpeted and draped and even has a fireplace for those chilly evenings ahead. But the best news has to be the financing. Not many assumables are available with this low interest rate, so be smart and see this one soon.

Management Trainee

READY FOR A NEW CAREER?
Rose, Waukegan, McHenry

Are you considering a job change for a valid reason? If you have a good work history, backed up by advanced education (or equivalent), you may qualify for a position as a Chicago Tribune district manager.

This position entails total responsibility for the sales of our newspapers in an assigned area. It is a permanent position which can lead to a career in newspaper circulation management. Those who qualify will start at an above average salary (paid training) and enjoy frequent increases to reach a desirable earnings level of $12,000 to $14,000 within 18 months. You will enjoy one of the best benefit packages in the industry.

If you are ready for a challenging and rewarding new position, inquire Monday thru Thursday in Room 158, 435 N. Michigan, Chicago, or call 222-4572.

I would like to know about Marlo Thomas. Please include as much information as you can. Also please print her picture.

M.B.
Arlington Heights

Marlo Thomas

Marlo, probably best known for her role in "That Girl," was born on Nov. 21, 1938. She is the daughter of comedian Danny Thomas and his wife Rosemary. Marlo grew up in Los Angeles and after graduating from the University of Southern California she went to New York to study acting with Sanford Meisner. She made her TV debut in "77 Sunset Strip" and she began working in the theatre as well as in television. She starred in "Under the Yum Yum Tree" at La Jolla, "Gigi" at Laguna Beach, in Santa Barbara she starred in "Two for the See-Saw," and she won critical appraisal for her role in the long-run production of "Sunday in New York."

Marlo has also guest-starred on numerous TV series such as "The Alfred Hitchcock Show," "The Virginian," "Ben Casey," "Mr. Novak," "Arrest and Trial" and "Bonanza." Before ABC's "That Girl" series, she performed in "Barefoot in the Park," for which she won fantastic reviews.

Marlo, who resides in Beverly Hills, is a board member of the Inner-City Cultural Center (an interracial non-profit theatre project headed by Gregory Peck). In addition, she is also on the board of "Neighbors of Watts," a committee which is dedicated to the building of child care centers in that neighborhood. Earlier this year she was in an Emmy Award-winning special called "Free to Be You and Me."

You can write to Marlo in care of ABC Press Relations, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Could you please give me some information about Kurt Russell? Also an address to write to him and a picture.

T.Y.
Rolling Meadows

Kurt Russell

Kurt, who plays Bo in ABC's "The New Land," was as busy playing baseball as he was acting a few years ago. He played minor league ball since 1971 with the Bend, Ore., Rainbows, the Walla Walla, Wash., Islanders and the El Paso, Texas, Sun Kings. Due to a shoulder injury in 1973, however, Kurt had to end his sports career.

Luckily, Kurt was able to fall back on his acting ability which he began at the age of ten. He made his TV debut in the series "Our Man Higgins." He later co-starred in ABC's "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters" and he has appeared in other series such as "The Fugitive," "The Eleventh Hour," "The Man from U.N.C.L.E.," "Gunsmoke," "Love Story" and "Hec Ramsey."

Kurt's first movie was "It Happened at the World's Fair." Walt Disney spotted him and immediately recognized his talent. Kurt signed his first Disney film contract for "Follow Me, Boys" and he has made nine of them since that time. His most recent one is called "The Strongest Man in the World."

Kurt lives in a mountain cabin he named "The Wall of Off A-Story-A," located about 100 miles from Hollywood. Kurt likes to write and he has even recorded an album called "Kurt Russell" on Capitol Records. You can write to him in care of ABC Press Relations, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10019.

What is Diana Rigg's birthdate? Where in England was she born? When did she begin acting? When did "The Avengers" begin and how long was she in it? Also include an address and please print a picture.

R.U.
Palatine

Diana was born in Doncaster, Yorkshire, spent the first eight years of her life in Rajasthan, India and then returned to England. Her acting career began in 1959 when she signed a five-year contract with the Royal Shakespeare Company. Her reputation grew stronger after appearing in such plays as "Becket," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Comedy of Errors," "King Lear" and many others. After accepting a television role in Donald Churchill's "The Hothouse," she was signed for her role of Emma Peel in "The Avengers" in 1966. She performed in that series until 1968 when she began having much success with films such as "The Assassination Bureau," "On Her Majesty's Secret Service."

You can write to Diana in care of NBC Press Dept., 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10020.

Would you please tell me the name of the actor who plays Paul in "Apple's Way." Also where could I write to him?

C.C.
Hoffman Estates

Vincent Van Patten plays the part of Paul on CBS's series. You can write to him in care of CBS Television Network, Press Information, Television City, Los Angeles, Calif., 90036.

Is the show that Elvis did, "Elvis, Aloha from Hawaii," going to be on the air again this year?

D.S.
Rolling Meadows

It is possible that Elvis' special will be on again, but we don't have any information at this time.

"Fallacies of Hope" The beautiful dreams of the 18th Century are blasted by the betrayals of the 19th Century. The makers of the French Revolution turned into butchers, victimized by the most terrible of all delusions: they believed themselves to be virtuous. When Beethoven learned that Napoleon had declared himself Emperor, the great composer had to be forcibly restrained from destroying the manuscript of his Eroica, which he had intended to dedicate to the democratic Napoleon.

Fee will make parks curb use of school district facilities

Wheeling Park Supt. David Phillips said his district will have to cut back on use of school facilities since being charged a fee by Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21.

A 10-year agreement under which the park district cut Wheeling school lawns in exchange for free use of school facilities expired Oct. 15 and park officials refused to renew. They said the district no longer can afford to maintain school lawns.

School board members were unhappy about the decision and have voted to charge the park district the same fees as other community organizations and no longer give it priority in use of school facilities.

"Naturally there will be cutbacks in the use of school facilities," Phillips said. "But we won't be sacrificing any program quality by not using school facilities as much as we have in the past."

UNTIL NOW, many park programs were conducted in the schools because the park district does not have adequate facilities for all its classes. "We'll just have to make better use of our own facilities," Phillips said.

The park district has been using school facilities 652 hours a year, but Phillips will not estimate how much the use may be cut. He did say, however, the park district plans to spend only about $1,000 annually to rent school facilities.

"It really will depend on the scheduling of programs and we haven't yet figured that out," Phillips said.

A SCHOOL DISTRICT official estimates if the park district continues to use school facilities at its present level, it would cost about $17,800 a year. If the estimate is accurate, it appears that drastic reductions in the use of school facilities may become necessary in order for the park district to stay within the $1,000-a-year range.

The park district estimated it spent $5,700 a year to maintain school lawns. School Supt. Kenneth Gill said the park district had "one hell of a deal going" because its activities were being subsidized by the school district.

Park Board Pres. Robert Ross said Thursday night, the park district allows Dist. 21 free use of some of its facilities (Continued on Page 4)

Stavros transfer due to back ailment

Convicted Wheeling political boss James Stavros was transferred from the federal prison at Sandstone, Minn., to the federal prison at Lexington, Ky., because of a back problem and chronic sinus condition, a prison official said Thursday.

Warden Lawrence Grossman of the Lexington prison said Stavros was transferred there Nov. 2 because the prison has better medical facilities than the one at Sandstone. Both prisons are minimum security.

"He has been put in the comprehensive health unit which is for prisoners with chronic medical problems," he said. The unit is for inmates who do not need to be hospitalized, but do need regular attention from a physician.

William Bieber denied parole

William Bieber, former Wheeling building director, who is serving a one year sentence in federal prison, was denied parole last month, it was learned Thursday.

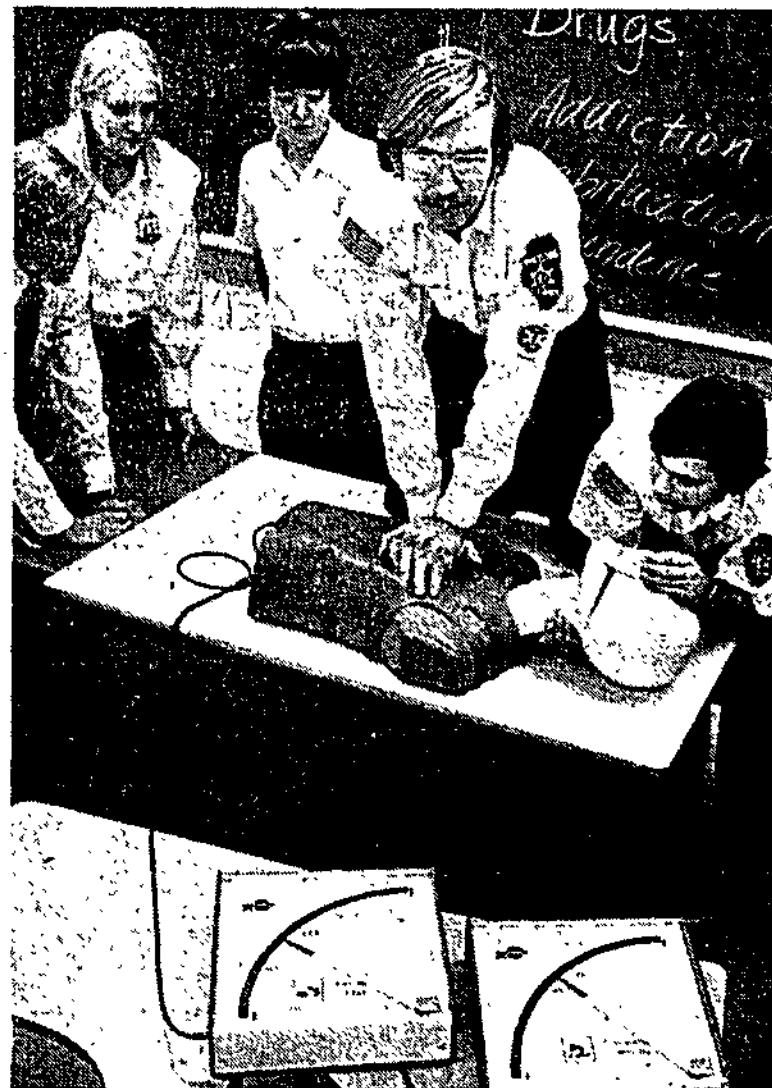

"He was up for parole Oct. 1, but the parole board turned him down," said David P. Schippers, Bieber's attorney. "He probably won't be released now until he has served at least nine months of the sentence."

Bieber, who pleaded guilty June 10 to five counts of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury and filing a false income tax return, has been in the medical center of the federal prison in Springfield, Mo., since July 18. Schippers said Thursday Bieber "has been very sick."

The former building director reportedly is suffering from a back ailment that was the result of a 1973 auto accident.

In exchange for the guilty plea, the U.S. Attorney's office dropped nine additional extortion and perjury counts against Bieber.

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 59 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came.

"It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 6 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS TO return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

Simulated disaster

Mount Prospect gears for worst

by STEVE FORSYTH
It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and North-West Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems pre-planned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m.p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village plans for a new library.

Blizzard conditions were reported and police were constantly receiving routine calls for accidents, holdups and assorted major crimes. The situation worsened as hospitals began to run short on emergency treatment equipment and oxygen, and at the peak of the crisis, a man was admitted for a head injury from a golf ball at a nearby golf course.

The disaster became detailed as a hospital employee reported a copying machine was broken.

In two hours the disaster crew simulated 24 hours of emergency activity. ISU officials said the exercise was most significant in teaching agencies what they could do with existing equipment and facilities, and how a real procedure might work.

EACH PARTICIPATING agency will be thoroughly critiqued in a few weeks, Dunlap said, and will be able to evaluate its own programs and efficiency. The program is funded under a Civil Defense preparedness grant. The university has a contract to provide staff and a number of disaster preparedness programs throughout the state this year.

Mount Prospect was selected as a simulation test site because of its central location in the area served by the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources, said Mount Prospect Paramedic David Gold, local project coordinator.

Park board looks at pool gutters in Massachusetts

Four members of the Prospect Heights Park Board were flown to Massachusetts this week by the manufacturer of one of two pool gutter systems the board is considering buying.

The commissioners were flown to Boston Monday and made side trips to Cohasset, Mass., and Providence, R.I., to inspect the gutter system at an indoor and an outdoor pool.

Board Pres. Max Lyle and Commissioners Robert Barut, Joe Lesnak and Bill Kuhns were flown by commercial airline at a cost of at least $640. All expenses were paid by the pool gutter manufacturer, the Whitten Co. of Massachusetts. Comr. Patricia Kerwin missed the trip.

THE WHITTEN system is part of slightly more than a $100,000 bid by Dolphin Pools for the renovation work at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street. The pool renovation is part of a $1.1 million parks improvement program approved in a referendum in June. The program also includes the construction of a community center/sports complex adjacent to the pool.

One other bid, slightly higher, was made by Paragon Pools, which uses a gutter system manufactured by Paddock Co.

Lyle said the pool the commissioners saw in Cohasset was similar to the one the district would be building. He said the gutter system is one with which board members were unfamiliar because there are none in the Chicago area.

The park board accepted the offer to see the system in operation before committing itself to the system's purchase. "Their bid (Dolphin Pools with the Whitten gutter) was at least $10,000-plus under the other bid," Lyle said.

THE OTHER TYPE of gutter system is found as close as Wheeling High School, Lyle said. Two commissioners have looked at that type of pool, he added.

A contract for the pool work probably will be awarded at Tuesday night's park board meeting, Lyle said.

Lyle said the Whitten Co. probably made the offer to fly the park board east because "they're anxious to get a foothold in the Midwest."

Sanitary district won't obey ordinance on sewage plant

The Metropolitan Sanitary District released an environmental assessment statement Thursday indicating the district will not obey a local anti-pollution ordinance in the design and construction of a huge sewage plant in Des Plaines.

The sanitary district called "unlawful and unenforceable" a Des Plaines ordinance setting limits on air pollution that can be emitted from the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

The 178-page statement also disclosed that the district has dropped immediate plans to build a reservoir southwest of the plant site and said covered sewage reservoirs to meet the requirements of the Des Plaines ordinance could hike the cost of the plant by more than $30 million.

The statement outlines sanitary district plans to build tunnels to carry sewage from Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect to the plant for treatment.

CURRENTLY, SANITARY sewage and combined sewage from the six communities is piped to the North Side sewage treatment plant in Skokie.

The statement — the MSD's official justification for building the O'Hare plant and tunnels in accordance with the sanitary district's designs — will be the subject of a hearing Dec. 19 and 20 in Mount Prospect.

Forced by law to make the statement available to the public 15 days before the hearing, the MSD is tipping its hand to the arguments it will present at the hearing and giving opponents a chance to look at the plans and decide if they agree with them before the hearing.

While recounting already announced plans for construction of the 72-million-gallon-per-day plant expected to begin treating sewage in the summer of 1978, the statement also included several surprises.

• It disclosed MSD plans to abandon at least for the present a combined sewage reservoir which had been slated for property southwest of the plant site across Elmhurst Road.

Dropping the reservoir for the time being is apparently the MSD's method of coping with Illinois Environmental Protection Agency rankings which have said the plant and tunnels are of immediate priority, but placed the reservoir far down on a list for grant funding.

• The statement challenged Des Plaines' right to require the MSD to seek a city permit for plant construction.

The city ordinance is "an obvious device" to take the sanitary district back to court before the plant is built, the MSD report said, noting that the district already has twice won suits before the Illinois Supreme Court on its right to build and operate the plant.

The city ordinance is "unlawful and unenforceable" the MSD said, citing court cases to show that the city has no authority to issue permits for a project in which a state EPA permit is required.

• The report said if the MSD has to cover sewage reservoir tanks at the plant site to please the City of Des Plaines the cost of the plant construction will go from $95 million to $125.4 million and operating costs will go from $2.85 million per year to $3.33 million per year.

• It admitted that Higgins-Willow Creek is currently inadequate to handle the outflow from the plant of treated effluent, but said the MSD has plans to build two reservoirs south of the plant as well as to widen and deepen the creek.

• The statement said the plant without the reservoir across from the plant site won't completely eliminate combined sanitary and storm sewage from spilling into Weller Creek and into the Feehanville Ditch, but said it will reduce the number of times sewage flows into the creek from approximately 80 each year to 6 per year and would cut the volume of sewage flowing into the two streams by 72 per cent.

• It said the $36.5 million in tunnel construction might mean some land will settle around the eight drop shafts planned at points in Mount Prospect and in unincorporated Maine Township. While some blasting will occur when those shafts are built, the noise will be temporary and most other parts of the tunnel will be dug out rather than blasted.

Parks will cut usage

for various school activities. Among the park facilities used by the school district, he said, are ice rinks, swimming pools, playground equipment, the outdoor track and park land near schools.

He said the park district also plans to let the school district use the tennis courts at Husky and Heritage parks. "Nobody mentions all the things the school district is getting free from be park district," Ross said.

In a recent letter to Dist. 21, Ross said, "We wish to note that some students who attend Dist. 21 schools are not residents of the Wheeling Park District, but we feel that we cannot discontinue the use of our facilities and our grounds to the detriment of all children."

Under the new arrangement, the park district will pay $25 to use junior high school gym, $10 for elementary school gym and $2 for classrooms for each event. The district also will pay $8 per hour for custodians when they are not regularly scheduled.

In turn, Dist. 21 now will mow the grass at all its school sites in Wheeling. School-park agreements which provide for free use of Dist. 21 schools in exchange for lawn maintenance still are in effect with the Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights and River Trails park districts.

Car trouble leads to incident

Woman, 40, raped on Dundee Road

Sheriff's police said Thursday a 40-year-old Wheeling woman allegedly was raped Monday on Dundee Road by a man who stopped to help her with her car.

Police said the incident occurred at about 12:30 p.m. after the woman's car broke down on Dundee Road between Wolf and Rand roads. The woman's attacker threatened her with a knife, police said.

Police said the woman told them she was having problems with her car and apparently had it fixed at a gas station at Wolf and Dundee roads in Wheeling. However, after the woman drove west on Dundee Road for a short time, her car stopped again.

Police said it was at this point the alleged offender stopped behind her car and offered his assistance. She accepted his help, but the man pulled the knife and then raped her after he entered the car, police said.

After the rape, the woman went to a business at the intersection of Dundee and Rand roads and called police, police said. The offender is described as white, 30 to 32 with olive complexion, black hair, clean-shaven and well-dressed.

The victim was treated at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. A similar incident occurred in the same area along Dundee Road Dec. 8, 1973.

A Schaumburg woman was raped by a man who offered to give the woman a ride to a hospital after she had been involved in an accident on Dundee Road near Saxton Place, Buffalo Grove police said. The man, who never was apprehended, then dumped the woman several blocks from Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

Tests show contradictory results

How much are students learning?

by JUDY JOBBITT

A news analysis

Confusion reigns in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 over just how much children are learning.

Two sets of contradictory figures show students are "average" and "above average" — and both sets are right.

Parents in Dist. 21 have complained that standardized test scores show children are only doing average work in a community with above-average resources.

The scores are determined by student performances on tests that cover material they "should know" in their year and month of school. Dist. 21 students scored at or slightly above their grade levels on the national tests, showing they know what they should — or a little more.

However, another set of figures — percentiles — which compare Dist. 21 student scores to scores throughout the nation, show they are doing better than most of their peers.

Students in the third grade scored 75 per cent; fourth grade scored 58.57 per cent; fifth grade scored 63.85 per cent; sixth grade scored 50.42 per cent; seventh grade scored 54.3 per cent and eighth grade scored 54 per cent.

POE AND RILEY elementary school students scored in the 80-90 percentile. Irving, Longfellow, Tarkington, Frost and Alcott elementary schools showed scores between 60-80 per cent.

Low test scores were recorded in Field, Hawthorne and Twain elementary schools, with Field and Twain scoring in the 40th percentile.

Iowa Basic standardized tests measure achievement in vocabulary, reading comprehension, language skills, work-study skills and mathematics skills.

THE REASON WHY some schools showed lower test results is because the district includes scores from all students, including those with learning difficulties and bilingual students, said Supt. Kenneth Gill. Those students are more heavily concentrated at some schools than at others.

Caucus challenged on tests panel

Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 has challenged the right of the district's General Caucus to form a committee to study student test scores.

Gill turned down a request from the caucus committee that he and Richard Wynn, special education director, meet with the committee to discuss the scores.

"This seems like a very strange request coming from a group that was formed for the purpose of selecting qualified school board candidates," Gill stated in his letter to Sally Benoit, committee member. "I question your authority to branch out into other areas of endeavor under the caucus banner."

PARENTS ASKED the school board last week about the district having average scores in a community with above-average education background, income and educational resources. The caucus established the study committee Monday to investigate the reasons for the average scores.

Mary Ellen Feldman, caucus chairman, said she is allowed to set up special committees. In this instance, however, the membership voted to establish the group looking into test scores, she said.

GILL ALSO SENT a notice to the PTO and PTA organizations stating he would meet with either group to discuss test results.

He acknowledged Mrs. Benoit's request to meet with the caucus committee in the PTA-PTO letters stating, "We are refusing this invitation on the basis that such activities on the part of the caucus usurps the purpose for which the caucus was convened."

"It is my understanding that the single purpose of the caucus is to select qualified school board candidates to run in the upcoming election. It is also my contention that they should stick to this purpose until they have been authorized by you to move out into other areas of endeavor in your name."

Field scored in the 40th percentile or below in all skills except work-study.

The district also is bringing in two consultants from Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, to analyze the test scores. Wesley Many, assistant dean of the college of education, and Harold Collins, a specialist in statistics, have done similar studies in other school districts.

The district received notice of their services Thursday.

Weather key factor

Court park lot to be open by winter?

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt predicted Thursday a parking lot that will accommodate traffic for a planned branch of Circuit Court in the village hall will be completed before the end of the construction season.

If the work is finished by then, the court probably would open sometime this winter.

"Right now construction of the parking lot is going along well and I think it will be finished soon," Passolt said. "But I can't estimate exactly when."

Work on the parking lot was started Nov. 2 and Larry Oppenheimer, village engineer and director of public works, said the completion date will depend on the weather.

THE DECISION to establish a branch of the 2nd Municipal District Court to serve Wheeling and Buffalo Grove was made last April, but court officials said it would not be opened until an additional parking lot was constructed.

Village officials originally predicted the lot would be finished by Aug. 1. Construction was delayed, however, because bids came in considerably higher than anticipated.

Several weeks ago the village board rejected the bids, saying village employees could do most of the work and save the village a substantial amount of money.

Earlier this month, the village hired Country Service and Supply Co., a firm linked to convicted political boss James Stavros, to do about $900 worth of excavation work.

Passolt said the village is eager to complete the parking lot and hired Country Service because it was the only firm it could get. He said the village could not rent adequate equipment to do the excavating.

Circuit Court Judge Harold Sullivan said once the lot is finished, court officials will need 45 days to complete the transfer from Arlington Heights to Wheeling.

said. "He has been examined by a physician and will undergo physical therapy for the problem. He also has a chronic sinus condition."

Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, was among six Wheeling and Cook County officials indicted by a federal grand jury Jan. 31 following a year-long investigation into corruption in the village.

Stavros pleaded guilty April 30 to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers and filing a false income tax return. Three of the others also pleaded guilty to federal charges.

He was sentenced to a four-year prison term June 4 by U.S. District Court Judge Hubert Will. The U.S. Attorney's office dropped eight additional charges against Stavros, including alleged extortions totaling $121,350.

James Stavros

Stavros began serving his prison term June 25. Grossman said the transfer to the Lexington prison is permanent.

The transfer is being made because court dockets in Arlington Heights are overcrowded.

The parking lot will be east of the village hall and will accommodate about 100 cars.

Drops plans for reservoir

MSD refuses to obey city anti-pollution law

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District released an environmental assessment statement Thursday indicating the district will not obey a local anti-pollution ordinance in the design and construction of a huge sewage plant in Des Plaines.

The sanitary district called "unlawful and unenforceable" a Des Plaines ordinance setting limits on air pollution that can be emitted from the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

The 175-page statement also disclosed that the district has dropped immediate plans to build a reservoir southwest of the plant site and said covered sewage reservoirs to meet the requirements of the Des Plaines ordinance could like the cost of the plant by more than $30 million.

The statement outlines sanitary district plans to build tunnels to carry sewage from Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect to the plant for treatment.

CURRENTLY, SANITARY sewage and combined sewage from the six communities is piped to the North Side sewage treatment plant in Skokie.

The statement — the MSD's official justification for building the O'Hare plant and tunnels in accordance with the sanitary district's designs — will be the subject of a hearing Dec. 19 and 20 in Mount Prospect.

Forced by law to make the statement available to the public 15 days before the hearing, the MSD is tipping its hand to the arguments it will present at the hearing and giving opponents a chance to look at the plans and decide if they agree with them before the hearing.

While recounting already announced plans for construction of the 72-million-gallon-per-day plant expected to begin treating sewage in the summer of 1979, the statement also included several surprises.

It disclosed MSD plans to abandon at least for the present a combined sewage reservoir which had been slated for property southwest of the plant site across Elmhurst Road.

Dropping the reservoir for the time being is apparently the MSD's method of coping with Illinois Environmental Protection Agency rankings which have said the plant and tunnels are of immediate priority, but placed the reservoir far down on a list for grant funding.

The statement challenged Des Plaines' right to require the MSD to seek a city permit for plant construction.

The city ordinance is "an obvious device" to take the sanitary district back to court before the plant is built, the MSD report said, noting that the district already has twice won suits before the

Dual roles by attorney stirs conflict

A new internal squabble is apparently brewing in the ranks of Des Plaines city officials over the duties of City Atty. Charles Hug.

The dispute involves Hug's role as attorney for the city and the Des Plaines Park District and has stirred controversy among several aldermen.

The city council's city code and judiciary committee will meet Monday to review the matter. Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, committee chairman, said he is not concerned about a possible conflict, but rather about the fact that the ground rules for hiring the attorney were changed during the search the city has conducted to fill the position.

AT FIRST, plans for the post called for the attorney to hold no outside position and to work for the city full time.

"I feel that I owe some apologies to a number of people because we told them that," Abrams said. The decision to allow the work for the park district in addition to the duties with the city was made by Mayor Herbert Behrel.

Hug said he would step aside from the

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE NERMIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 59 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came.

"It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 6 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS TO return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

FIREMEN SPENT HOURS spraying Wednesday in Nairobi, Kenya. Fifty-nine persons died in the first crash of a jumbojet, and 98 survived.

DETAILS of a mock train wreck and ensuing emergency "action" in Mount Prospect are logged on a chalkboard to observers can follow

Simulated disaster

Mount Prospect gears for worst

by STEVE FORSYTH

It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and Northwest Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems pre-planned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m.p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers, and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village plans for a new library.

Blizzard conditions were reported and police were constantly receiving routine calls for accidents, holdups and assorted major crimes. The situation worsened as hospitals began to run short on emergency treatment equipment and oxygen, and at the peak of the crisis, a man was admitted for a head injury from a golf ball at a nearby golf course.

The disaster became detailed as a hospital employee reported a copying machine was broken.

In two hours the disaster crew simulated 24 hours of emergency activity. ISU officials said the exercise was most significant in teaching agencies what they could do with existing equipment and facilities, and how a real procedure might work.

EACH PARTICIPATING agency will be thoroughly critiqued in a few weeks, Dunlap said, and will be able to evaluate its own programs and efficiency. The program is funded under a Civil Defense preparedness grant. The university has a contract to provide staff and a number of disaster preparedness programs throughout the state this year.

Mount Prospect was selected as a simulation test site because of its central location in the area served by the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources, said Mount Prospect Paramedic David Gold, local project coordinator.

CONTINUOUS PROBLEMS flowed through the hands of these officials during a two-hour simulated train wreck disaster Thursday in Mount Prospect. About 100 persons participated in the drill sponsored by Illinois State University.

park district post if any conflict developed between the city and the district. Both Behrel and Park District Pres. Thomas Mahon have agreed to that decision.

Some city officials noted all of the 50 candidates who applied for the job had been told that the salary range would be between $18,000 and $20,000. Hug will receive $23,000.

ABRAMS AND THE other city officials are of the opinion that Hug will serve the city well. But he said that it is possible the caliber of the other applicants for the post could have been higher if the increased salary and permission to do outside legal work were offered to all applicants.

Hug will receive about $3,000 annually for the park district post. Additional monies could be made available for trial costs if needed.

Abrams said he still prefers that the city attorney hold no outside job and indicated he will press for this. However, he said he had no idea what action the city council might take on the matter.

Behrel has indicated that Hug can continue in the park district post in addition to the city attorney's position.

Learn-to-swim classes kick off Saturday

The winter session of the Des Plaines Park District learn-to-swim program will begin Saturday at Maine West High School.

Registration for the program is being accepted at the park district office, 748 Pearson St. A $2 fee for the eight-week course will be charged.

The schedule will have fourth grade and up beginners, advanced beginners, intermediates and advanced swimmers meet at 9 a.m. while first-, second- and third-grade beginners, advanced beginners and swimmers will meet at 10 a.m.

For more information call the park district at 298-6108.

Scouting news

Cub Scout Pack 263 recently toured O'Hare Airport. Don Wilson from Delta Airlines guided the Scouts through a customs check where passengers from out of the country were arriving.

At United Airlines the Scouts toured a 747 jetliner. The flight engineer was available to answer questions and show the boys the inside of the pilot's cabin. Before returning to the terminal the scouts visited the airport fire station. Each Scout received a gift from Delta and United Airlines as a remembrance of their tour.

The local scene

THE NEW BUSINESS offices of the Central Telephone Co., 2004 Miner St., Des Plaines, was singled out Thursday by the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce for having outstanding architecture. The facility, completed earlier this year, was among five new buildings cited by the Chamber at a luncheon Thursday.

Five new buildings in the city were honored Thursday by the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce for outstanding architectural design.

The honors were handed out during the chamber's annual architectural awards luncheon. Each of the buildings selected for the award contained some particular distinctive design characteristic, said Kenneth Holmes, an architect who has designed the new Des Plaines City Hall and police building.

One of the awards was given to the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave. The library recently opened an addition which doubled the size of the facility.

Another award was presented to the William L. Kunkel Real Estate Co. Inc. and the architectural firm of Erickson and Stevens for the design of the Le rondo office building at 930

THE DES PLAINE Library was one of five buildings cited for architectural excellence by the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon Thursday. An addition to the library was completed this year at a cost of more than $869,000 and official dedication ceremonies were conducted in September.

Lee St. Holmes said the office building features a unique internal courtyard and garden area.

The new Trammel-Crow office building also was honored. The five-story building at 999 E. Touhy Ave.

earned its award because of the distinctive outside sculpture.

Also honored was the Central Telephone Co.'s business office at 2004 Miner St. This structure features an overhang design and has received an award for its exterior night lighting, Holmes said.

The NTN Bearing Co. also was the recipient of an award for the design of its new industrial building, 31 E. Oakton St. Holmes noted that it is somewhat unusual for an industrial building to receive an award, but that the exterior finish of this structure warranted the honor. Decorative metal panels are utilized to set off the building's walls.

The winning designs were chosen from more than 25 entries. The buildings represented projects that were completed during 1974.

In addition to Holmes, the judge for the awards included James Knight of Knight Construction and William Sebastian of Sebastian Real Estate.

All of the winning buildings received plaques commemorating the honor.

MSD won't obey Des Plaines law

Illinois Supreme Court on its right to build and operate the plant.

The city ordinance is "unlawful and unenforceable" the MSD said, citing court cases to show that the city has no authority to issue permits for a project in which a state EPA permit is required.

The report said if the MSD has to cover sewage reservoir tanks at the plant site to please the City of Des Plaines the cost of the plant construction will go from $95 million to $125.4 million and operating costs will go from $2.85 million per year to $3.33 million per year.

It admitted that Higgins-Willow Creek is currently inadequate to handle the outflow from the plant of treated effluent, but said the MSD has plans to build two reservoirs south of the plant as well as to silt and deepen the creek.

The statement said the plant without the reservoir across from the plant site won't completely eliminate combined sanitary and storm sewage from spilling into Weller Creek and into the Feehanville Ditch, but said it will reduce the number of times sewage flows into the creek from approximately 80 each year to 6 per year and would cut the volume of sewage flowing into the two streams by 72 per cent.

It said the $36.5 million in tunnel construction might mean some land will settle around the eight, drop shafts planned at points in Mount Prospect and in unincorporated Maine Township. While some blasting will occur when those shafts are built, the noise will be temporary, and most other parts of the tunnel will be dug out rather than blasted.

2 Rosemont men arrested for lumber yard burglary

Two Rosemont men were arrested by Des Plaines police late Wednesday and charged with attempted theft in connection with a burglary at the Des Plaines Lumber Co., First Avenue and Thacker Street.

Michael Sarillo, 34, and his brother Nick, 33, both of 6021 Emerson Rd., Rosemont, were arrested after they were seen leaving the lumber yard Wednesday night in a pickup truck loaded with 22-foot boards.

Witnesses told police they saw the truck enter the yard with its headlights off about 6:30 p.m. and leave the yard shortly after carrying 27 boards.

Police followed the truck east on Thacker Street and signaled it to the curb at Cora Street where the brothers were questioned and arrested.

The two men are scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Dec. 5.

Wednesday's incident marked the fifth time in the last two weeks that the lumber yard has been victimized by burglaries. Police did not disclose whether the men were involved in the previous thefts but according to police reports a pickup truck was believed to have been used in the incidents.

Two youths arrested in purse-snatch case

Two Des Plaines youths were arrested and charged with attempted theft late Wednesday in connection with a purse-snatching incident.

The incident occurred in the Jewel Food store parking lot, 819 Elmhurst Rd., where a woman was walking when the two youths approached her from behind, grabbed her purse and pushed her into a shopping cart, police said.

Richard Blake, 18, of 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd., and Edward Charles Walsh, 17, of the same address, were apprehended for the crime.

Police said Blake was arrested after a witness stopped him at the scene. Walsh was arrested later in the police station when he came with Blake's mother to see the youth.

In addition to attempted theft, Blake also was charged with battery.

Both youths are scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Jan. 2.

Blood plan for workers
gains support

A plan to include Elk Grove Village industrial park employees in a community blood program has received backing from the village's Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

Village Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said association members Bob Koop of "K and K Coffee" and Lew Handler of the "Elk Grove Bowl" are the newly appointed co-chairmen for the drive. They will work with Mrs. Vanderweel in coordinating all future blood drives in the village.

The association will have members working with its president, Jerry Capizzi, and Mrs. Vanderweel, who coordinated the start of the Group Sure-Blood Program. The program is expected to involve some 30,000 industrial park employees.

Both the regular Community Blood Assurance Program and the new Group Sure-Blood program are sponsored by the North Suburban Blood Center.

MRS. VANDERWEEL said several industries have committed themselves to the program since Nov. 12 when it was first announced and the committee has set several mobile blood draw dates.

"Including the industrial plant and its population, which is more than our resi-

1975 village vehicle stickers to go on sale Dec. 1

Elk Grove Village 1975 vehicle stickers will go on sale Dec. 1.

The $5 stickers in yellow and black match the Illinois license plate colors.

Regular fee for passenger cars and motorcycles over 150 c.c. piston displacement is $5. Vehicle sticker fee for smaller motorcycles and scooters is $3.

Senior citizens 65 and older may obtain vehicle stickers for 50 cents, however they must produce proof of age.

Residents must display vehicle stickers on windshields by Feb. 15. An additional penalty fee of 50 per cent of the cost of the sticker must be paid if the application for the sticker is made after Feb. 15, except when the application is made for a newly purchased vehicle.

A schedule of fees for trucks is established by vehicle classes and gross weight of the vehicle and maximum load.

The truck fees are:

Class A, B, and C, not more than 10,000 pounds $20; class D, E, F, G, 10,001 to 20,000 pounds, $30; Class H, J, K, L, 20,001 to 36,000 pounds; Class N, P, R, 36,001 to 50,000 pounds, $50, and Class S, T, V, 50,001 pounds and more $60.

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE MERNIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 50 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came.

"It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 6 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS to return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

FIREMEN SPENT HOURS spraying wreckage of a Lufthansa Boeing 747 jet that burst into flames and crashed Wednesday in Nairobi, Kenya. Fifty-nine persons died in the first crash of a jumbojet, and 98 survived.

CONTINUOUS PROBLEMS flowed through the hands of officials during a two-hour simulated train wreck disaster Thursday in Mount Prospect. About 100 persons participated in the drill sponsored by Illinois State University.

DETAILS of a mock train wreck and ensuing emergency "action" in Mount Prospect are logged on a chalkboard so observers can follow progress of the test. The exercise Thursday was the largest simulated disaster in the state.

Scouting news

Cub Scout Pack 190 held its November meeting at Salt Creek School. Cubmaster Jim Cashman conducted the business portion of the meeting and commended the boys who received achievement awards for the month.

New Bobcats are Mark Loveall, Tom Van Booven, Robert Lindquist, David Hogan, Reuben Bowen and Gregg Townsend.

John Minogue, Richard Helfers and John Gentile received awards. John Gould was promoted to Webelos.

Activity theme for the month was Indians and Thanksgiving. The dens displayed the Indian crafts they had made which included tom-toms, totem poles, headbands, games played by Indian children and Ojo de Dios (eye of God) used by Indians of the Southwest.

The highlight of the evening was the performance of the Nemki Indian dancers from St. Charles. The group is composed of boys and girls aged 5 to 20; their interest being not only dancing but also helping the plight of the Indians.

The Cub Scouts brought donations of canned goods which the dancers will distribute to the St. Augustine Indian Settlement in Chicago.

Snow tires stolen

A pair of studded snow tires valued at $100 were stolen from an Elk Grove Village residence sometime Wednesday.

Will Venditti, 850 Wellington St., reported to police that two snow tires mounted on wheels were taken from a garage he shares with other neighbors.

The tires were chained to a metal roof beam of the garage.

Simulated disaster

Mount Prospect gears for worst

by STEVE FORSYTH

It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and Northwest Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems pre-planned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m.p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergency agencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village plans for a new library.

Blizzard conditions were reported and police were constantly receiving routine calls for accidents, holdups and assorted major crimes. The situation worsened as hospitals began to run short on emergency treatment equipment and oxygen, and at the peak of the crisis, a man was admitted for a head injury from a golf ball at a nearby golf course.

The disaster became detailed as a hospital employee reported a copying machine was broken.

In two hours the disaster crew simulated 24 hours of emergency activity. ISU officials said the exercise was most significant in teaching agencies what they could do with existing equipment and facilities, and how a real procedure might work.

EACH PARTICIPATING agency will be thoroughly critiqued in a few weeks, Dunlap said, and will be able to evaluate its own programs and efficiency. The program is funded under a Civil Defense preparedness grant. The university has a contract to provide staff and a number of disaster preparedness programs throughout the state this year.

Mount Prospect was selected as a simulation test site because of its central location in the area served by the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources, said Mount Prospect Paramedic David Gold, local project coordinator.

Thieves loot car of Mount Prospect man

A Mount Prospect man reported the theft of $600 worth of stereo tape player and short wave scanner equipment from his auto parked in Elk Grove Village Thursday.

James Pasternock, 504 S. Crestwood St., told Elk Grove Village Police investigating the theft that his car was looted while parked in the Navarone Restaurant parking lot, 1905 W. Higgins Rd.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

MSD won't obey Des Plaines law

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District released an environmental assessment statement Thursday indicating the district will not obey a local anti-pollution ordinance in the design and construction of a huge sewage plant in Des Plaines.

The sanitary district called "unlawful and unenforceable" a Des Plaines ordinance setting limits on air pollution that can be emitted from the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

The 175-page statement also disclosed that the district has dropped immediate plans to build a reservoir southwest of the plant site and said covered sewage reservoirs to meet the requirements of the Des Plaines ordinance could hike the cost of the plant by more than $30 million.

The statement outlines sanitary district plans to build tunnels to carry sewage from Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect to the plant for treatment.

CURRENTLY, SANITARY sewage and combined sewage from the six communities is piped to the North Side sewage treatment plant in Skokie.

The statement — the MSD's official justification for building the O'Hare plant and tunnels in accordance with the sanitary district's designs — will be the subject of a hearing Dec. 19 and 20 in Mount Prospect.

Forced by law to make the statement available to the public 15 days before the hearing, the MSD is tipping its hand to the arguments it will present at the hearing and giving opponents a chance to look at the plans and decide if they agree with them before the hearing.

While recounting already announced plans for construction of the 72-million-gallon-per-day plant expected to begin treating sewage in the summer of 1978, the statement also included several surprises.

• It disclosed MSD plans to abandon at least for the present a combined sewage reservoir which had been slated for property southwest of the plant site across Elmhurst Road.

Dropping the reservoir for the time being is apparently the MSD's method of coping with Illinois Environmental Protection Agency rankings which have said the plant and tunnels are of immediate priority, but placed the reservoir far down on a list for grant funding.

• The statement challenged Des Plaines' right to require the MSD to seek a city permit for plant construction.

The city ordinance is "an obvious device" to take the sanitary district back to court before the plant is built, the MSD report said, noting that the district already has twice won suits before the Illinois Supreme Court on its right to build and operate the plant.

The city ordinance is "unlawful and unenforceable" the MSD said, citing court cases to show that the city has no authority to issue permits for a project in which a state EPA permit is required.

• The report said if the MSD has to cover sewage reservoir tanks at the plant site to please the City of Des Plaines the cost of the plant construction will go from $95 million to $125.4 million and operating costs will go from $2.85 million per year to $3.33 million per year.

• It admitted that Higgins-Willow Creek is currently inadequate to handle the outflow from the plant of treated effluent, but said the MSD has plans to build two reservoirs south of the plant as well as to widen and deepen the creek.

• The statement said the plant without the reservoir across from the plant site won't completely eliminate combined sanitary and storm sewage from spilling into Weller Creek and into the Fitchville Ditch, but said it will reduce the number of times sewage flows into the creek from approximately 20 each year to 6 per year and would cut the volume of sewage flowing into the two streams by 72 per cent.

• It said the $36.5 million in tunnel construction might mean some land will settle around the eight drop shafts planned at points in Mount Prospect and in unincorporated Maine Township.

While some blasting will occur when those shafts are built, the noise will be temporary and most other parts of the tunnel will be dug out rather than blasted.

• The statement said no buildings will have to be moved for the tunnel construction, but the MSD will have to buy easements under homes, apartment buildings, a school and park land for the tunnels which will be 160 feet deep in sections where they are bored out of rock and 40 feet deep where they are in earth.

• The statement includes a site plan for the plant which places settling tanks and aeration tanks — the open basins which Des Plaines officials fear may cause odors — across Oakton Street from a residential section of Des Plaines.

Copies of the assessment statement for the plant, the tunnels and for a sludge-solids pipeline to carry the solids from the O'Hare plant to the John E. Egan Water Reclamation Plant in Schaumburg for treatment, were delivered to various public libraries in the district Thursday. Residents and public officials who want to examine the statement before the public hearings can obtain them at the libraries now, said MSD Deputy Chief Engineer Hugh McMillan.

Salvation Army needs you

Ring them bells— for Yule charity

Bellringers to man Salvation Army Christmas Kettles are needed in Elk Grove Village.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, chairman of the Salvation Army's fundraising activity, said the group plans to locate kettles and bell ringers at three locations during three consecutive weekends in December.

"We've got the kettles and the bells and several volunteers, but still need many more to be able to man the kettles from morning to night," she said.

Anyone interested in volunteering an hour or more of their time may contact her at 439-3900.

George Coney is Salvation Army unit chairman for Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. Vanderweel said she needs volunteers for Dec. 6-7, 13-14, and 20-21.

The kettles will be located outdoors at the Bank of Elk Grove on Higgins Road at the Park and Shop on Arlington Heights and Higgins roads, and Grove Mall at Arlington Heights and Bluestield roads.

Cub Scout Pack 58 will man the kettle at the Park and Shop Dec. 7 from 1 to 2 p.m. While the Cub Scouts ring for Salvation Army donations, they will also sell candy.

Girl Scout Troop 631 has volunteered to man the kettle and kettle tent Dec. 14 in the Grove Mall from 1 to 4 p.m.

Alexian offers tours of addition

Area residents will have an opportunity to get a first look at the new $13 million addition to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village this weekend.

Guided tours of the new facilities will be conducted between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Included in the addition is a much-expanded emergency room, pharmacy, respiratory care, intravenous therapy, electroencephalograph and electrocardiograph, nuclear medicine, medical records and transcription departments.

The Alexian Brothers Auxiliary gift shop also has been relocated in the new wing along with admitting offices and the patient accounts department.

Enjoying the holidays topic of program

"Make Your Own Holiday" is the title of the second in a series of community education programs to be presented Tuesday by the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Township Mental Health Center.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Elk Grove High School, 500 W. Elk Blvd.

Ways of enjoying the Christmas season will be explored in a session conducted by Ellie Berk-Schaibly, a graduate of a three-year training course at the Gestalt Institute of Chicago. She is an artist, professor of Ikebana, interested in Eastern and Western philosophies and has been teaching and leading groups for several years.

Admission is $2 at the door for individuals or all members of one family.

The informal session is to include interaction between the audience and the speaker rather than a lecture.

3 weigh decision on seeking election

Three incumbent trustees in Elk Grove Village have not decided whether they will seek reelection in April and no one else has expressed interest in their village board seats.

Fay Bishop, deputy village clerk, said Thursday that no nominating petitions have been picked up.

The four-year terms of trustees Ronald Chernick, Edward Kenna and Michael Tosto all expire next spring.

"I want to run but it's a decision I will have to postpone until I discuss it further with my family," said Chernick. "During past elections they have been my campaign managers and my best backers and I will not make this decision without a good family talk about it."

CHERNICK SAID he can perform his official duties because his office is located in the village.

Kenna also indicated he will have to consult with his family before making any final decision about seeking reelection.

Chernick has served on the village board since 1964. Kenna and Tosto are both completing their first four-year terms.

The first day of filing nominating petitions is Jan. 6, 1975. Deadline is Feb. 10. Petitions are available at the clerk's office in the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave.

Terms of office do not expire until 1977 for Village Pres. Charles Zettek, Clerk Eleanor Turner and Trustees Nanci Vanderweel, Theodore Stadler, and George Spees.

2 other incumbents still undecided

Rathman won't seek re-election as trustee

Hoffman Estates Trustee Dyrle Rathman has announced he will not seek re-election to the village board in April.

Two other incumbents whose terms expire in April said they have not yet decided whether to seek another term, but one, Edward Hennessy said he is leaning "80 per cent to 20 per cent" against running.

The other, William Cowin, the board's senior member, said he is undecided but will make a decision soon. Sources have indicated Cowin will probably run again.

RATHMAN SAID HE decided late last week to retire from the board after only one term of office. He said the time involved in the trustee's post, his family and job commitments were in part behind his decision.

Rathman added a vote by the board last month turning down a pay increase for trustees also was a factor in his decision.

"That would have certainly been a large factor," Rathman said of the salary matter. "I had to weigh the pluses and minuses and that was on the minus side, but it was not the only factor."

Hennessy said time requirements and the salary decision were also weighing on his decision. "It takes a great deal of time," he said Thursday. "Your time is pretty well committed when you are on that board."

Hennessy added he also thought the monetary compensation for the job was

Dems slate-making session Tuesday

The Schaumburg Township Regular Democratic Organization announced Thursday it will hold the first of two slate-making sessions Tuesday to field a ticket for the village elections.

The slate will be the first the Democrats have supported locally since 1971.

The Tuesday meeting at 8 p.m. will be at the party headquarters, 638 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg. A second meeting for persons unable to attend the Tuesday session will be Dec. 3.

A panel of party members, yet to be selected, will sit with committeemen

John Morrissey on the slate-making committee, a spokesman said Thursday. Only Mel Budish, 225 Rosedale Ln., has said he will seek the party's endorsement for a trustee's post.

The spokesman said several others have indicated unofficially that they may attempt to run but he declined to name them.

The deadline for persons running on a party ticket to file petitions for office is next month. Independent candidates have until February to file for the election.

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE MERNIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 59 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came. "It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 8 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS to return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

FIREMEN SPENT HOURS spraying Wednesday in Nairobi, Kenya. Fifty-nine persons died in the first crash of a jumbojet, and 98 survived.

Fire station needs $18,000 improvements

About $18,000 worth of interior improvements are needed to complete Hoffman Estates Fire Station No. 3, Deputy Chief Ed Kalasa said Wednesday.

The improvements were left out of the construction project in case cost overruns resulted during the building of the one-story structure, Kalasa said. Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, who serves as the fire protection district's treasurer, said there is about $30,000 left in the account for the station at 1700 Moon Lake Blvd.

The deputy chief said the basement training room needed a drop ceiling, painted walls, carpeting and projector equipment. Other items needing purchase are blackboards, recreation equipment, a riding lawnmower, a snowblower, hose washer and dryer, shelving and a slide projector.

THE PROJECTOR would be needed for the alarm room so when there was a call to a large building a structural layout could be viewed by the radio operator and information verbally given to firefighters at the scene, Kalasa said. He added that the lawnmower would save manpower time in cutting grass at all three fire stations and that the snowblower was needed because snow tends to drift in the area because the land is open.

The fire and deputy chiefs, training officer and radio operators presently work out of the new fire station. The staffing of the station will depend upon when the village finally assumes the district's fire-fighting responsibilities.

In other business, Chief Carl Selke said three new firemen will be starting Dec. 3. They are Jerry Glaser, Randy Stevenson and John Repede. Two of the three vacancies were created recently with the resignations of Dennis Enabnit and Francis O'Shea Jr.

Many double dip as security guards

Police hit for 'illegal' moonlighting

by STEVE BROWN

A private investigators association has criticized several area police departments for what it calls the "illegal" practice of permitting policemen to moonlight as security guards.

The Associated Detectives of Illinois has threatened to file suit over the practice, which it says deprives licensed private security companies of business as well as diverting tax money to private businesses.

"It's illegal," asserted Ron Bower, of Bower Investigation, Des Plaines, which is handling the association's probe of police departments that help place off-duty policemen in private security jobs. "It is like they are selling their badge and their guns," he said.

"Who pays for the court time and insurance when these men are working private jobs?"

THE ASSOCIATED Detectives of Illinois says the off-duty police may be working illegally because they are not complying with regulations of the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education regarding private investigators.

The practice also has become the target of a probe by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the suburbs and Chicago. Private investigators say policemen who moonlight as security guards should be licensed by the state.

A Herald survey of local police departments indicates that most communities allow their men to work as security guards or handle traffic details in their off-duty hours.

MOST SUBURBS use some form of hire-back system under which businesses contract with police departments to use off-duty policemen as security men. The businesses pay the departments, which in turn pay the men.

Police officials in Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg all said that they use the hire-back method or special assignment provisions.

Rolling Meadows police said their men are not allowed to handle security guard duties because they are not licensed to work as private security guards.

Hoffman Estates and Wheeling allow their officers to work outside the community, but they cannot wear their uniforms or identify themselves as police officers.

ALL OF THE towns surveyed indicate they have a policy that allows their men to handle traffic control details requested by local businesses. The details are established through the department. Illinois law states that uninformed police are the only persons who can legally direct traffic on county, state or federal roads.

Most towns schedule any court cases that may develop during an officer's off-duty jobs during the officer's regular monthly court time.

Bower contends that even under the hire-back program police are acting in violation of the law because these jobs are beyond their normal law enforcement duties. Illinois law covering private investigators and security guards exempts police from the standards as long as they are operating within their normal duties.

Bower also argued that police have the benefit of training programs paid for with taxes.

Memorial tree planting Saturday

The Spring Valley Nature Club will hold a tree dedication Saturday as a memorial to the late mother of one of the club members.

A memorial tree, the first of many planned for Schaumburg's Spring Valley Nature Preserve, will be planted in honor of Edith Iltolio, a club spokesman said.

Mrs. Iltolio, who died last spring, is the mother of Alan Larson, a club member.

The ceremony will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at the nature preserve, Lamorak Drive and Plum Grove Road.

In Schaumburg Township

Panel recommends library get $35,000 in U.S. funds

A recommendation to funnel $35,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds to the Schaumburg Township Public Library will be presented Wednesday to the township board.

The federal revenue-sharing fund committee of the board Thursday night approved the recommendation after library officials asked for $115,300 for special books and materials. The committee also recommended $10,000 for continued operation of the popular minibuses service for senior citizens and $4,000 for a radio system to allow efficient dispatching of the vehicle.

Vernon Laubenstein, township supervisor said he wished more could be recommended for the library, but that "we are feeling the crunch from all over." He added that after more revenue requests had been made, additional funds might be available for the library.

THE TOWNSHIP HAS received $47,211 in new revenue-sharing funds to boost its total of uncommitted funds to $69,325. The township has given a total of about $75,000 to the library since the start of the federal money-grant system in 1972.

Michael Madden, head librarian, said that after budgeting for personnel and maintenance for the present fiscal year that only 10 per cent or $45,000 was available to update and add to the library's collections. He said it was hoped that by scripping in some areas of the 1975-76 budget, the facility could put $60,000 toward new materials.

Madden said the library has been socked hard by inflation and costs of expanded services and increased demands. Next year's budget is expected to be about $117,000 more than this year's but most of the increase would be chewed up in personnel and maintenance costs, he added.

About $87,000 was required just to maintain the structure and to pay for utilities for a year and there were increased costs from expanding to a 7-day-a-week operation.

DEMAND HAS BEEN large, Madden said. About 45,000 to 50,000 of the library's 105,000 books will be checked out during November, he estimated. He added that libraries do increased business during times of economic distress because people wishing to save money or better themselves avail themselves of reading materials.

Madden said past allocations from the township have helped prevent the library board from seeking a referendum to raise the 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

In connection with the minibuses recommendation, Pete Wing, board auditor, said the usage of the bus service was good and that the operating budget was very low. He added that installation of a radio system would allow the bus to accommodate persons seeking rides the same day they call the township office.

Laubenstein said for the year starting July 1 the township could probably expect a little less than $190,000, about the same amount received last year. He added that the township is somewhat handicapped in determination of federal funds because it was based on the 1970 census of 50,000 persons in the township. He estimated the township now had about 60,000 residents.

Simulated disaster

Mount Prospect gears for worst

by STEVE FORSYTH

It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and Northwest Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems pre-planned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m.p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village plans for a new library.

Blizzard conditions were reported and police were constantly receiving routine calls for accidents, holdups and assorted major crimes. The situation worsened as hospitals began to run short on emergency treatment equipment and oxygen, and at the peak of the crisis, a man was admitted for a head injury from a golf ball at a nearby golf course.

The disaster became detailed as a hospital employee reported a copying machine was broken.

In two hours the disaster crew simulated 24 hours of emergency activity. ISU officials said the exercise was most significant in teaching agencies what they could do with existing equipment and facilities, and how a real procedure might work.

EACH PARTICIPATING agency will be thoroughly critiqued in a few weeks, Dunlap said, and will be able to evaluate its own programs and efficiency. The program is funded under a Civil Defense preparedness grant. The university has a contract to provide staff and a number of disaster preparedness programs throughout the state this year.

Mount Prospect was selected as a simulation test site because of its central location in the area served by the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources, said Mount Prospect Paramedic David Gold, local project coordinator.

Plans for reservoir dropped

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District released an environmental assessment statement Thursday indicating the district will not obey a local anti-pollution ordinance in the design and construction of a huge sewage plant in Des Plaines.

The sanitary district called "unlawful and unenforceable" a Des Plaines ordinance setting limits on air pollution that can be emitted from the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

The 175-page statement also disclosed that the district has dropped immediate plans to build a reservoir southwest of the plant site and said covered sewage reservoirs to meet the requirements of the Des Plaines ordinance could hike the cost of the plant by more than $30 million.

The statement outlines sanitary district plans to build tunnels to carry sewage from Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect to the plant for treatment.

Dropping the reservoir for the time being is apparently the MSD's method of coping with Illinois Environmental Protection Agency rankings which have said the plant and tunnels are of immediate priority, but placed the reservoir far down on a list for grant funding.

The statement challenged Des Plaines' right to require the MSD to seek a city permit for plant construction.

The city ordinance is "an obvious device" to take the sanitary district back to court before the plant is built, the MSD report said, noting that the district already has twice won suits before the Illinois Supreme Court on its right to build and operate the plant.

The city ordinance is "unlawful and unenforceable" the MSD said, citing court cases to show that the city has no authority to issue permits for a project in which a state EPA permit is required.

The report said if the MSD has to cover sewage reservoir tanks at the plant site to please the City of Des Plaines the cost of the plant construction will go from $95 million to $125.4 million and operating costs will go from $2.85 million per year to $3.33 million per year.

It admitted that Higgins-Willow Creek is currently inadequate to handle the outflow from the plant of treated effluent, but said the MSD has plans to build two reservoirs south of the plant as well as to widen and deepen the creek.

The statement said the plant without the reservoir across from the plant site won't completely eliminate combined sanitary and storm sewage from spilling into Weller Creek and into the Feehanville Ditch, but said it will reduce the number of times sewage flows into the creek from approximately 80 each year to 6 per year and would cut the volume of sewage flowing into the two streams by 72 per cent.

It said the $36.5 million in tunnel construction might mean some land will settle around the eight drop shafts planned at points in Mount Prospect and in unincorporated Maine Township. While some blasting will occur when those shafts are built, the noise will be temporary and most other parts of the tunnel will be dug out rather than blasted.

The statement said no buildings will have to be moved for the tunnel construction, but the MSD will have to buy easements under homes, apartment buildings, a school and park land for the tunnels, which will be 180 feet deep in sections where they are bored out of rock and 40 feet deep where they are in earth.

The statement includes a site plan for the plant which places settling tanks and aeration tanks — the open basins which Des Plaines officials fear may cause odors — across Oakton Street from a residential section of Des Plaines.

Copies of the assessment statement for the plant, the tunnels and for a sludge-solids pipeline to carry the solids from the O'Hare plant to the John E. Egan Water Reclamation Plant in Schaumburg for treatment, were delivered to various public libraries in the district Thursday. Residents and public officials who want to examine the statement before the public hearings can obtain them at the libraries now, said MSD Deputy Chief Engineer Hugh McMillan.

United Fund collects 79% of campaign goal

The Schaumburg Township United Fund has collected 79 per cent of its goal, with $9,180 in cash contributions.

The campaign is seeking to collect $11,750 to assist several local agencies. Campaign chairman Paul Werther of Commonwealth Edison Co. said pledges have come from the residential and business communities, but a stronger response from business is being sought.

The largest single contribution has come from pledges of employees of school Dist. 54, who have given $5,000.

The campaign is held locally in conjunction with the Chicago Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

THOSE AGENCIES include the Camp Fire Girls, the Clearbrook Center for retarded children, the Community Concern for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, Elk Grove-Schaumburg Township Mental Health Services, the Hoffman Estates Boys Club, the Northwest Cook County Girl Scout Council, the Boy Scouts, the Northwest Suburban Homemakers' Service, the Salvation Army, the Twinbrook YMCA and the U.S.O.

Contributions have been sought from residents through two mailings. Door-to-door solicitation of the business community and industry also has been part of the campaign effort.

The campaign has asked that $1 for each agency served be contributed.

Contributions may be sent to the Schaumburg Township United Fund, P.O. Box 564, Hoffman Estates, 60172.

The campaign will run through the rest of the month, but contributions will be accepted as long as they are submitted.

Officers of the campaign this year, in addition to Werther are Jim Zaluszek of Hoffman Estates, vice president; Geraldine Ilicks of Schaumburg, secretary; and John Sowa of Hoffman Estates, treasurer.

Republicans won't run slate in Schaumburg

The Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township will not slate candidates for the April municipal election in the Village of Schaumburg, State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said Thursday.

Totten, township committeeman, said the Schaumburg Republican Central Committee voted unanimously this week to let members support any candidate or candidates they choose in the Schaumburg election. The committee consists of all appointed precinct captains and officials who reside in Schaumburg.

"The position the committee took is consistent with the party's position in prior (Schaumburg) elections," Totten said.

Interviews for youth director begin today

Interviews for the youth director of Hoffman Estates will begin today. Selection is expected to be made in about 10 days, Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said.

The youth director position became vacant last month with the resignation of Bryan Syer. Syer took a position with the County Sheriff's Youth Services Dept.

About a dozen applications have been received for the $10,285-a-year position. The youth director coordinates programs in the village and oversees the Place With No Name drop-in center.

CURRENTLY, SANITARY sewage and combined sewage from the six communities is piped to the North Side sewage treatment plant in Skokie.

The statement — the MSD's official justification for building the O'Hare plant and tunnels in accordance with the sanitary district's designs — will be the subject of a hearing Dec. 19 and 20 in Mount Prospect.

Forced by law to make the statement available to the public 15 days before the hearing, the MSD is tipping its hand to the arguments it will present at the hearing and giving opponents a chance to look at the plans and decide if they agree with them before the hearing.

While recounting already announced plans for construction of the 72-million-gallon-per-day plant expected to begin treating sewage in the summer of 1978, the statement also included several surprises.

It disclosed MSD plans to abandon at least for the present a combined sewage reservoir which had been slated for property southwest of the plant site across Elmhurst Road.

It's basketball this weekend for Hawks, Saxons, Pirates

A Herald staff report

Three Dist. 211 varsity basketball teams open their seasons this weekend — all away games.

Hoffman Estates, playing its first varsity competition ever, will be at the Addison Trail Holiday Tournament, starting tonight.

Also going tonight is Palatine, being entertained by Maine East.

Saturday will find Schaumburg at Maine North.

Fremd will open the season on Wednesday night at the Glenbard West Holiday Tournament.

Two days later, Conant will get its campaign underway when it hosts New Trier west.

Here are the reports from the Schaumburg, Palatine and Hoffman Estates camps:

HOFFMAN ESTATES AT ADDISON TRAIL

Hoffman Estates will be fielding what its head coach calls a "medium quick" basketball team when it opens varsity play for the first time this weekend in the Addison Trail tourney.

"We're not very big," says Coach Jerry Segebrecht, but he's hoping that the Hawks' quickness will help them through their varsity and junior varsity schedule.

The Hawks will test Elk Grove schedule at 7:00 with Addison Trail furnishing the opposition on Saturday, starting at 8:30 p.m. The round robin tourney will wind up on Wednesday night when Hoffman faces Lake Park at 7:30.

"We wanted to play a varsity non-conference schedule to give the kids some insight as to what it's like to play varsity competition," explains Segebrecht.

Hoffman's 15-man team doesn't have a senior on it. All are juniors. As sophomores last year, this group had a respectable 9-11 record.

Figuring to start in this inaugural varsity contest are Tom Cannon (5-9) and Joe Gajewski (5-10) at the guard spots, Steve Currier (6-1) and Jim Villers (6-0) at the forwards and Gene Foster (6-2) at center.

Also on the team are Pat Flahive, Paul Harshbarger, Rick Karpel, Kent Karr, Randy Krizanich, Chuck Squires, Mike Strawn, Paul Lutz, Jim Moore and Steve East.

Segebrecht says he expects his boys to "hustle a lot, play good defense and control the ball on offense. They tangle with a handful of varsity teams along with the Mid-Suburban League jayvee schedule before the state tournament.

PALATINE AT MAINE EAST

Winning may be only secondary for the Palatine basketball squad tonight at Maine East. If coach Ron Finrock coaxes a victory from his boys in the season opener, it will be a pleasant bonus.

The coach's primary purpose tonight will be exploratory. Finrock plans to do some experimenting in an effort to come up with the proper team combination.

For the first time in years, Palatine has no outstanding team leader. There is no player who can compare with former Pirates Jim Arden or Rick McCormick.

"That will definitely be our one sore spot this year," said Finrock. "We have no star player. So far we have no floor leader."

The coach hopes to rectify that situation under game conditions tonight. His leading candidates are a trio of seniors — Chris Butrus, Al Iorio and Jim Herbst.

Compounding Palatine's problem is the fact that only two varsity players are left from last season's 9-11 team. Both are starters — Jim Maycan, the 6-foot-3 center, and 6-5 forward Mark Mara.

The Pirates will get help this year from 6-5 sophomore Kevin McKenna and Bill Stevenson, also 6-5. Both are untested at the varsity level.

"We'll take a wait-and-see attitude this year until we find out what we can do," Finrock said. "The guard problem is important. Another key to our club is to try to get Mara to go to the boards more. Mark jumps very well but we have to get him to play at both ends of the court."

Palatine will be trying to forge their first winning season in more than 10 years.

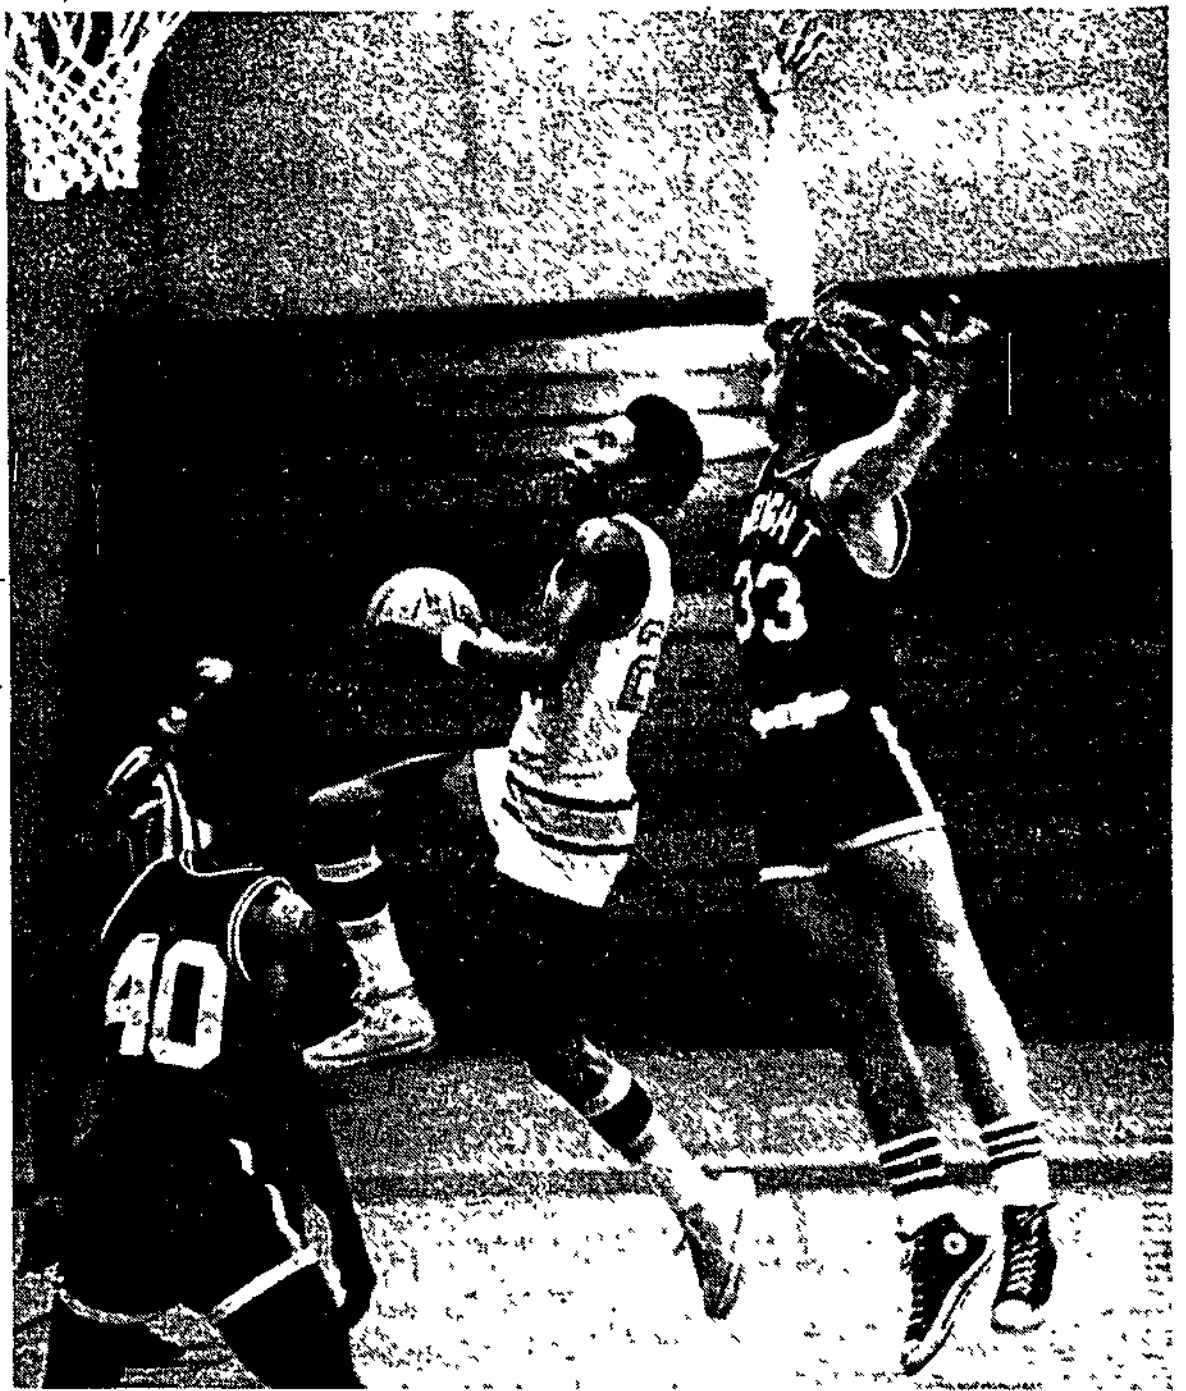

"We have more size this year," the coach added, "but we don't have as much quickness. We'll know more about the team after the first game. Then we may have to modify a few things, but we'll do a lot of substitution against Maine East."

SCHAUMBURG AT MAINE NORTH

The new spirit at Schaumburg High School is only partly due to the recent success of the football team. There is a feeling around school that the basketball team is on the verge of its most promising campaign, too.

"We'll be fielding perhaps the best team since we've opened the doors here," said head coach Joe Breault. "We're shooting for a .500 season and I

3 champs crowned today, 2 Saturday

10 Illinois schools vie for titles

Ten schools with a combined record of 115-2 — including eight unbeaten teams — will converge on Hancock Stadium on the campus of Illinois State University this weekend for the first-ever title games in five classes in the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Football Playoff Series.

All five championship games will be telecast live throughout Chicago and, in downstate communities with cable stations on the WGN system, while nearly 20 radio stations throughout the state will carry the games on the Big I Radio Football Playoff Network sponsored by the Independent Insurance Agents of Illinois. The hookup includes WMM-FM of Arlington Heights (92.7).

Champions will be crowned in three classes — the smallest three — Friday, beginning at 9:30 a.m. The remaining two champions will be crowned Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m.

Pairings for the title games are:

Friday, Nov. 22
9:30 a.m. — Class 1A — Flanagan (11-0) vs. Concord (Triola) (11-0)
Noon — Class 2A — Alexis (11-1) vs. Decatur (St. Teresa) (12-0)
2:30 p.m. — Class 3A — West Chicago (12-0) vs. Mt. Carmel (11-1)

Saturday, Nov. 23
11 a.m. — Class 4A — Rockford (East) (12-0) vs. Normal (Community) (12-0)
1:30 p.m. — Class 5A — Northbrook (Glenbrook North) (11-0) vs. East St. Louis (Sr.) (12-0)

The dramatic impact of "November Nonsense," a kissing cousin to the "March Madness" of the annual basketball tournaments, is expected to lure ca-packy crowds to Hancock Stadium both days.

Should single-session tickets (which allow the bearer the opportunity to see all games scheduled that day) be available, they will go on sale at the Hancock Stadium Ticket Windows at 8 a.m. Friday and at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

All but one of the finalists earned their berth in the playoffs by claiming their conference championship. Concord (Triola) emerged from one of the three "At Large" berths per class, which were filled from the ranks of independent schools, conference co-champions selected by their league or conference runners-up. Triola is an independent. Schools were classified on the basis of average conference enrollment. A total of 65 conferences were divided evenly among the five classes.

The Class 1A title game will pit Flanagan's powerful offense, led by high-scoring fullback Greg Gundy, against a Triola defense that has produced four straight shutouts and has allowed only 26 points in 11 games this season. Flanagan, the Mid-State Conference champion with an enrollment of 171, is coached by Roger Zehr, who is in his second season. The Falcons belted previously unbeaten Genoa-Kingston, 37-7, in their semifinal game. Triola, coached by Don Kemp, who is in his 22nd year, blanked Villa Grove, 14-0, in the semifinals.

Decatur (St. Teresa), with a winning streak of 32 games, will wear the favorite's cap against Little Six co-champion Alexis, in the Class 2A title tilt, but Coach John Eldor's Cardinals, even with a defensive unit that averages 160 pounds, have been scored upon by only two foes in 12 games. St. Teresa, under the direction of first-year Coach Ed Boehm, is the Big Okaw Valley Conference champion, and the Bulldogs blitzed highly-regarded Watseka, 20-0, in their semifinal confrontation. Although Alexis is a 2A school, its enrollment is the second-smallest of the 10 finalists at 194. Eldor also is the school's principal.

North Egypt champion Mt. Carmel will be the underdog in the Class 3A game against Little Seven champion West Chicago. West Chicago, coached by Paul Unruh, has an enrollment of 1,623 and is scheduled to leave the Little Seven next season to join the Glen Ellyn and Wheaton schools in a new league. The Wildcats nipped Geneseo, 2-0, in the quarterfinals and then blasted Elmhurst (Immaculate Conception), 20-0, in the semifinals. Coach Larry Davis' Mt. Carmel Aces have won two cliff-hangers en route to the finals, nipping Mt. Zion, 11-13, in the first game and then Quincy (Catholic Boys), 3-0 in overtime, in the semifinals.

Rated as one of the greatest teams the city of Rockford has produced, Rockford (East) will turn its balanced, high-powered offense loose against Capitol Conference champion Normal (Community) in the Class 4A game Saturday morning. Coach Bob Pellant's E-Rabs have been awesome offensively all season and have been held under 27 points only once — a 7-2 win over Downers Grove (North) on Oct. 4. Rockford (East) brings a 22-game win streak into the affair. Normal (Community) is led by fullback-turned-quarterback Kurt Swearingen and sprinter-turned halfback Dave Short, both of whom have gained over 1,000 yards rushing this season.

The finale features the "Afterburner Army" of East St. Louis against the defense-oriented Spartans of Northbrook (Glenbrook North) for the Class 5A title. Southwestern Conference champion East St. Louis, which returned 40 lettermen from last year's team, is led by quarterback Maurice Tolson and halfback Stanley Bragg, both of whom were members of the Flyers' state champion relay teams last spring. The Flyers have destroyed three foes thus far in the playoffs, including a 46-0 blitzing of Chicago Catholic League champion Gordon Tech in the semifinals. Glenbrook North, the Central Suburban North champion, after nipping powerful Evanston, 7-6, in the playoff opener, has gained momentum each game and trounced highly regarded Villa Park (Willowbrook), 25-7, in the semifinals.

Lion rooster responds to grid letter

Dear Sirs:

I am writing this letter in response to the ridiculous letter you received from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thornton (Fans Forum, Nov. 15). For starters, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, let's take this scene from a different perspective — the students. After talking to fellow St. Viator students I think I can speak for the majority.

As far as rights go, consider the students. Who are you to determine the way we show our loyalty? From your letter I gather you were not as loyal fans as those students who were standing Saturday. Those students have followed our team the entire season. Again I question your thinking that you have a question, if not more, right as these faithful students.

In reference to your third paragraph — from my past experiences at games, I know people tend to stand along the fence because the bleachers are overcrowded or for a better view, not because somebody refuses to stand up. It has always been that the students reside

Fan's forum

In the middle section of the bleachers, standing most of the time. So next time you come to a St. Viator game, try sitting on either side of the student section where many people have seen and enjoyed many games while sitting.

Your attack is unjust — I'm referring to the one on the patrolmen. There was no disturbance to be taken care of. As for our priests and brothers, they were watching the game and obviously saw no reason or cause to "control" — as you put it — the standing fans.

Have you ever considered the fact that you were infringing on the students' rights, instead of them on yours? If you were that interested in the game, I'm sure you could have relocated yourselves to a better spot.

And lastly, in no way do St. Viator and Sacred Heart teach their students to be inconsiderate of others. How can you judge any school negatively because they won't sit down when showing great pride and spirit?

Craig Ameel

Dear Sirs:
It seems Williamsport Little League people have the all-time strange logic. If they were running the Olympics and the Russians happened to beat us out for the team title by winning more gold medals, they'd probably rule that the next Olympics would be a private affair in the United States. They'd also probably rule that only those countries — such as Monaco, Portugal, Sweden, Scotland and other biggies — would receive invitations.

The Little League officials should all be fired for disallowing other nations from competing with the U.S. in the annual affair known as the World Series. From now on, according to these so-called officials, the rest of the world won't be invited.

BRING BARRINGTON HERE

Dear Fans Forum,
In response to a letter in Fans Forum, I would like to say that Barrington High School indeed is too big for its little brothers in the North Suburban Conference. It would be a good idea to bring the Broncos into the Mid-Suburban

Friel responds to pressure in Northland

There is a tendency by those close to the University of Illinois to over-react to any Illinois football loss.

The reason is obvious. There haven't been that many wins of any significance in recent years.

That's why it wasn't surprising when one Champaign-Urbana sportsman labeled the winning touchdown pass to Hershey High School product Marty Friel Saturday in Illinois "the play that may be recalled years from now as the one that put Illinois football over the hump."

Friel, a sophomore tight end, came off the bench to haul down a 25-yard scoring pass with 45 seconds remaining as Illinois tipped Minnesota, 17-14, in Minneapolis.

That writer may be stretching things a bit with his cheerleading of the moment, but there still might be some substance to the observation. It merits examination because of Friel's involvement.

First of all, there can be no question that beating Minnesota in football these days hardly merits front-page attention. Everybody seems to be beating the Gophers, one of the most puzzling football stories in the Big 10.

However, it still was a victory the Illinois program needed badly because it assured the school of at least a .500 season, something they haven't had in football since 1963. OK, all you Ohio State and Michigan fans, you can laugh at that, but there are some schools that view a .500 season as an "accomplishment."

Believe it or not, Illinois could have an honest-to-goodness winning year with a victory Saturday in the season finale against Northwestern. That's a mind-boggler in a program that has had such snappy records as 1-9, 0-10, 3-7, and 2-8 in recent years.

Every school tries to develop a winning posture, but a series of sub-.500 seasons chips away at any positive attitude. And it makes for a difficult selling job to the blue-chippers, kids who want to be part of a winner.

That's why the writer attached so much significance to the catch by Friel and the victory over Minnesota Saturday, assuring Illinois of at least a .500 season and possibly a year with six victories.

For the record, Friel, who was an All-Stater at Hershey in 1972, has pulled down only three passes this season at Illinois. Marty was in the game Saturday because the regular tight end Joe Smalzer was exhausted, but he didn't blow his chance in a pressure-cooker situation.

"Jeff (quarterback Jeff Hollenbach) threw it perfect," said Friel. "I saw the safety coming for me, but I never did see anyone else. All I could think was 'I hope I catch it.'"

Marty
Friel

Friel came into the game with Illinois on the Gopher 25 with a first down and 51 seconds left. Smalzer, who needed a breather after catching 10 for the day, probably would have gone back in on the next play.

Friel carried in the game-winning play from the bench.

"Marty came in and told me to call 'Sprint, back choice,'" explained Hollenbach. "He's the primary receiver on the play and he ran the route just the way he's supposed to. I almost was hit before I could get the ball away. In fact, I never did see Marty catch it. I was flat on my back. When I looked up he was running in the end zone."

Smalzer, the regular tight end, celebrated on the sidelines after watching Hollenbach and Friel click for the game-winning score.

"I'm happy for Marty," Smalzer said. "He's a very good tight end ... and don't forget he's just a sophomore. I can remember how it was for me as a sophomore. I had trouble just walking out on the field."

"He showed a lot of poise in a pressure situation. He's in a lot on goal-line situations for blocking purposes and there's a lot of pressure then, too."

How did Friel react?
"Out of sight," said the happy Hershey product. "I don't know what to say. I haven't caught that many passes here."

Positive reaction-under pressure is a plus for any athlete, and Friel responded with class Saturday that should lead to more playing time. He's backing up a fine receiver, but Smalzer is a senior.

From obscurity to a hero ... with one scoring strike.

"Friel, go in for Smalzer," came the call from the coaches.

One play later, Friel had a touchdown and Illinois had a victory.
Marty Friel will catch more passes for the University of Illinois, but he will have trouble topping the significance of that dramatic grab Saturday in the 30-degree temperatures of the Northland.

Yes, it's that time again. Basketball replaces football — at least in the Herald area — in the sports spotlight tonight as the wraps officially come off the 1974-75 high school season.

Fourteen area high schools will tip off their basketball seasons this weekend with 10 games tonight: Palatine at Maine East, Cary Grove at Buffalo Grove, Stevenson at Rolling Meadows, Barrington at Wheeling, Hersey at Crystal Lake, Proviso West at Arlington, Hoffman Estates vs. Elk Grove at Addison Trail, Deert at St. Victor, and Oak Park at Alpine West.

In Saturday play Prospect's highly regarded Knights will face a touted Evanston team in Evanston, Buffalo Grove travels to Stevenson, and Glenbrook North to Palatine. In the Addison Trail tournament Elk Grove will meet Lake Park at 7:00 and Hoffman will play Addison Trail at 8:30.

Five area teams were previewed in the Thursday Herald. Here's the way the rest of the openers stack up:

PROSPECT

For a team that has been in the Mid-Suburban League, playoffs three of the last four years, annexed two overall titles, tied for the championship on two previous occasions and won more games than anybody else in the 11-year existence of the conference, Prospect doesn't appear very ready to sit back and rest on its laurels.

The Bill Slayton-led Knights jump into action Saturday at Evanston and come back next week against two more traditional area powerhouses. With nearly a complete starting lineup back in the fold, Prospect is expected to hold its own in these early tests and continue on through another serious run for the loop throne.

A good many MSL coaches, in fact, have already labeled Prospect as the bunch to beat around here.

Slayton isn't buying any of it, of course. "It's a bit premature and not necessarily welcomed," he said. "There are too many strong teams and too many rivalries within the league to pick a winner at this early stage. . . and I don't exactly relish the added pressure."

The veteran coach did not deny, however, that his club has the talent to take the top prize. "It's been won with less material than we have this season, but other clubs could probably make the same statement. There are too many factors involved to equate any certainties in sports and our objective right now is simply to show an improvement over last season."

Just what do the Knights have? For openers there are Paul Withey, No. 3 rebounder in the league in 73-74 and owner of a 14.5 scoring tempo, and Al Black, the No. 5 scorer in the circuit with a 17.2 average. Withey is at 6-0 and Black is up to 6-5.

There is also 6-8 Doug Bonthron, among the top 10 most accurate from the field last season and a scoring and rebounding threat in his own right this year, along with 5-11 Mike Quade. All Quade did in the previous campaign was notch 84 assists (to rank third in the circuit), average over eight points a game and finish among the MSL leaders in free throw accuracy.

The fifth starting berth is open right now, but the coach is strongly considering four possibilities. One is 6-7 Ted Reynolds, another is 6-2½ Chris Elter, a third is 6-3 Dave Mann and finally there is 5-10 Mike Finley.

All are seniors except Elter, who is coming off a solid sophomore year. Rounding out the squad are 5-8 Mark Lougrie, also a junior, and 6-7 Duff Valentine.

Even a .500 mark would better last year's 9-14 overall slate, but much better things can be expected of Prospect. They finished strong a season ago following a sluggish start that had them dropping their first six contests, and in two late

Hawks, Saxons, Pirates to open seasons

think we can do it. It's not impossible."

The Saxons, winners of just five games last season, sport a new look this year with a pair of transfers in the starting lineup. The only returning starter from last year's squad is junior forward Jon McIlraith, who was top scorer with a 15.7-point average in 1973-74.

"Looking at the total picture," said Breault, "we've got a supporting cast this year to take some of the pressure off Jon. This might be the year that McIlraith shows what kind of ballplayer he is."

When the Saxons open Saturday evening at Maine North, seniors Ron Geels and Bob Viviano will be in the backcourt and juniors Marty Golub and Ed Chmiel will join 6-2½ McIlraith in the front line. Jeff Fahrnenwald, a 6-4 forward, and guard Tom Garrison will serve in reserve roles.

Viviano, a six-footer who can jump and Golub are the key transfers.

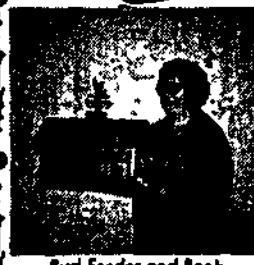

"Viviano is from Detroit," Breault noted, "and last year he played on a very disciplined team with a strong man-to-man defense. He's a good passer — very conscious of controlling the flow of the ball. He doesn't shoot much, but when he shoots it goes in.

"Golub is a good jumper," said Breault of his 6-3 transfer from Crete-Monee. "and he's a very aggressive ballplayer."

"We've got the speed to run a lot," the coach said. "We've got nice size — not really big — to play both ends of the court. On defense, we'll try to put on as much pressure as we can."

City officials call a halt to all hiring

by NANCY COWGER

Rolling Meadows officials have suspended all hiring, including filling vacancies in the city departments.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer said Thursday night he and city aldermen approved the cutoff "probably" for the duration of the fiscal year, which ends April 30, in a closed meeting Nov. 12.

The meeting apparently violated the Illinois Open Meetings Act, which restricts closed discussions of personnel to hiring, firing or review of complaints, all relating to individual employees, according to an opinion issued by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott. The personnel exception permitting closed meetings "does not include a class of employees," Scott said, except collective bargaining.

Meyer said the new policy is "a safeguard" and "a hedge," because the council does not "want to come to April 1 and not have any money." Exceptions will be made if there are any large groups of resignations, although it is possible not all these vacancies would be filled.

THE COUNCIL members also agreed at the closed session they would request department heads to list expected capital expenditures and priorities for their departments, with a brief explanation of the reasons behind the priorities. The council then will "see what we can fulfill" and what must be delayed until the new fiscal year beginning May 1, Meyer said.

The policy "will probably run through this fiscal year," Meyer said. New staff positions authorized in the current budget (Continued on Page 4)

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 59 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came. "It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 6 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS TO return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

Mount Prospect's disaster plan gears for the worst

DETAILS of a mock train wreck and ensuing emergency "action" in Mount Prospect are logged on a chalkboard so observers can follow progress of the test. The exercise Thursday was the largest simulated disaster in the state.

by STEVE FORSYTH
It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and Northwest Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems preplanned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village plans for a new library.

Blizzard conditions were reported and police were constantly receiving routine calls for accidents, holdups and assorted major crimes. The situation worsened as hospitals began to run short on emergency treatment equipment and oxygen, and at the peak of the crisis, a man was admitted for a head injury from a golf ball at a nearby golf course.

The disaster became detailed as a hospital employee reported a copying machine was broken.

In two hours the disaster crew simulated 24 hours of emergency activity. ISU

CONTINUOUS PROBLEMS flowed through the hands of officials during a two-hour simulated train wreck disaster Thursday in Mount Prospect. About 100 persons participated in the drill sponsored by Illinois State University.

City suspends all hiring of personnel

et will not be filled, he said. This includes three persons in the Public Works Dept., six men for the Fire Dept., two Police Dept. persons and a city housing inspector.

Persons who resign will not be replaced. A secretary already has resigned from the fire department since the policy was instituted, and scheduling and duty assignments for other personnel are being shifted to take up the load, City Mgr. James Watson said.

Meyer predicted the policy will not cause a decline in city services or problems in meeting work schedules.

"Right now, the police department, public works and fire department are adequately staffed. In public works, with the loss of one or two employees, I don't foresee any loss of service or problems," Meyer said.

THERE HAVE BEEN no resignations from public works since the new policy was instituted but Meyer said there are occasional vacancies there. Vacancies in police and fire staffs are less frequent.

"Let's do without, as much as possible, without curtailing services," Meyer said.

Meyer said the council did not vote formally on the new policy, but "talked about it, and the majority of aldermen said to go ahead and put out a memo." Meyer issued the memorandum to department heads this week.

Meyer said he had discussed the policy with the heads of police, fire and public works departments, and they agreed they could function with the loss of a few workers.

The six firemen represent a reduction from the personnel request Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty submitted before the budget was adopted. He asked for 21 men, but the number was cut to 12 and then to six. The city has delayed hiring any of them, and officials said the delay stemmed from late receipt of fire department property taxes. The cost for full-year salaries and fringe benefits for each man has been estimated at $12,500.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL housing inspector was approved to aid the city sanitarian in keeping local apartments up to par and responding to citizen complaints about health conditions. The budget allowed $12,000 for the full-time position.

Although Watson declined to comment on "our ability to hire or not to hire a housing inspector," he said, "I would hope that the council would hire this man. He's very much needed."

"We'd hoped a housing inspector would be forthcoming, but we'll adhere to whatever the city decides," said Bruno Man-nella, city sanitarian. "I'd like to have him but I'm not in a position to question the city."

Health Board Pres. Kenneth Johnson said he is concerned about the possible delay in hiring a housing inspector because much of Manella's time is taken up with apartment complaints.

The sanitarian primarily is responsible for inspecting all businesses and public places to see that they meet public standards of health and cleanliness.

Correction

Water loss due to seepage from water mains in Rolling Meadows is $80,000 per year, not $800,000 as The Herald mistakenly stated in a headline of yesterday's edition.

Police probe 12 apartment burglaries over 8 days

Rolling Meadows police are investigating a string of 12 apparently related burglaries in the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision and Kings Walk Apartments.

The burglaries started Nov. 10 and the last occurred Sunday, police said this week when they disclosed the investigation. Total loss from all burglaries is valued at less than $1,000. Items such as piggy banks, stereos and radios have been taken, and in one instance the culprits left the speakers from a stereo set outside the door of the home.

Police theorize that juveniles are responsible for the burglaries in the area, which is west of Ill. Rte. 53 north of Algonquin Road. Residents were entered either through unlocked windows or doors, or through broken windows. Juveniles are suspected, said police, because of the relative low value of items stolen. The apartment complex hit by burglars is located on Euclid Avenue at Plum Grove Road.

Police said seven of the burglaries have been committed in apartments and the rest have been in houses.

This is the first rash of burglaries the city has experienced in 2½ years, said Police Chief Lewis R. Case, who advised city residents there is "no big cause for any alarm." He noted the burglars have not entered any homes where residents were inside, property loss has been relatively light and damage has been minor.

Kenneth Butler, president of the Plum Grove Countryside Homeowners Assn., said residents "still have a lot of concerns." Butler has tried to reassure callers, but feels they are "probably not going to be convinced the situation is under control."

The Herald incorrectly reported that Clyde L. Coffey, Rolling Meadows, had been charged with theft by police.

Police said Thursday they mistakenly reported Coffey was charged with theft when he actually reported the crime.

Charged with the theft of mirrors from a truck in the parking lot, 4738 Arbor Dr., was William D. Sheetz, 21, of Gary, police said.

Hayden said his department would keep an eye on the situation. In the meantime, homeowners troubled by odors from sewer pipes should pour water down their floor drain pipes to alleviate the smell, he said.

Countryside to be annexed
next month

by JOANN VAN WYE
The Village of Palatine is expected to annex the Countryside shopping center and housing complex next month, adding substantial tax revenue to the village and allowing village officials to control development in the area.
The Chicago and North Western Ry. right-of-way apparently will provide the long-sought annexation corridor to the Countryside Mall, Countryside Apartments and Buehler YMCA on Northwest Highway near Quentin Road.

A hearing on the annexation of the railroad right-of-way from Quentin Road to Countryside Drive is scheduled for Dec. 9 at 9 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station.
UNDER A PREANNEXATION agreement between the village and L. F. Draper and Associates, developer of the Countryside complex, the complex will be taken into the village when it becomes adjacent to land already in the village. No annexation referendum will be necessary to annex the Countryside complex.
At the same time, said Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, the village is continuing.

THE NEW PALATINE Public Library, under construction at Benton Street and Northwest Highway, remains on schedule for completion in June. Construction workers will enclose the building with bricks before the end of the year. The $1.5 million facility will house more than 60,000 books and will contain community meeting rooms.

A new 'Franklin'
Palatine is getting a new Ben Franklin Store.
The grand opening was Thursday for the former R & R Variety Store, 56 W. Wilson St.
Ralph Deacon, an owner, said his store has become part of a national chain "because the town misses the Ben Franklin. We felt we would be doing a great service to the town and ourselves."
The former Ben Franklin Store was destroyed nearly two years ago in a fire that killed three volunteer firemen.

Many double dip as security guards

Police hit for 'illegal' moonlighting

by STEVE BROWN

A private investigators association has criticized several area police departments for what it calls the "illegal" practice of permitting policemen to moonlight as security guards.

The Associated Detectives of Illinois has threatened to file suit over the practice, which it says deprives licensed private security companies of business as well as diverting tax money to private businesses.

"It's illegal," asserted Ron Bower, of Bower Investigation, Des Plaines, which is handling the association's probe of police departments that help place off-duty policemen in private security jobs. "It is like they are selling their badge and their guns," he said.

"Who pays for the court time and insurance when these men are working private jobs?"

THE ASSOCIATED Detectives of Illinois says the off-duty police may be working illegally because they are not complying with regulations of the Illinois

Dept. of Registration and Education regarding private investigators.

The practice also has become the target of a probe by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the suburbs and Chicago.

Private investigators say policemen who moonlight as security guards should be licensed by the state.

A Herald survey of local police departments indicates that most communities allow their men to work as security guards or handle traffic details in their off-duty hours.

MOST SUBURBS use some form of hire-back system under which businesses contract with police departments to use off-duty policemen as security men. The businesses pay the departments, which in turn pay the men.

Police officials in Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg all said that they use the hire-back method of special assignment provisions.

Rolling Meadows police said their men are not allowed to handle security guard duties because they are not licensed to work as private security guards.

Hoffman Estates and Wheeling allow their officers to work outside the community, but they cannot wear their uniforms or identify themselves as police officers.

ALL OF THE towns surveyed indicate they have a policy that allows their men to handle traffic control details requested by local businesses. The details are established through the department. Illinois law states that unlicensed police are the only persons who can legally direct traffic on county, state or federal roads.

Most towns schedule any court cases that may develop during an officer's off-duty jobs during the officer's regular monthly court time.

Bower contends that even under the hire-back program police are acting in violation of the law because these jobs are beyond their normal law enforcement duties. Illinois law covering private investigators and security guards exempts police from the standards as long as they are operating within their normal duties.

Bower also argued that police have the benefit of training programs paid for with taxes.

WHILE MOST area departments do not actively seek private guard duty work, Bower said many merchants indicate police make subtle suggestions that hiring their men may be to the merchants' advantage.

"They give the impression that their service could be better because their men would be backed up by the whole department and would be available in case of trouble," he said.

The FBI probe centers on that aspect of the situation and security companies owned by police officers.

The Herald survey of state licensing records indicated that no local police officers operate agencies or hold private investigator's licenses.

Bower said his investigation has shown that much of the private security work in Chicago and some suburban areas is controlled by police-owned security firms.

Arlington requests 120 race dates

by KUHT BAER

John F. Loomer, president of Arlington Park Race Track, asked the Illinois Racing Board Thursday for 120 continuous racing dates from June 2 to Oct. 18 next year.

Loomer promised to continue the financial gains at the Arlington Heights track made last summer as well as its effort to draw new fans and a better grade of horses here.

The racing board is scheduled to hear testimony from other state racing associations today in Chicago and announce the 1975 racing schedule within the next several days.

"We anticipate that during this year's hearings the board will take the steps necessary to solidify the gains already made and insure the continuous healthy growth of racing in Illinois. This can best be achieved by giving Arlington Park additional racing days. Specifically we are asking for 120 days of thoroughbred racing from June 2 to Oct. 18."

Last summer Arlington Park had 81 days of racing from June 3 to Sept. 2.

POINTING TO THE first $3 million worth of bets in a single day in Illinois history, an attendance increase of 18 per cent compared to 1973 and total wagering of $138 million at Arlington Park this summer, he termed last summer's meeting "an unqualified success."

In support of Arlington Park's effort to create new interest in Illinois horse racing, Loomer presented videotape excerpts of half-hour color television broadcasts of six major races at Arlington Park this summer.

The promotion of Arlington Park as a resort complex with a hotel, golf course and theater also helped bolster race track attendance, he said. "More than 50,000 people were overnight guests at the hotel during the racing season, most of them were new racing fans," he said.

DESPITE HIS contention that better horses were racing at Arlington Park last summer than in recent years, Loomer was criticized by board member Ray Freeark for scheduling Arlington Park's major races on the same days that important races were being held at other Midwest race tracks.

"This really waters down the available field of top horses and the field at Arlington Park clearly reflected that. We did not draw the top horses," he said.

Loomer replied by saying he would cooperate with other tracks in scheduling the 1975 season. He also said it was his intent "to pursue horses out of New York, New Jersey and the New England area," where racing generally is regarded as being better than in Illinois.

THE BOARD ALSO criticized Arlington Park for alleged low pay to horsemen. But board members said the purse problem is a complicated one that will take changes in state legislation.

Board member Lucy Reum complimented Loomer on recent improvements in the educational and recreational programs for backstretch workers at Arlington Park.

"The programs this year tended to keep them on the grounds — keep them occupied," Loomer said. "When they're occupied, they're less likely to get into trouble," he said.

Mrs. Reum also emphasized the race track would have to live up to its commitment to the Village of Arlington Heights to replace about 20 per cent of its wooden barns. The barns are considered a fire hazard and are being replaced with fire-resistant concrete barns and dormitories.

THE RACE TRACK supplied a list of scheduled improvements this year that include a new 118-stall barn, resurfacing the main track, improved drainage around the track, added landscaping including 108 new trees, remodeled concession stands, fire-resistant flooring in the clubhouse, new grandstand lighting and brick facing on the front of the clubhouse.

Tax revenue to increase

Using its pursuit of two other annexation corridors to the Countryside complex. These corridors are along Northwest Highway and Colfax Street. An annexation election of the property owners along the additional corridors would be necessary.

Annexation of the Countryside complex will add between $25,000 and $30,000 a year in sales tax revenue to the village, said Jones. Because of an error by the Illinois Department of Revenue the village already receives approximately $1,500 monthly from the Countryside Mall. Countryside Mall has 100,000-square feet of commercial development including a Treasure Island Store and several specialty shops.

Another immediate tax benefit would be an increase in the assessed valuation of the village providing a broader base for the spread of the village tax levy.

NO FIGURES ON the population of the Countryside complex were available but the 110-acre development includes 720 rental units and 256 condominiums, now under construction.

Jones said a special census will be called next year to determine the official population of the village. An increase in the village's population could result in more state and federal revenue sharing funds, and state motor fuel taxes.

The special census will be called after the Countryside annexation is completed and the residents in three other subdivisions north of the village, English Valley, Heatherlea and Pepper Tree Farms, have held an annexation election. Jones predicts a successful annexation election will be held in the three subdivisions within three months.

Palatine officials have estimated the village's current population at 32,000, an increase of nearly 4,000 since the last census, even without the annexations.

PALATINE OFFICIALS think the Chicago and North Western Ry. right-of-way will provide the long-sought annexation corridor to the Countryside complex. Annexation of the 110-acre complex is automatic when it becomes adjacent to the village under a preannexation agreement.

THE ANNEXATION will necessitate some expenditures by the village, added Jones. He explained more firemen and policemen may have to be hired to cover the areas. The exact number of additional men that would be needed is now under study. The financial considerations are secondary to the importance of the village being able to define its boundaries to the north and east and control development of the fringes, said Jones.

Police probe 12 apartment burglaries over 8 days

Rolling Meadows police are investigating a string of 12 apparently related burglaries in the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision and Kings Walk Apartments.

The burglaries started Nov. 10 and the last occurred Sunday, police said this week when they disclosed the investigation. Total loss from all burglaries is valued at less than $1,000. Items such as piggy banks, stereos and radios have been taken, and in one instance the culprits left the speakers from a stereo set outside the door of the home.

Police theorize that juveniles are responsible for the burglaries in the area, which is west of Ill. Rte. 83 north of Algonquin Road. Residences were entered either through unlocked windows or doors, or through broken windows. Juveniles are suspected, said police, because of the relative low value of items stolen. The apartment complex hit by burglars is located on Euclid Avenue at Plum Grove Road.

Police said seven of the burglaries have been committed in apartments and the rest have been in houses.

This is the first rash of burglaries the city has experienced in 2½ years, said Police Chief Lewis R. Case, who advised city residents there is "no big cause for any alarm." He noted the burglars have not entered any homes where residents were inside, property loss has been relatively light and damage has been minor.

Kenneth Butler, president of the Plum Grove Countryside Homeowners Assn., said residents "still have a lot of concerns." Butler has tried to reassure callers, but feels they are "probably not going to be convinced the situation is under control."

New library site decision Tuesday?

Members of Mount Prospect's downtown development commission said they hope to be able to recommend a location for the new public library Tuesday night.

The commissioners are waiting for three alternative site plans to be developed by consultants Barton-Aschman Associates, Inc. After studying the site plans, the committee will decide which location will best fit into general plans for revitalizing the downtown business district.

Site plans are being developed for the Central School property at Central Road and Main Street and for the northeast corner of Busse Avenue and Emerson Street. A third site was left up to John Lockner of Barton-Aschman, who said he would possibly experiment with placing the library in the Emerson Street right-of-way.

VILLAGE BOARD MEMBERS have said the new $3.2 million library will be built at Central School unless the downtown commission asks them to consider another location.

The commissioners Thursday night indicated that the most important consideration in selection of a site is the cost of the land, the new library building and parking for the library. Impact on the development of the downtown area was the second most important factor identified by the commission.

In comparing the three alternate sites, the commission also plans to consider access to the library site, compatibility with future uses and how long it would take to acquire the site.

Robert Bennett, chairman, said all three site plans will be based on a concept for developing downtown by closing some streets and creating mall areas. The eastern section of the downtown area would be a government and service center which would include the library. The section west of Main Street would be a commercial area.

BENNETT SAID HE was primarily interested in how traffic patterns and parking would fit into each of the three site plans.

Once the commission makes a recommendation on the library, the group may turn to studying the village's proposed use of the old library building, 14 E. Busse Ave., and the Mount Prospect State Bank building, which it is purchasing for administrative office space.

Library sets up 'debate shelf'

Student debaters have their own debate shelf at the Mount Prospect Public Library, 14 E. Busse Ave.

The collection of books covers government, presidential selection, electoral politics and debate theory and technique.

There also is an up-to-date series of pamphlets discussing each of the competitive individual speech events that make up the national and state debate contests this year.

The books include "The Presidency Reappraised," by Rexford G. Tugwell and Thomas E. Cronin; "The Real Majority," by Richard Scammon and Ben J. Wattenberg; "Presidential Politics: The Scourge and the Stump," by Joseph P. McGuire; "Strategic Debate," by Roy V. Wood, and "Modern Debate Case Techniques," by Donald R. Terry.

Through the inter-library loan system books and magazines other than those at the Mount Prospect Library are available.

CONTINUOUS PROBLEMS flowed through the hands of officials during a two-hour simulated train wreck disaster Thursday in Mount Prospect. About 100 persons participated in the drill sponsored by Illinois State University.

In event of a disaster

Village gears for the worst

by STEVE FORSYTH

It was a normal rush hour in Mount Prospect — until the speeding Chicago & North Western Ry. freight train jumped the tracks at Central Road and North-west Highway.

Within minutes, according to a simulated disaster staged Thursday afternoon in Mount Prospect, every local emergency service and six area hospitals were involved deeply in the chaos that followed.

Detailed planning under the supervision of a special department of Illinois State University created a semi-realistic series of problems that added up to the largest simulated disaster test in the state. The entire program was run in the basement of the Lions Park Community Center, focused around large maps and tally boards to indicate the progress of the work.

All Mount Prospect village departments, the area hospitals, utilities, Civil Defense, the railroad and other agencies participated or observed. Program director Floyd Dunlap estimated 100 persons participated and another 65 observed.

THE SIMULATED Mount Prospect disaster included a number of staged complications in the 300 problems pre-planned for the exercise. The complications ranged from stuck elevators to a protest march at village hall, with citizens complaining about the 71-m.p.h. speed of the train and its acid cargo.

The "catastrophe" resulted in three deaths, about 2,000 injuries and about $15 million in damage, according to the damage estimate team. The crash involved 20 passengers, some leaking vinyl chloride acid and a herd of loose cattle, for which aid from farmers and cowboys was requested.

Local schools were pressed into service as possible morgues when hospital facilities became crowded, and other emergencies had to be handled while the disaster was going on. At one point a collision with another train threatened to complicate the situation.

TO ADD REALISM, the planners included problems with the news media, which wanted interviews, television film and hospital reports. A second march on village hall occurred, protesting village

Park board studies 2 pool gutters

Four members of the Prospect Heights Park Board were flown to Massachusetts this week by the manufacturer of one of two pool gutter systems the board is considering buying.

The commissioners were flown to Boston Monday and made side trips to Cohasset, Mass., and Providence, R.I., to inspect the gutter system at an indoor and an outdoor pool.

Board Pres. Max Lyle and Commissioners Robert Barut, Joe Lesniak and Bill Kuhns were flown by commercial airline at a cost of at least $640. All expenses were paid by the pool gutter manufacturer, the Whitten Co. of Massachusetts. Comr. Patricia Kerwin missed the trip.

THE WHITTEN system is part of slightly more than a $100,000 bid by Dolphin Pools for the renovation work at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street. The pool renovation is part of a $1.1 million parks improvement program approved in a referendum in June. The program also includes the construction of a community center/sports complex adjacent to the pool.

One other bid, slightly higher, was made by Paragon Pools, which uses a gutter system manufactured by Paddock Co.

Lyle said the pool the commissioners saw in Cohasset was similar to the one the district would be building. He said the gutter system is one with which board members were unfamiliar because there are none in the Chicago area.

The park board accepted the offer to see the system in operation before committing itself to the system's purchase. "Their bid (Dolphin Pools with the Whitten gutter) was at least $10,000-plus under the other bid," Lyle said.

THE OTHER TYPE of gutter system is found as close as Wheeling High School, Lyle said. Two commissioners have looked at that type of pool, he added.

A contract for the pool work probably will be awarded at Tuesday night's park board meeting, Lyle said.

Lyle said the Whitten Co. probably made the offer to fly the park board east because "they're anxious to get a foothold in the Midwest."

Seniors can speak up at meeting today

Elderly residents of Mount Prospect can air their concerns at a meeting of the Senior Citizen Advisory Council at 10 a.m. today at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 See-Gwan.

The main goal of the meeting is to get senior citizens' opinions and suggestions regarding the current programs.

The senior citizen program is part of the village health services department.

450 honor new commander Breen

Mount Prospect's Pat Breen is the new Cook County Commander of the American Legion, First Division. The installation took place at an Inaugural Ball at the O'Hare Inn penthouse.

Four hundred-fifty guests were present, including Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert and his wife Alice. The Breens and Teicherts have been friends since the days when their youngsters played midget football in town.

On the day of the installation, neighbors of the Breens named the day "Commander Day" on the block and flew American flags to mark the occasion.

TEN NEIGHBORS and friends from Mount Prospect presented Breen with an engraved silver goblet. Grace Iosco, 218 Prospect Manor, made the presentation.

The 10 were Mr. and Mrs. David Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Bob McBride, Mr. and Mrs. Don Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Iosco and the Teicherts.

Pat and his wife have lived in town for about 20 years. They have five children who have been involved in school and community activities.

On Veteran's Day, Breen assisted Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley placing a wreath at a mock "tomb of the unknown soldier" at the Civic Center.

In addition to the acclaim Breen has received in his new American Legion position, last Saturday he received other recognition. At the "54th" in the John Hancock building, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. honored him on his 35th anniversary with the company.

THERE'LL BE A demonstration of the Mount Prospect Park District judo classes Saturday between 10 a.m. and noon at the Lions Park Recreation Center basement. It's free.

Students in the fall classes, beginners, through advanced, under the direction of instructor John Martindale and Rick Fazio.

Appearing in the demonstrations, holding gold and green belts, are intermediate and advanced students Mike Sosin, Bill Kelly, Margaret Kelly, Paul McCauley, Mike Gregory, Danny Gregory, Wayne Gregory and Brian Hulka. There also will be 32 youngsters participating who are in beginner classes.

A NEW 24-HOUR family-type restaurant will open soon in Mount Prospect. It's The Three Doves, located at 208 E. Rand Road — the space formerly occupied by a Sunbeam Appliance store. Proprietors are Bill Piasios and Ted Dimopoulos.

Says Ted, "This won't be a specialty type restaurant. 'We'll be serving all kinds of foods.'"

Caucus challenged on panel

Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 has challenged the right of the district's General Caucus to form a committee to study student test scores.

Gill turned down a request from the caucus committee that he and Richard Wynn, special education director, meet with the committee to discuss the scores.

"This seems like a very strange request coming from a group that was formed for the purpose of selecting qualified school board candidates," Gill stated in his letter to Sally Benoit, committee member. "I question your authority to branch out into other areas of endeavor under the caucus banner."

PARENTS ASKED the school board last week about the district having average scores in a community with above-average education background, income and educational resources. The caucus established the study committee Monday to investigate the reasons for the average scores.

Mary Ellen Feldman, caucus chairman, said she is allowed to set up special committees. In this instance, however, the membership voted to establish the group looking into test scores, she said.

GILL ALSO SENT a notice to the PTO and PTA organizations stating he would meet with either group to discuss test results.

He acknowledged Mrs. Benoit's request to meet with the caucus committee in the PTA-PTO letters stating, "We are refusing this invitation on the basis that such activities on the part of the caucus usurps the purpose for which the caucus was convened."

"It is my understanding that the single purpose of the caucus is to select qualified school board candidates to run in the upcoming election. It is also my contention that they should stick to this purpose until they have been authorized by you to move out into other areas of endeavor in your name."

In northeast section

BOLI adds streets to sidewalk project

by MARILYN McDONALD

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements Thursday night added several streets to its northeast quadrant sidewalk project, including both sides of Windsor Drive in the sidewalk-free Stonegate subdivision.

Most of the newly added blocks in the northeast section of the village were described by BOLI Pres. David Patterson as "filling in sidewalk gaps."

Windsor Drive between Northwest Highway and Kensington Road was included in a surprise move because it leads to Windsor School and village policy requires properties within a half mile of schools to have sidewalks.

"You're really asking for trouble on this one," said Comr. August Bettman, the only BOLI member to vote against sidewalks for Windsor. "I thought you were just filling in the gaps."

BECAUSE OF THE controversial nature of the Stonegate addition, several BOLI members requested a meeting with the village board to seek direction from village trustees. The village board must okay or reject all BOLI projects before they enter the special assessment process. Some BOLI members fear that the board would eventually reject a sidewalk project including part of Stonegate.

The additions to the northeast section sidewalk plans created the need for a new informal hearing on the project. All residents affected by the plans will be notified of an informal hearing on Dec. 19 at 8 p.m. BOLI then plans to hold the formal hearing in January.

In the meantime, homeowners in the northeast project may post a letter of credit to cover the cost of sidewalk installation before Jan. 17. BOLI included residents who are already scheduled in the northeast project, but failed to post a letter of credit in October when it was originally requested.

BOLI HELD THE first informal hearing on the northeast section sidewalk project in late September. On their tour of the village Nov. 16, BOLI members pinpointed other areas where they felt sidewalks were needed. Rather than include those new additions in the forthcoming southeast section sidewalk project, they opted for a revamping of the present northeast project.

"People are confused about which sidewalk project they're in," said Bett-

DURING THE FIRST part of Thursday's BOLI meeting, residents in the area of relocated North Arlington Heights Road complained that sewer and water main construction would ruin their septic systems. Board members decided to defer the matter until their Jan. 9 meeting so the septic system problem could be corrected in the engineering plans.

CAPT. CHRISTIAN KRACK, pilot of the Lufthansa jetliner, has been credited by passengers for saving 98 lives by making an emergency belly landing that kept the midsection of the plane intact. Krack survived the crash.

Stewardess alive...parents rejoice

by DIANE NERMIGAS

Otto Rehm heard the news on the radio when he opened his small tailor shop in downtown Palatine Wednesday morning. A Lufthansa 747 jetliner had crashed at Nairobi Airport and 59 people were dead. He realized his 21-year-old daughter, a stewardess, was aboard.

For several hours Rehm and his wife Elisabeth waited for information on the survivors. Finally, it came.

"It's really bad, mom, but I'm all right," said Eveline Rehm, who contacted her parents by phone.

"WHEN SHE CALLED to tell us that she wasn't hurt, it was like she was reborn to us," Mrs. Rehm said of her only child.

"I was so numb when I heard about the crash I didn't know what to do. I was afraid to think about anything," she said in her heavy German accent.

Ninety-eight persons survived Flight 40 to Johannesburg when the plane plunged tail first into a muddy field shortly after liftoff. It was the first fatal crash of the world's biggest commercial jetliner.

THE REHM FAMILY moved to Chicago from Frankfurt 17 years ago. They now live in Schaumburg and own a tailor shop at 6 N. Bothwell St., Palatine.

Eveline began flying with Lufthansa more than a year ago after completing two years of business courses at Harper College. She always has been enthusiastic about flying and has made her second home in Frankfurt, Mrs. Rehm said.

"I was never afraid that anything like this would happen to her because she was never afraid that her plane would crash," Mrs. Rehm said.

"I think Eveline is strong enough to handle the situation that she's in now. When you take a job like that, you know you must do what is expected of you in an emergency," Mrs. Rehm said.

MRS. REHM attributes her daughter's safety to the skills of Capt. Christian Krack, 54, whose emergency belly landing of the plane kept the fuselage intact. A fire reportedly started in the back of the plane after takeoff and flames quickly leaped around to the outside. Survivors, some badly injured, dodged the growing flames and the metal debris of the wrecked plane to run for safety.

Mrs. Rehm said she cannot help but believe that a "guardian angel" watched over her daughter to keep her safe.

"You hear so many things like this on the news, and it never really means anything to you until it happens to someone you love. I thank God that our daughter is all right, but I feel bad for the families of those who didn't make it," Mrs. Rehm said.

EVELINE IS TO return to visit her parents Saturday for a six-day holiday leave.

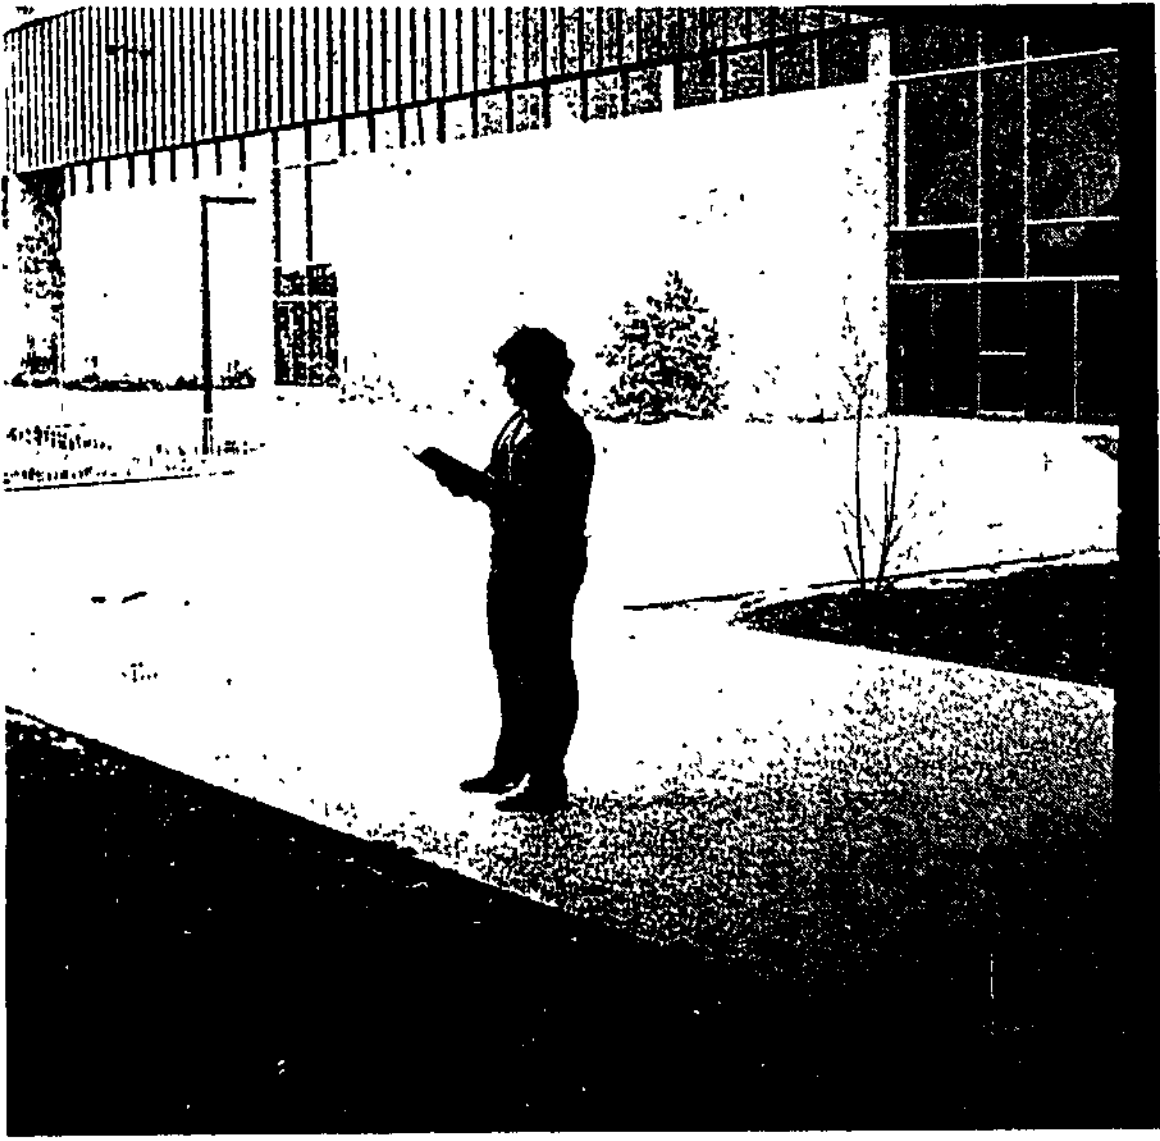

"She may want to continue flying or she may not want to fly again," Mrs. Rehm said. "This will be up to her. Sometimes the after effects of such an experience can be more harmful than the scratches you get."

"In any case, we will have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," she said.

FIREMEN SPENT HOURS spraying Wednesday in Nairobi, Kenya. Fifty-nine persons died in the first crash of a jumbojet, and 98 survived.

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT goes into a good performance by a forensics team member. This student gets in some last-minute practice before performing in front of a judge and his fellow students. In his event, interpretation, he is allowed to use a script because he must present three different selections for each competitive round.

No cheers, little applause for forensics competitors

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two chairs and a table set the stage. Brushing off the nervous jitters, two freshmen take their stance in front of the table and explain the setting. And a humorous duet skit begins before an audience of 10 forensics competitors and a judge.

This scene is typical of many in forensics. Last weekend more than 400 students competed in 11 forensics events in a meet sponsored by Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools.

STUDENTS WHO enter forensics don't get the applause, tribute or recognition awarded fellow artists in dramatics.

Forensics participants perform as individuals and respond to critiques from judges rather than applause from audiences. They participate in forensics meets Saturday mornings and perform only before their competitors and a handful of interested friends.

Training for forensics comes from participating in meets, coaching from experienced forensics members and adults and from observing other forensics competitors.

PARENTS AND other adults play a large role in preparing a team for competition. Their support is also needed to host a forensics meet where they can oversee extemporaneous speech preparation, act as guides and do much of the clerical work.

Students show the wear and tear of the preparation and anticipation towards a meet when they complete each performance. Signs of relief, giggles and smiles come from competitors after their event when they sit down to watch others perform.

Forensics often is misconstrued as debate or drama, but it is a field of its own. Also known as Individual Events, it covers a variety of speech forms including drama, original comedy, interpretation, radio broadcast and extemporaneous speech.

Whereas debate teams receive one topic per year to research and debate in various meets, forensics performers select their own work, can change it through the year and wind up with material as different as the number of competitors.

PARTICIPANTS in extemporaneous events are most closely aligned with debate because they produce speeches within an hour on a current topic. Extemporaneous students keep files with clips from periodicals to use at forensics meets. They draw three questions, select one question to write a speech on and present the speech an hour later.

Students participating in radio must present a five-minute broadcast with news items no more than 24 hours old. The presentation must be within 10 seconds of the five-minute limit or the participant is disqualified.

Dramatics and interpretation competitors can prepare their presentation in advance and present the same work at later meets.

Students go through three rounds at a meet. Each round pairs them against different students in front of a different judge. They must stay to hear all their competitors and once an event begins, no one can enter or leave.

The judge ranks the participants in order of excellence. The ranks are tallied and the school with the most over-all points wins the meet.

Students at Buffalo Grove High School said many on the forensics team are drawn into the activity through the oral communications class required for freshmen.

Mary Beth Lee, Buffalo Grove forensics president, said she entered forensics because she wanted to get over her shyness. Through forensics she learned self-confidence and how to present herself to others, she said.

TO HELP NEW forensics members, separate meets are offered for varsity and novice. A novice is anyone who has participated in less than three contests.

Forensics members also change the events they participate in as they learn their abilities and limitations in presenting speeches.

Larry Doyle started in radio broadcast but has changed to original comedy where he writes and presents a comic sketch.

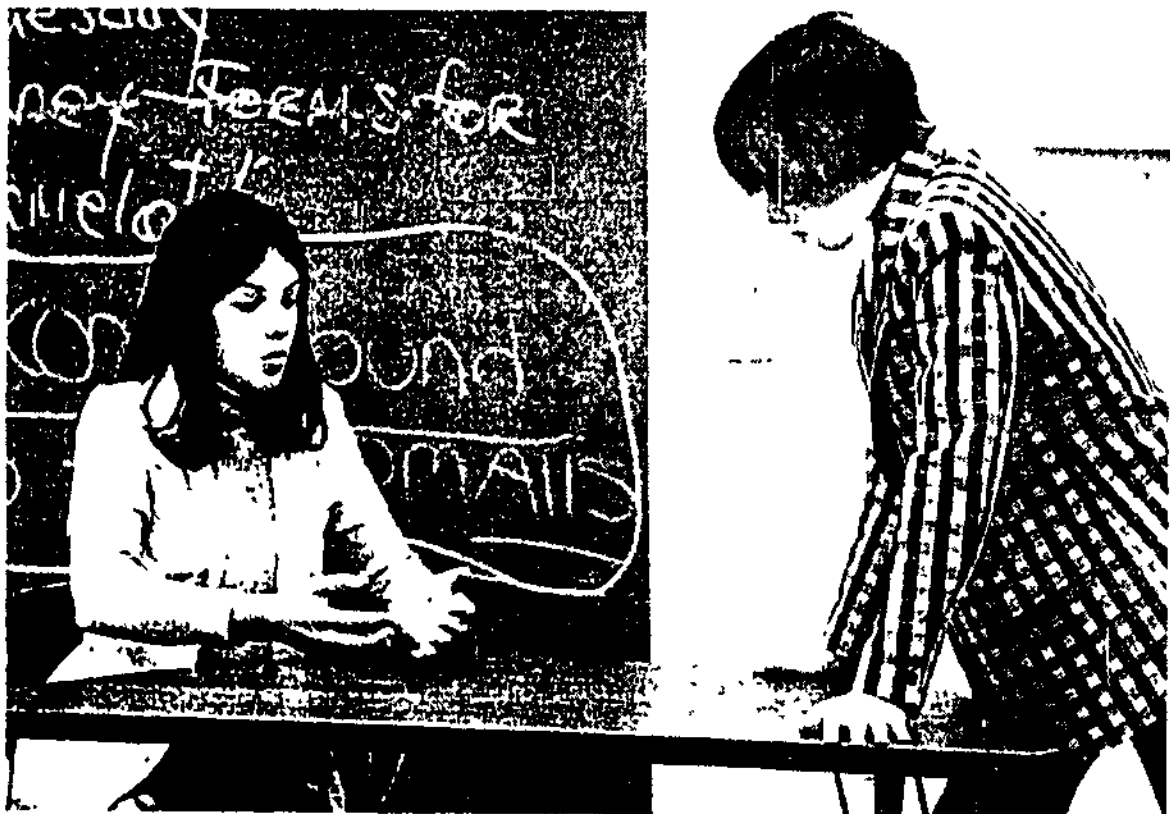

"At the beginning of the year I was really shaky," he said, looking back on his first tries with forensics last year. "By the end of the year I was OK."

JEAN CASEY, Buffalo Grove head forensics coach, said students must learn to strive for personal achievement rather than judge's rankings.

"If you aim to please the judges, you please everybody but yourself," she said.

"There's the point where you forget about the audience and judge and concentrate on what you're doing," Larry said.

And as they concentrate on what they're doing, they learn self-composure and a mature presentation of themselves to others.

A HUMOROUS DUET of "Dennis the Menace" is performed by Joyce Allendorf and John Bauman in a forensics meet Saturday at Buffalo Grove and Wheeling high schools. Duet dramatic skits and other events let students present short scenes and speeches. Rewards come from critiques and rankings toward a team victory.

Stavros prison transfer due to back, sinus ill

Convicted Wheeling political boss James Stavros was transferred from the federal prison at Sandstone, Minn., to the federal prison at Lexington, Ky., because of a back problem and chronic sinus condition, a prison official said Thursday.

Warden Lawrence Grossman of the Lexington prison said Stavros was transferred there Nov. 2 because the prison has better medical facilities than the one at Sandstone. Both prisons are minimum security.

"He has been put in the comprehensive health unit which is for prisoners with chronic medical problems," he said. The unit is for inmates who do not need to be hospitalized, but do need regular attention from a physician.

"Mr. Stavros is primarily here because of a problem with his back," Grossman said.

"He has been examined by a physician and will undergo physical therapy for the problem. He also has a chronic sinus condition."

Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, was among six Wheeling and Cook County officials indicted by a federal grand jury Jan. 31 following a year-long investigation into corruption in the village.

Stavros pleaded guilty April 30 to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers and filing a false income tax return. Three of the others also pleaded guilty to federal charges.

He was sentenced to a four-year prison term June 4 by U.S. District Court Judge Hubert Will. The U.S. Attorney's office dropped eight additional charges against Stavros, including alleged extortions totaling $121,250.

Stavros began serving his prison term June 25. Grossman said the transfer to the Lexington prison is permanent.

"Other than his medical problems there is nothing special about him," he said. "I fact, I didn't know who he was until you called."

man. "Sometimes we don't think enough of the public relations," he added.

In addition to Windsor Drive, some of the other areas BOLL designated as new additions to the project are:

- The east side of Belmont Avenue between Hawthorne Street and Marshall Street.
- The east side of Haddow Avenue between Euclid Street and Frederick Street.
- The east side of Douglas Avenue between Euclid Street and Miner Street.
- Pine Street in back of St. James Church and school. The board said that if the church marked off part of its black-topped parking lot on Pine as walkway, they would withdraw their request for sidewalks.
- The south side of Eastman Street between Haddow and Douglas avenues.
- The north side of Fremont Street between Arlington Heights Road and Pine Street.

Scouting news

Tests show contradictory results

How much are students learning?

by JUDY JOBBITT
A news analyst

Confusion reigns in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 over just how much children are learning.

Tests of contradictory figures show students are "average" and "above average" — and both are right.

Parents in Dist. 21 have complained that standardized test scores show children are only doing average work in a community with above-average resources.

The scores are determined by student performances on tests that cover material they "should know" in their year and month of school. Dist. 21 students scored at or slightly above their grade levels on the national tests, showing they know what they should — or a little more.

However, another set of figures — percentiles — which compare Dist. 21 student scores to scores throughout the nation, show they are doing better than most of their peers.

Students in the third grade scored 75 per cent; fourth grade scored 58.57 per cent; fifth grade scored 63.63 per cent; sixth grade scored 50.42 per cent; seventh grade scored 51.3 per cent and eighth grade scored 51 per cent.

FOE AND RILEY elementary school students scored in the 80-90 percentile. Irving, Longfellow, Tarkington, Frost and Alcott elementary schools showed scores between 60-80 per cent.

Low test scores were recorded in Field, Hawthorne and Twain elementary schools, with Field and Twain scoring in the 40th percentile.

Iowa Basic standardized tests measure achievement in vocabulary, reading comprehension, language skills, work-study skills and mathematics skills.

THE REASON WHY some schools showed lower test results is because the district includes scores from all students, including those with learning difficulties and bilingual students, said Supt. Kenneth Gill. Those students are more heavily concentrated at some schools than at others.

He said the district also has an influx of bilingual students in the spring when

Caucus challenged on tests panel

Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 has challenged the right of the district's General Caucus to form a committee to study student test scores.

Gill turned down a request from the caucus committee that he and Richard Wynn, special education director, meet with the committee to discuss the scores.

"This seems like a very strange request coming from a group that was formed for the purpose of selecting qualified school board candidates," Gill stated in his letter to Sally Benoit, committee member. "I question your authority to branch out into other areas of endeavor under the caucus banner."

PARENTS ASKED the school board last week about the district having average scores in a community with above-average education background, income and educational resources. The caucus established the study committee Monday to investigate the reasons for the average scores.

Mary Ellen Feldman, caucus chairman, said she is allowed to set up special committees. In this instance, however, the membership voted to establish the group looking into test scores, she said.

GILL ALSO SENT a notice to the PTO and PTA organizations stating he would meet with either group to discuss test results.

He acknowledged Mrs. Benoit's request to meet with the caucus committee in the PTA-PTO letters stating, "We are refusing this invitation on the basis that such activities on the part of the caucus usurps the purpose for which the caucus was convened."

"It is my understanding that the single purpose of the caucus is to select qualified school board candidates to run in the upcoming election. It is also my contention that they should stick to this purpose until they have been authorized by you to move out into other areas of endeavor in your name."

migrant workers move back into the district. The standardized tests are given shortly after most of these students arrive.

Intensive efforts by the district to raise low scores have been effective in the past, Gill said. When an area needs improvement, he said, two things must be accomplished. First, low-scoring students must be given help, and second, the district must change the curriculum at the lower grade levels to improve future scores.

DIST. 21 STUDENTS showed above-average achievement in vocabulary and work-study skills in all grades.

Reading scores were one month behind average in grades 5-7, language skills were one month behind in fourth grade and two months behind in sixth grade, and math skills were low in grades 4-6.

Gill said the district noticed low scores in computation before last year. This year the district is piloting a math series to introduce a math curriculum that emphasizes computation skills without losing the conceptual skills presented in the "new" math. He said it takes about two years to show results of a different curriculum designed to improve a skill area.

THE DISTRICT HAS SET up a task force to investigate the low-skill areas. But the staff has been cautioned not to "wreck the whole program to teach just basic skills," Gill said.

Gill said he is concerned with teachers' reactions to recent criticism about test scores. Many teachers felt they must concentrate solely on basic skills to the exclusion of other academic areas, he said. This type of overreaction could damage the district's over-all curriculum, he said.

The standardized tests do not check on areas such as art, music, social studies or science, he said. "What else is taught and not tested needs to be maintained and improved, too," he added.

Field School is applying for a federally funded program to improve basic skills. Field scored in the 40th percentile or below in all skills except work-study.

The district also is bringing in two consultants from Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, to analyze the test scores. Wesley Kahn, assistant dean of the college of education, and Harold Collins, a specialist in statistics, have done similar studies in other school districts.

The district received notice of their services Thursday.

Village recycling centers open for business again

Arlington Heights residents may resume bringing their papers and magazines to the village recycling centers.

George Baer Paper Recycling Co. of Maywood notified the village Thursday morning that it can resume pickups immediately. George Baer, owner of the company, said that two paper mills are now able to buy scrap paper from him. "What they won't take, I'll just hold," he said.

Baer said he is not sure how long the two mills will continue to buy or how much he could pay the village for its paper. Baer had recently asked the village to "slow down" its collection of recyclable paper when his buyers stopped taking paper. He made his last pickup in Arlington Heights Oct. 21.

The market for recycled paper has been slowed recently by the drop in building industry production. Recycled paper often is used for roof papers and insulation, products that have not been used since building construction has slowed, local officials say.

Recycling centers in the village are located at Fire Station No. 4, 3100 N. Arlington Heights Rd.; Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., and Fire Station No. 3, 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Park district to host trip to theater

The Arlington Heights Park District will sponsor a children's theater trip to Goodman Theatre's production of "From Rags to Riches" Monday, Dec. 23.

A $4 fee for the trip can be paid at the park district's Olympic, Frontier, Camelot, Pioneer and Recreation Parks daily from 1 to 5 p.m. A bus will leave Frontier Park at 11:15 a.m. and Pioneer Park at 11:30 a.m. for the theater.

Trip to hockey game Dec. 1

The Arlington Heights Park District will sponsor a trip to a Chicago Black Hawks hockey game Sunday, Dec. 1.

Buses will leave Olympic Park at 6 p.m. for the game between the Hawks and Minnesota at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are available at Camelot, Frontier, Recreation, and Pioneer parks for $5.50, which include transportation.

Allen to head mental health unit

John H. Allen, 504 S. Donald Ave., Arlington Heights, has been named chairman of the public affairs committee of the Illinois Assn. for Mental Health.

Allen is a member of the board of directors of IAMH and of the Mental Health Assn. of Greater Chicago. IAMH is a non-profit volunteer organization, a committee of the National Assn. for Mental Health.

Arlington Park asks for 120 days of racing

by KURT BAER

John F. Loomer, president of Arlington Park Race Track, asked the Illinois Racing Board Thursday for 120 continuous racing dates from June 2 to Oct. 18 next year.

Loomer promised to continue the financial gains at the Arlington Heights track made last summer as well as its effort to draw new fans and a better grade of horses here.

The racing board is scheduled to hear testimony from other state racing associations today in Chicago and announce the 1975 racing schedule within the next several days.

"We anticipate that during this year's hearings the board will take the steps necessary to solidify the gains already made and insure the continuous healthy growth of racing in Illinois. This can best be achieved by giving Arlington Park additional racing days. Specifically we are asking for 120 days of thoroughbred racing from June 2 to Oct. 18."

Last summer Arlington Park had 84 days of racing from June 3 to Sept. 2.

POINTING TO THE first $3 million worth of bets in a single day in Illinois history, an attendance increase of 18 per cent compared to 1973 and total wagering of $138 million at Arlington Park this summer, he termed last summer's meeting "an unqualified success."

In support of Arlington Park's effort to create new interest in Illinois horse racing, Loomer presented videotape excerpts of half-hour color television broadcasts of six major races at Arlington Park this summer.

The promotion of Arlington Park as a resort complex with a hotel, golf course and theater also helped bolster race track attendance, he said. "More than 50,000 people were overnight guests at the hotel during the racing season, most of them were new racing fans," he said.

DESPITE HIS contention that better horses were racing at Arlington Park last summer than in recent years, Loomer was criticized by board member Ray Freemark for scheduling Arlington Park's major races on the same days that important races were being held at other Midwest race tracks.

"This really waters down the available field of top horses and the field at Arlington Park clearly reflected that. We did not draw the top horses," he said.

Loomer replied by saying he would cooperate with other tracks in scheduling the 1975 season. He also said it was his intent "to pursue horses out of New York, New Jersey and the New England area," where racing generally is regarded as being better than in Illinois.

THE BOARD ALSO criticized Arlington Park for alleged low pay to horsemen. But board members said the purse problem is a complicated one that will take changes in state legislation.

Board member Lucy Reum complimented Loomer on recent improvements in the educational and recreational programs for backstretch workers at Arlington Park.

"The programs this year tended to keep them on the grounds — keep them occupied," Loomer said. "When they're occupied, they're less likely to get into trouble," he said.

Mrs. Reum also emphasized the race track would have to live up to its commitment to the Village of Arlington Heights to replace about 20 per cent of its wooden barns. The barns are considered a fire hazard and are being replaced with fire-resistant concrete barns and dormitories.

Arlington homeowners baffled by gasoline fumes

Gasoline fumes have been reported by several Searsdale subdivision residents for the second time this month. The fumes came through sewer pipes but Arlington Heights Fire Dept. personnel were unable to trace their source.

Residents at three South Dryden Avenue addresses reported the fumes in their houses about 6 p.m. Wednesday. Firemen were called to investigate, but the quick dispersal of the odor prevented them from tracing the smell to its source, fire department officials said.

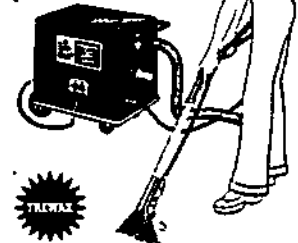

Residents reported the odors were much weaker than the fumes that filled their homes several weeks ago. That incident caused Northern Illinois Gas Co. servicemen to evacuate several homes because the vapors were strong enough to be combustible.

Fire Chief John Hayden said someone must be dumping gasoline into the sewer line. If the source is a leaking gasoline storage tank in a local service station, Hayden said a heavy rain would wash enough gas downstream to be traceable. "There's so much we could do, but where do you start?" he said.

Hayden said his department would keep an eye on the situation. In the meantime, homeowners troubled by odors from sewer pipes should pour water down their floor drain pipes to alleviate the smell, he said.
